Brittingham-Dashiell Wedding

The marriage of Miss Ruth Dashiell, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth T. Dashiell and the late Charles W. Dashiell, of Baltimore, to Mr. Henry Lawrence Brittingham, postmaster at Princess Anne, took place last Wednesday morning at 10.30 o'clock at St. Michael and All Angels' Protestant Episcopal Church, Baltimore. The Rev. Philip Cook, rector of the church, officiated.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her brother-in-law, Mr. Charles Dunning French, of Philadelphia, was given in marriage by her mother. She wore a charming costume of white embroidered French voile, and a leghorn hat faced with white georgette crepe and finished with white roses, and her bouquet was of white roses. Her sister, Miss Mildred Dashiell, who was her maid of honor and only attendant, was gown in a dainty frock of pale pink voile, trimmed with point d'esprit. She wore a picture hat of pink chiffon, and carried pink sweet-peas. Lieut. James Francis Brittingham, U. S. A., was his brother's best man, and his ushers were Lieut. Charles E. Robinson, U. S. A., and Mr. E. Herrman Cohn, of Princess Anne.

After the wedding a reception was given at the home of the bride. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Boyle, of Washington, D. C.; Mr. James F. Brittingham, of New York, N. Y.; Miss Emily C. Dixon, of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jesse and son, of St. Michaels, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. French, of Philadelphia; Miss Anna Cohn, of Norfolk, Va.; Miss Edwina Lockett, of Winston-Salem, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Spiva, Mr. and Mrs. E. Herrman Cohn, Hon. Joshua W. Miles, Mrs. H. L. Brittingham, Mrs. H. T. Ruhl and Miss Mildred Beauchamp, all of Princess Anne.

Upon their return from a wedding trip on July 8th Mr. and Mrs. Brittingham will reside in Princess Anne.

Jacob Smith, Robert F. Duer, Thomas H. Bock, Jos. G. Scott, Roy A. Buhrman, W. C. Hart, Harry C. Dashiell and Misses Ann Page, Mildred Beauchamp, Carolyn McCandlish, Ellen D. McMaster, Mary Miles Dashiell and Emily R. Waters.

Aviators Pass Over Princess Anne

An airplane passed over Princess Anne last Friday morning about 11 o'clock and was witnessed by a number of our citizens. It is supposed the airplane contained Captain John C. P. Bartholf and Lieutenant Stevens, of the United States Aeronautical Experimenting Station at Hampton Roads, who landed at the Philadelphia Navy Yard last Thursday on a flight from Mineola, L. I., and resumed their journey to Hampton Roads on Friday morning.

To-morrow (Wednesday), July 4th, being a legal holiday, the postoffice will be open from 7.15 a. m. to 8.30 a. m.; closed from 8.30 a. m. until 1 p. m., and open from 1 p. m. to 2.30 p. m. Town delivery service in the morning only. The banks, public offices and most of the stores will observe the day by a suspension of business.

COMMISSIONERS STRIKE 1917 LEVY

County Rate Decreased 5 Cents And State Rate Increased Over 4 Cents

Last Saturday the County Commissioners—Dr. C. C. Ward, president, Messrs. George A. Somers and F. E. Matthews—struck the levy for 1917. The county rate is $1.20 on the $100 and the State rate is 38 5-12 cents on the $100. The county rate is 5 cents less and the State rate is increased 4 2-12 cents over last year.

The total appropriations in the levy amount to $194,467.10. Among the principal appropriations are the following: For public schools, $31,500; public roads, $16,500; court charges, $2,500; hospitals for insane, $2,600; supervisor of assessments, $800; attorney's fees, $1,000; county treasurer and assistant, $2,000; redemption of bonds, $1,500; incidentals, $16,276.69.

To pay off notes in the Bank of Somerset, $10,000, which puts the county on a cash basis. The town of Crisfield will get $1,600 instead of $800 as heretofore, and the town of Princess Anne will receive $1,200 this year instead of $800. It will be seen that the commissioners have done well for our neighboring town by increasing the appropriation double, while the county seat only gets $400 additional.

Big Clay Bird Tournament

On Wednesday, July 4th, the Princess Anne Trapshooting Club will hold a big clay bird tournament at its club grounds, the object of which will be two fold—to give those who do not get a chance to shoot at other times a chance to try their skill at the elusive clays, and at the same time raise a fund for the Red Cross Ambulance Unit which the Trapshooters of America are going to equip and present to the Red Cross to be sent to Europe. It will take $20,000. Let every man who loves to shoot come to this tournament and help raise this fund. Honor insignia will be awarded to the five high shooters in the Red Cross shoot, which will be at 50 birds, and a handicap allotted every 10 birds. There will also be prizes allotted on the same 50 birds, according to the Lewis class system, which gives the poor shooter a chance with the best for the prizes. The entrance fee will be $1.00 for the 50 birds and the tournament is open to all shooters, and all shooters are earnestly invited to attend. You can't celebrate Independence Day better than by helping in this shoot to raise this fund, and at the same time enjoy your holiday. The shoot will begin about 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Marshall-Brown Wedding

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Brown, on Beckford avenue, was the scene of one of the most attractive weddings of the season at 11.30 o'clock last Wednesday morning, when their daughter, Miss Florence Jeanette Brown, became the bride of Mr. Percy Howard Marshall, of Baltimore. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Leolan Jackson, pastor of Antioch Methodist Episcopal Church, and the wedding march was played by Mrs. George H. Myers.

The bride, who wore a gown of white pussy willow taffeta, trimmed in georgette crepe, was given in marriage by her father. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Margaret Hayman, of Clarksburg, W. Va., as maid of honor, who wore white organdie and carried pink roses. The best man was Mr. Wilmot Brown, brother of the bride.

A breakfast for the bridal party and a few intimate friends followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Marshall left on the 1.27 express for Philadelphia and other points. They will be at home, Baltimore, after August 1st.

Children Play Base Ball For Red Cross

The children of South Somerset avenue played base ball on Mrs. H. L. Brittingham's front yard last Thursday afternoon for the benefit of the Red Cross. The line-up from the east side of the street was: Elizabeth Norfleet, Emily Waters and Robert Waters. From the west side: McMaster Duer, Levin Waters and Marie P. Smith.

Mr. Robert F. Duer, umpire; Dr. T. J. Smith, referee; Mr. Chas. T. Smith, scorekeeper. A small but highly appreciative audience attended and 80 cents was realized.

June Weather

The report of the weather for June, as compiled by Mr. James R. Stewart, co-operative observer at Princess Anne, is as follows:

Maximum temperature, 90 degrees on the 24th; minimum temperature, 50 degrees on the 18th; total precipitation, 5.58 inches. Clear days, 7; partly cloudy, 17; cloudy, 6. Thunder storms on the 2d, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 14th and 27th. The prevailing wind was south-west.

THE COMPULSORY WORK ACT

All Men Not Engaged In Continuous Occupation Must Register

The Compulsory Work Act has been passed by the Legislature and signed by Governor Harrington. The Governor will soon issue a proclamation to require every able bodied man between the ages of 18 and 50 to register if they are not engaged in some continuous occupation. The Governor will then assign such persons to such occupation as may be necessary for the protection and welfare of the State. Any such person refusing to continue to do the work assigned to him will be liable to be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned for six months or both.

The law was one of those drafted by Attorney General Ritchie at the request of the Maryland Preparedness and Survey Commission. It seems to be a very necessary measure if every man must work or fight, for there are many lazy and good for nothing people who plan to do neither.

There are many able-bodied colored men around Princess Anne loafing at this time of year when the farmers are short of labor and it is expected that as soon as the Governor makes his proclamation there will be numerous arrests made. It seems outrageous that the workers should not only have the fighters to support but also thousands of lazy bums throughout the State who eat and help diminish the food supply, but do nothing towards helping to replenish it. Drastic measures in time of war bring home to the people that every one has a duty to perform and those who refuse to do that duty will suffer for it.

Under this new law a man, white or colored, must engage in some continuous occupation and the odd job worker will come under its provision.

The Beginners' Trap Shoot

On last Wednesday the Princess Anne Trapshooting Club held its Beginners' Shoot, and six shooters took part as follows: J. P. Dove, 19 in 25; Arthur Jones, 19 in 25; James Starling, 18 in 25; William Wilson, 17 in 25; O. G. Dryden, 13 in 25, and O. C. Heath, 9 in 25. Dove and Jones shot off the tie at 10 birds, Dove winning, 6 in 10. The prize was a sterling silver watch fob, donated by the DuPont Powder Company, of Wilmington, Delaware.

The regular members of the club finished a 100-bird race for a set of three watch fobs donated by the Hercules Powder Company, of Wilmington, Delaware. Earle B. Polk won the gold fob with a score of 95 out of a possible 100. Herbert Holland and B. H. Dougherty tied for the silver fob with a score of 94 out of a possible 100, and in the shoot at eleven birds Holland won, breaking 10. Dr. H. A. Barnes, Omar Reading, Columbus Lankford and F. D. Layfield tied for the bronze fob with a score of 92 out of a possible 100. In the shoot-off Reading dropped out in the first 10 birds leaving Lankford and Barnes still tied. They then shot "miss and out" style. Each missed his first bird and each missed his eighth bird. Barnes then missed his ninth bird and Lankford hit his, winning the trophy. Through an oversight Mr. Layfield did not get to shoot in the shoot-off for third prize, but Mr. Lankford said it was all right as the result would have been the same any way.

Red Cross Circle For Westover

The ladies of the Preparedness and Survey Commission, Mrs. J. D. Wallop, president, went to Westover last Wednesday afternoon and organized a circle of the Red Cross.

Interesting papers were read by Dr. Katherine Lankford, Mrs. L. A. Oates and Mrs. John Page. Mrs. E. D. Long was appointed chairman of the Westover circle; Mrs. Bissell and Mrs. Shoemaker were elected secretary and treasurer. The following were enrolled and many others are expected to join at the next meeting: Mesdames George McDowell, George Handy, W. B. Long, E. Dennett Long, Lewis Layfield, E. J. Chamberlain, Robert Dryden, C. E. Allen, George Jones, Misses Lida Kelly, Mary Ritzel. A meeting will be held on the evening of July 6th at Mrs. Long's home to discuss ways and means, and all who are interested in this important movement are invited to be present.

At the same meeting the officers for the Kingston circle were named: Mrs. Louis Chamberlin, chairman; Miss Dora Turpin, secretary, and Mrs. Gorsuch, treasurer.

Steamers on the Pocomoke and Occo-hannock river lines are now leaving their wharves daily for Baltimore. All these boats stop at Crisfield, leaving that point from 7 to 9 o'clock. Returning all boats on the above lines leave Baltimore at 5 p. m. daily, arriving at Crisfield the next morning.

WILL DECIDE ON EXEMPTIONS

Boards Appointed For Each County In State By War Department

The draft Army exemption boards for Maryland were announced by the War Department late last Wednesday afternoon. There will be 29 boards in the counties and 24 in Baltimore city, a total of 53 for the State. Each board is made up of three members, of whom one in nearly each instance being a physician.

These are the boards that will pass on the claims of men drafted for exemption. Before July 15th the process of drafting men from the registration lists will begin. More than 1,000,000 men will be drafted in order to make allowance for inevitable exemptions. These exemptions will bring the total to be actually drafted for service to about 625,000 men for the country. It is anticipated that about one man in every two will have to be exempted on account of physical defects or for other valid reasons. The number to be drafted in Maryland will be fixed by the War Department.

Then claims from exemptions from service under the draft will be in order. These claims will be submitted to the exemption boards whose personnel was announced Wednesday. From the decision of these boards appeals may be taken to exemption boards of appeal, one of which will be appointed for each federal judicial district in the country. As there is only one federal district in Maryland there will be only one exemption board of appeals for Maryland. There will be five members on this board.

In the city of Baltimore there are 24 boards for as many wards. The boards for Somerset, Wicomico and Worcester counties, follow:

Somerset County.—Dr. Charles W. Wainwright, Princess Anne; W. Jerome Sterling, Clerk of the Circuit Court; Dr. C. E. Collins, Crisfield.

Wicomico County.—Dr. George W. Todd, Salisbury; Walter J. Dryden, Salisbury; Walter B. Miller, Salisbury.

Worcester County.—Shawell Meyers, Ocean City; Oliver D. Collins, Snow Hill; Dr. B. E. Lee Hall, Pocomoke City.

Grangers Meet At Crisfield

Somerset County Pomona Grange met with Crisfield Grange last Wednesday in Crisfield. The meeting was conducted by County Master J. S. Lawson, who presided.

The Lecturer's program was as follows: Singing, "Welcome," address of welcome, Rev. J. Vernon Ashworth; response, by the county secretary in behalf of the Pomona; recitations, "Betsy's Battle Flag," "Blue and Gray," and "Family Financiers," by Mrs. B. F. Somers; explanation of the Federal Farm Loan act, by Prof. Bomberger, of the Maryland State College; an interesting talk on "The present food situation in the county and throughout the world," was given by County Agent Keller; followed by a recitation entitled "Old Many in New York," by Mrs. J. H. Riggins; Mr. G. Mahlon Merrill then addressed the gathering on "The Fundamental requisites of farm efficiency." The committee on resolutions presented the following, which was adopted: "Resolved, That we approve of the movement to prevent the use of grain to be converted into alcoholic liquors during the war."

Ends Life With Paris Green

Oswald Layfield, a well-known farmer of Nutter's district, Wicomico county, committed suicide Monday of last week by taking Paris Green.

From all the information obtainable he left the house early in the morning and went to a shed away back in a strawberry patch, where he swallowed the contents of a quarter-pound box of the poison. Two or three hours after Mr. Layfield left the house his youngest son found him in the shanty vomiting quite freely. Hurriedly the father was placed in a carriage and taken to the Peninsula Hospital, Salisbury, where two or three doctors labored for three hours to save his life, but without avail. The victim passed away in great agony. No cause is assigned for his rash act. He was about 35 years of age and leaves a wife and three children.

"Old Home Week" Celebration

"Old Home Week" will be celebrated at Pocomoke City, commencing yesterday (Monday) and closing with Saturday night with varied displays. Each day will have a new program which will no doubt prove attractive to the thousands of people who are expected to visit Pocomoke this week. Word has been received from hundreds of former Worcester countians, now scattered all over the country, that they will be in Pocomoke to enjoy "Old Home Week" and renew old acquaintances.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE ENDS

Work Done At Extra Session And Bills Signed By The Governor

Common sense finally prevailed at Annapolis last Wednesday to the extent that the Legislature adjourned sine die. It did not prevail to the extent of compelling the passage of the Soldiers and Sailors Vote bill; that measure designed to give Marylanders who are going forth to offer their lives for their country, the simple privilege of participating in the Government they are protecting, was defeated through the stubborn and selfish partisanship and factionalism of the Mahon-Preston-Jackson-Weller combination.

Of course, the Wilson ballot law, which the combination demanded as its pound of flesh before the Soldiers' Vote bill could be passed, was beaten. It was killed last Tuesday night, when the Senate rejected the House separate repealer bill by a decisive vote and then put the "clincher" on the rejection. The combination had put the repealer through the House overwhelmingly.

Wednesday's adjournment sine die was belated submission to public opinion, which, as every one in touch with politics knew, had decreed that the Legislature should end the farce into which the combination had sent the extra session in its efforts to sandbag through the Wilson law repealer by holding up the Soldier's Vote bill.

Following is a list of the bills passed and which are now laws:

Camp Site Bill.

Maryland Council of National Defense Bill.

One Million Dollar Appropriation Bill.

Maryland State Guard Bill.

Amendments to Militia Laws.

State Farm for Prison Labor Bill.

All Bay Boats Must Have Permits

Powerboats, or sailboats, irrespective of size, are required to obtain a license to operate in any of the waters of the Chesapeake Bay or its tributaries, under a notice received by Lieut. Lewis P. Clephane, in charge of the local enrollment office of the United States Naval Reserves at Baltimore.

The order, though effective at once, will not be carried out in full for several weeks in order that the various boat owners may have an opportunity to secure the necessary permits. The Baltimore officers of reserves who will issue the permits are arranging to make calls at various points in Maryland to issue the licenses.

Local boat owners can secure their permits at the office of the United States Naval Reserves, 9 East Baltimore street. No charge is made for the permits. Masters of vessels can secure their permits by exhibiting their master's certificates. Persons without master licenses will be obliged to produce evidences as to their ownership and make oath to same.

The United States Government took possession on July 1st of the boats of the Maryland Oyster Navy for use as patrol boats during the war.

ELECTION OFFICIALS APPOINTED

President Lankford Holds Out The Olive Branch To Supervisor Cox

The Board of Election Supervisors for Somerset County met at their office in the Court House last Thursday and selected the election officials to serve at the primary and general elections this year.

The Democratic officials appointed represent both elements of the Democratic party in this county. Last year the Democratic officials were selected exclusively from the organization forces in the county, composed of the friends of Collector of Internal Revenue Joshua W. Miles, but some time ago Edward B. Lankford, president of the Board of Election Supervisors, and a staunch friend of Collector Miles, suggested to Lambert W. Cox, the other Democratic member of the Board and a representative of the Harrington element of the party, that they get together on the appointments, each man naming one-half of the officials. This suggestion was accepted by Mr. Cox, and just before the meeting was called last Thursday the two Democratic members made up a list of appointments in accordance with their previous agreement.

Japanese secret agents directed by Baron Huroki of Tokyo try to steal the Channing Trust. With the aid of Captain Parr of the United States secret service, Patria frustrates all their efforts.

FOURTH EPISODE

Double-Crossed

Though not a sound disturbed the room's tranquility, the tenant of its silk-clad couch was not asleep. And yet she was by no means awake. Normal youth had had its fill of slumber; now she rested in a delicious state of drowsiness, less than sleep, little if any less than dream, vaguely aware of her identity and of the familiar gloom of her bedchamber, but still with brain bemused by the glamour of that romance which colored her every thought where she was waking or sleeping, who for the first time loved and who knew her love was not wasted.

The little French gilt traveling clock upon her dressing table chimed once, softly and sweetly.

Simultaneously the door to the adjoining drawing room was opened just far enough to frame the amiable features of her maid.

The girl in a sleepy voice inquired the hour.

Informed that it was just half after eleven she sat up smartly with a little exclamation of dismay:

"And Captain Parr calling at one to take me to lunch at Claremont!"

Immediately Patria slipped from between the sheets and into a gossamer garment so exquisite that it was sheer profanity to name it bathrobe.

So it was nearly midday before, once more abed but now wide awake, and all a-tingle with the vitality stimulated by a cold plunge, she disposed of a poor apology for a breakfast, and skimmed through her morning's mail.

In it was a note from Rodney's mother, Mrs. Gilbert Wrenn.

Her complaints were gentle but incessant. They must be answered. Patria selected a telegraph form and wrote swiftly:

Mrs. Gilbert Wrenn.

"Shadow Lawn"—Newport.
Do not be impatient with me—you've no idea what an interminably stupid business taking formal possession of one's own property can be. I don't stop on in this azzling city because I like it—and if nothing prevents, shall come home tomorrow night by the Fall River boat—

Patria paused and frowned a little, thoughtfully. Then, with a shrug and move that meant she intended to have her own way irrespective of her chaplain's approval, she added a single line:

Shall bring Fanny Adair with me—Patria.

Giving Anne the telegram for dispatch without delay, Patria permitted her thoughts briefly to linger upon the young woman whom she had just named.

Fanny Adair's maiden name was her main title to her place in the sun—

that and a cheerful personality coupled with perfect breeding. Her family had been one of the oldest and most-respected as well as one of the wealthiest in Manhattan. But that comfortable fortune which might have been hers had been dissipated by her paternal extravagance; Fanny had been penniless when she married young Adair for his money—a sordid motive whose meanness had been atoned by her candor in owning to it as by its ill success. For Adair had lost everything in Wall street and had taken his life during the ensuing fit of despair.

Since that time Fanny had lived upon the increment of her arts and charms.

It was quite natural that steady-paced matrons like Mrs. Wrenn should disapprove ardently of Fanny Adair.

Patria, however, liked the girl; and recently finding her temporarily marooned in a shabby boarding house in town for lack of funds or invitation to any country house, had promptly taken Fanny under her wing, providing her with accommodations as luxurious as her own in the hotel and impulsively promising her a month at "Shadow Lawn" when the time came for Patria to return.

Could she have seen Fanny at that moment, Patria would have been less charitably disposed, would have granted that more cogent reasons existed for repenting of her hasty invitation than the fear of Mrs. Wrenn's displeasure.

It was noon precisely when Mrs. Adair alighted from a town-car as irreproachably turned out as her engaging self, and with furtive glances right and left, approached the entrance to a faultlessly quiet residence in a sober side street of the Murray Hill quarter.

Her ring was answered by a sleek little man-servant with close-cropped hair as black as eyes that resembled jet beads set aslant in a saffron mask.

Indubitably he recognized the caller. Bowing with a deference that was somehow subtly insolent, he admitted Fanny.

Upon a mat in the middle of the room a Japanese gentleman of high rank sat clothed in the rich simplicity of the robes appertaining to his nobility.

He was a man of middle-age, yet younger than his years. The habit of authority was his, tempered with the most suave urbanity.

"My dear Mrs. Adair—"

He bowed over her hand so low his lips seemed to brush it.

She began to speak in agitated accents: "Baron Huroki—"

He deprecated her emotion with a slight gesture.

"You have come to tell me something I very much wish to know—eh?"

Her hands worked together in her lap. "I have come to say, I wish to be released from our agreement."

A second small gesture dissented. Her voice failed. She stared at him with pitiful eyes.

"It is impossible, my dear Mrs. Adair." His tones were as bland as oil, his intention as firm as adamant. He smiled intimately up at her. "Why distress yourself?"

"I don't like what you make me do," she faltered. "Patria—she is too good to me, too kind and sweet. I can't get my own consent to continue spying on her."

"You do not need it, dear Mrs. Adair. You have mine."

"Baron Huroki—"

"Please—ah, please do not make me remind you of certain unpleasant matters which must inevitably become public should you fail to carry out my instructions with respect to the amiable Miss Channing. It is my wish that you continue to be her friend; you must become her bosom friend, her closest confidant; when that is accomplished, I shall secure through you certain information essential to my—oh—happiness; and then I shall permit you to go free of all obligations to me. Meantime—must I remind you, your services are well paid?"

She was silenced. And while she sat twisting futile fingers together and striving to contrive some way out of those toils in which she was so hopelessly enmeshed, a servant entered, bowed, and announced Senor Juan de Lima. At sight of Mrs. Adair he addressed her with the informality of an intimate acquaintance:

"Ah-h, Senora Adair! Of all women the one I am most anxious to see! And where, Fanny, dear, were you last night, when I see Mees Patria dancing with Montmartre?"

"I—last night? Patria at Montmartre!"

The eyes of the baron narrowed. "But yes—I tell you, I am at Montmartre at two thees morning, with a friend. And suddenly I see Mees Channing there, dancing in costume, a character dance, like a public dancer, all alone!"

Mrs. Adair elevated delicately pencilled brows. "Patria was in bed before midnight. I sat at her bedside talking with her, for half an hour, before she turned out her light."

"Then she must get up and steal out when you are gone!"

"That's likely!"

Baron Huroki interposed smoothly: "A case of mistaken identity, I imagine, de Lima. It's not credible that a young woman of Miss Channing's standing should disport herself as a public dancer in a place like Montmartre."

"Maybe so." The Mexican conceded to the Japanese what he would have perished rather than concede to the American woman. "But I cannot understand. These people of Montmartre, they tell me she is Mademoiselle Elaine, she dance there every night. But to me she is la Senorita Patria to the life."

"No matter. I have other business of greater importance to discuss with you. Dear Mrs. Adair, do you mind—?"

But she would not be dismissed so cavalierly. She stood her ground.

If she must play the traitor in Patria's camp, she meant to have her stipulated price.

The baron shrugged and smote his palms softly. The servant who slid back a screen in response interpreted his gesture in a twinkling, and was instant to bring his master a lacquered coffer. Huroki handed her a roll of bills.

Her funds replenished from this store of gold and bills, Mrs. Adair went her way.

Alone with Senor de Lima, Baron Huroki somewhat peremptorily demanded a repetition of his story about the dancer of Montmartre.

"Assuming that this resemblance exists—that it is as close, as striking as you declare—why should we not buy this public woman, coach her to play Patria, and so compass our ends?"

The Mexican drew a deep breath.

"You mean you would—?"

"Eliminate Miss Channing, put Mademoiselle Elaine in her place? Precisely! What could be simpler?"

FROLIC.

Few days are long enough for lovers—so they be not apart. And since the companionship throughout of

"To Me She Is La Senorita Patria to the Life!"

Fanny Adair provided so sufficient unto the conventions, Miss Channing and Captain Parr recognized no excuse for failure to prolong this day to its extreme, and then a bit beyond.

The luncheon at Claremont seemed merely a natural prelude for a motor jaunt out Westchester way to escape the withering heat of town. Then after tea at a quaint roadside house there was a homeward drive to edge their appetites for a little dinner on Delmonico's roof, in the course of which it transpired that Parr happened (oh, most adventitiously!) to have been presented with three seats for the premiere of a famous summer review, an annual theatrical event not lightly to be ignored.

It was an hour past midnight when Patria was admonished by Fanny Adair that she really ought to return to the hotel.

Almost pouting, the girl assented. From that betrayal Parr took his cue. "It seems altogether too tame an end of a perfect day," he protested. "Couldn't we go some place and have a dance—just one?"

Patria's sympathy was instant. "I'd love it."

"Then where shall we go?"

Over a question so weighty the young woman knitted her brows.

"I know!" she declared, after a moment—sedulously ignoring Fanny's remonstrances. "Let's go to a good roof garden!"

So they taxied over to the roof of one of the theaters, and thanks to the lateness of the hour, had little difficulty in securing a table; for the performance was over by the time they entered.

Almost immediately, Patria repented her impulse. Well aware that she figured prominently in the public eye, she was unprepared to find herself so promptly recognized by so many people.

Or was it wholly recognition? In the manner with which the head waiter greeted them, Patria thought to detect something like bewilderment promptly dissembled. The impression persisted that the sensation she excited was less curiosity than astonishment.

This impression was deepened by an odd incident shortly after they were seated. Patria's first glance was drawn as if by hypnotic magnetism, directly across the room to the face of a young man who, alone at a table for two, had swung squarely round to stare at Patria as if he could not credit the testimony of his vision.

It wasn't long after that the orchestra struck up a waltz, and Patria nodded gayly in answer to Parr's quick invitation. She was very fond of dancing, most of all fond of waltzing with her Captain Parr.

Surprisingly, then, there came a burst of handclapping from the tenants of other tables.

Patria hesitated, with an inquiring glance up into Parr's face. He shook his head.

"I understand no more than you," he averred, laughing. "Let's pretend we notice nothing. I dare say we'll get some sort of a clue to the mystery before very long."

They danced, but they danced alone. By common consent all others turned to watch them. And when they paused toward their table, applause again pursued them.

Embarrassed beyond measure, Patria gave over trying to conceal it.

"Do let's go," she begged. "I can't stand this sort of thing."

Patria was waiting for Parr to hold her cloak when she felt her arm imprisoned in the brutal grasp of one who had stolen up on her from behind. Instantly she was swung round and identified her assailant with the man at the adjoining table who had been glaring at her so disconcertingly.

"What d—foolishness is this?" he demanded, thrusting a bloated face so close to hers that Patria was almost sickened by the reek of the alcoholized thickened accents. "Get up and come with me, or you'll be sorry! Do you hear? Or don't you believe what I'm telling you?"

He flourished a hand, palm outward, before her face. In the palm she saw the hilt of a knife whose long, shining blade was half-hidden in the cuff.

"If you want a taste of that—!"

She found her voice and cried out. Blatantly, the fellow bent over and picked her bodily out of the chair.

His strength was extraordinary. She was helpless in his arms.

Parr had just recovered the bracelet from a waiter when he heard Patria's cry in the lobby.

He dashed through the doors, to find the place empty of all but four or five liveried men.

"Where's the lady who was waiting for me?" he demanded of the nearest man.

"Gone off with her manager," the other grinned. "They had some sort of a row and he picked her up and—"

"You fool!" Parr cried. "That lady has no manager! She is Miss Channing—Patria Channing!"

"Garn!" was the reply. "She's Elaine, the dancer, and the man's Jules Edouard, her manager. You better keep out of this, she's his girl, and he's a hard man—"

But Parr was already running down the corridor. It led him out upon an empty roof beneath the stairs.

The faintest echo of a call for help drew him to the head of the fire-escape. How he got down that fire-escape, he never knew. When he reached the bottom, it was to find the paved court destitute of any trace of the kidnaper and his prey. He dashed round it in frenzy, trying door after door. One yielded, disclosing a long and tunnel-like passage between two buildings. At a venture he ran down this. Coming out at the far end, he saw the basement door to a dilapidated Forty-first street residence closing, and threw his weight against it, with the added momentum of a short run, full-tilt.

Entering a basement hall, he saw before him a flight of stairs leading to the first floor. At the top of these he paused to listen. From some indeterminate point in the upper stories he heard a sound of heavy pounding. He took the stairs to the third story three at a stride.

The sound of hammering came from behind a closed door at the back of the hallway. But that door was not locked; Parr thrust it open and discovered Patria's persecutor standing over an old trunk against one wall of what was evidently used as a store-room for discarded articles of furniture and the like. Of Patria there was never a sign. But the drunkard seemed possessed with the notion that she had hidden in that trunk, which he was insanely endeavoring to break open.

In one bound Parr was at grips with the man, who turned just in time to escape being taken at a disadvantage.

A struggle ensued that demanded every ounce of Parr's strength and determination, every atom of his wit and will. The fellow fought with the power and fury of a demented thing, and presently contrived to trip Parr backwards across the trunk. The captain was up again almost as quickly as he had been thrown—but only to see his man throwing himself across the room toward a knife which, Parr saw for the first time, lay on the floor close by some rolled-up rugs.

In a trice Parr was upon his back, and the contest was renewed.

At the moment of final extremity, when the captain was on the point of giving up and trying to find something wherewith to defend himself before it was too late, one of the rugs became amazingly animate. It rolled like a live thing across the floor, unrolling as it came. From it Patria emerged, a creature of cat-like grace and quickness. Her hand closed upon the knife in the nick of time.

The man leaped to his feet as Parr released him. But now the disadvantage was his. Parr closed in, raining blows upon him. He sought vainly to guard against them until one caught the point of his jaw, his head jerked sharply back, and he fell like a discarded marionette, cleanly knocked out.

ASSASSINS.

Dawn, a formless sheen of gray, trembled in the skies when Captain Parr sought his bed.

He spent hours after leaving Patria at her hotel in the care of Mrs. Adair (whose agitation seemed natural enough), in cross-examining the chauffeur of the kidnaper's car, and with plain-clothes men searching a cheap Forty-seventh street hotel for two guests who were not there.

The sum of his investigations was as follows: On the words of half a dozen creditable witnesses the woman who danced nightly under the name of "Mademoiselle Elaine" was strikingly like Miss Patria Channing. The woman had a dancing partner known as "Monsieur Edouard." The two resided at the same theatrical hotel. Recently Edouard had been drinking rather too much, and Elaine had broken with him because of that fact. He had persisted, however, in haunting the scene of her nightly exhibitions, making himself a general nuisance there. On this particular night he had raised violent objection to Elaine's conversing with two gentlemen of a foreign habit, both unknown to deponents. To get rid of him Elaine had taken the foreign-seeming gentlemen to her dressing room. In her absence Patria had entered the restaurant. In his befuddled state, it was assumed, Edouard had mistaken her for Elaine and had determined to kidnap her. His plan frustrated by Parr's interference, he had returned to the hotel only long enough to pack a handbag and change his clothes. Curiously enough Elaine had elected to disappear in much the same manner. She had decamped, leaving no address.

It was not until late the following afternoon that he found cause to revise this opinion.

Later while on the point of leaving his rooms to board the Sound steamer on which Patria and Mrs. Adair were to journey to Newport, Parr was arrested on a warrant charging him with assault and battery on the person of one Jules Edouard.

She Was Lifted and Thrown Bodily Athwart the Rail.

Protestations and credentials alike availed Captain Parr nothing. He was without choice other than to accompany the detectives who served the warrant. And by the time a brief talk with a magistrate had set him free (the complainant in the case being nowhere to be found) he had missed his boat.

He did not for an instant doubt his arrest had been deliberately planned in order to prevent his accompanying Miss Channing.

But it was too late to do more than send her a wireless explaining what had detained him, promising to be with her in Newport the next morning, and warning her to be on her guard.

Patria wandered uneasily, unhappily, about the decks long after the majority of passengers had sought their staterooms.

Even after midnight Patria lingered—on deck, rather than return to the stuffiness of her stateroom.

Resting her forearm on the rail, she stared blindly into the clear darkness of a moonlight night.

A light footfall started Patria out of the somberest of reveries.

Without the least warning a thick soft cloth, like a heavy woolen bandage, enveloped Patria's head.

She essayed to scream, and the folds of cloth settled between her teeth, well-nigh choking her.

Other hands seized her legs. She fought desperately, in blind panic, to no avail. Relentlessly she was lifted and thrown bodily athwart the rail.

Then she was free of the hands, but hurtling down the side of the ship.

Shouting waters leaped to receive her. She went under, came up strangling, then let the waves have their will of her while she fought to free her head of the bandage.

By the time this had been accomplished she was far astern.

In the stateroom adjoining that occupied by Fanny Adair, a woman in nurse's garb consulted a wrist watch, then nodded brusquely to a girl who stood supporting herself with both hands on the foot of a brass bedstead—a girl whose eyes, watching the nurse, were as the eyes of Patria Channing, wide with fright, even as the rest of her was Patria Channing to this life.

"You'd best shift now," said the nurse with a nod toward the forward stateroom. "In two minutes more"—she grinned grimly—"I'm going to whoop and carry on about your suicide!"

With a short, dry gasp of terror and disgust, the girl who looked like Patria tore herself away from the bed and reeled out to the deck.

The door to the next stateroom was open. The light within silhouetted the form of Mrs. Adair—Fanny with ghastly face and every limb trembling beneath her frivolous silken negligee.

Blindly the girl stumbled in and shut the door and put her back to it.

For a moment the two stared at each other with eyes of horror.

Then Fanny gasped one word: "Elaine!"

The other interrupted with passionate protest informing her in tremulous accents:

"Don't call me Elaine! Don't you dare. I'm Patria Channing—don't you understand, I'm Patria Channing now? We—we're both guilty—guilty as sin—and you've got to stand by me!"

My Big Bass Drum and Little Old Horn

My "Big Bass Drum" nor my "Little Old Horn" have never been pounded or tooted through the columns of this paper before as to the business that I have done since my residence in Princess Anne, but the office force has been very busy at times getting out fine instruments of instruction in the way of illustrated catalogues and photographic post cards of special farm bargains, which have found their way into the hands of farm buyers in every State in the Union.

Cuts of Meat and Calorific Value.

The kind or cut of meat used does not usually make much difference in the full or calorific value.

There is a popular belief that porterhouse steak and other choice cuts of beef represent the highest forms of nourishment to be obtained. This is, however, a misconception. The full value of brisket or ribs of beef, as well as mutton and lamb, exceeds the much desired tenderloin steak.

According to Langworthy, expert in charge of nutrition investigation of the United States department of agriculture, "for all practical, everyday purposes it may be considered that the protein obtained from a given weight of meat differs very little either with the kind of meat or the cut."

Speak to the Horse.

The human voice has more or less marked influence on all animals. In managing horses especially the voice is of the greatest use. It should be quiet and, though confident and masterful, not loud and boisterous. No one should ever touch a horse without at the same time speaking to it.

Love and Strife.

A truth love and strife were aforetime and shall be, nor ever, methinks, will boundless time be emptied of that pair. And they prevail in turn as the circle comes round and pass away before one another and increase in their appointed time.—Empedocles.

Near to Treason.

Misprision of treason is an expression rarely heard in this country, but it has a very definite meaning in the laws of the United States. It consists in concealing the treasonable acts of others and is classed as a crime not much less than treason itself. It may be committed by citizens of the country or aliens who enjoy the protection of American law.

They Sang It Again.

Florence Howe Hall describes in her book, "The Story of the Battle Hymn of the Republic," a scene in 1864 in the house of representatives at a meeting of the Christian commission, at which President Lincoln was present and an immense audience filled the hall. Chaplain McCabe sang the Battle Hymn by request. Men and women sprang to their feet, wept and shouted and joined in the song. Lincoln, with the tears rolling down his cheeks and a strange glory lighting his face, cried out, "Sing it again!" and the great multitude, led by Chaplain McCabe, sang it through again.

Banishing the Avalanches.

Along the side of an Alpine railroad an ingenious device is used to prevent avalanches from falling upon the track. A wall was built which intercepts the sliding snow and forces it to precipitate itself in a leap whereby it clears the roadbed and hurls itself into a canal upon the other side.

Practical Value.

"Has your college education been of any practical value to you?"
"You bet it has! If it wasn't for my experiences in track athletics I'd have to leave my house five minutes earlier every morning in order to catch the 7:58," replied the commuter.—St. Louis Republic.

Took the Count.

"Bobby, you have been fighting with that Stapleton boy again. Did you count ten before you struck him, as I have always told you to do?"
"No, but I was told that somebody counted ten after he landed on me."—Chicago Tribune.

Try a Laugh.

The man who laughs "fit to kill" need have no fear of tuberculosis. A real, hearty, rib tickling guffaw is better than a yawn for emptying the lowest passages of the lungs.

To some the past gives only regret, the present sorrow, the future fear.—Lambert.

Are You One of Them?

There are a great many people who would be very much benefited by taking Chamberlain's Tablets for a weak or disordered stomach. Are you one of them? Mrs. M. R. Searl, Baldwinville, N. Y., relates her experience in the use of these tablets: "I had a bad spell with my stomach about six months ago, and was troubled for two or three weeks with gas and severe pains in the pit of my stomach. Our druggist advised me to take Chamberlain's Tablets. I took a bottle home and the first dose relieved me wonderfully, and I kept on taking them until I was cured." These tablets do not relieve pain, but after the pain has been relieved may prevent its recurrence.

BEST OF ALL ASSETS.

Character It Is That Wins the Great Battles of Life.

"God Almighty hates a quitter," said Tom Reed of Maine. "The nation roared applause from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the lakes to the Gulf for the virile vigor of this rough expression of manhood. The sentiment is one of perennial value."

But what makes the man who does not know when he is defeated and fights to the finish, be the finish his or his opponent's? Is it not character, and is not character at bottom only the moral equivalent of stalwart backbone?

The quitter fails, and fails because he lacks the force of character, the strength of will, which sees possibilities beyond capacities and regards obstacles as incentives. The fight which is worth attempting at all is the fight which deserves to be fought through. "It's dogged as does it," as when Heenan said to Sayers: "Now, Tummy, lad, 'tis thou or I," and he won the last round and the match.

There was character. It may not have been ideal character. It certainly was not character in its highest expression. But it was the sum of the man's whole personality. All the power of him, all the pith and punch of invincible determination, went into the winning of his fight. The bulldog shows the same strength of will when he lets himself be choked or cut to pieces rather than let go his grip on the other dog's jugular.

It is this readiness to be killed, if need be, if one cannot best one's adversary, which wins the battle of life for men and the wars of nations for their existence. Such a readiness is a form of character and the product, whether aware or unaware, of a fight to achieve character. It is the reaction of the spirit to the long working of life and circumstances upon the raw and plastic ore of human nature.

Make money, then, and do so honorably. Get understanding for the sake of social service as well as your own growth. Win power over men through right methods of approach and appeal. But with all your getting and gains achieve character above all.

Nothing can take the place of character. It knows of no substitute. Cleverness, cunning and shrewdness are paper money. Character is the gold which alone gives them value. Pierpont Morgan rated character above collateral as security for loans and credit. Character is the best of all assets.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Do It Skillfully.

"You are lying so clumsily," said the observant judge to a litigant who was making a dubious statement of his case, "that I would advise you to get a lawyer."—San Francisco Star.

FOR HEAVY HAULING

PRICE—
2 ton, $390
3 ton, $570
5 ton, $750

Any model, with the proper engine and body, will haul twice its rated capacity.

County Agents Wanted—Agency for Knox Traction Unit will be a money maker for a live wire man familiar with heavy hauling conditions. If you can devote your time to this, we can make you an attractive proposition.

The Knox Traction Unit combines any used or new pleasure car or truck with any horse-drawn wagon and forms a modern tractor-truck of 2 to 5 tons capacity. Almost any touring car or runabout chassis answers perfectly for the power plant of the outfit. Any horse-drawn truck (stake-body, platform body, lumber wagon, farm wagon, bottom dump body or hay wagon, etc.), answers perfectly for the load carrier.

The traction unit itself consists of a complete internal gear-driven rear-axle, with its wheels, tires, brakes, torque-arms, springs, and rocking steel-plate turn-table, together with the necessary flange for connecting with the drive shaft of the car used. It is a simple matter for us, or for any other garage or machine shop or blacksmith shop, to remove the body of your car back of the driver's seat, remove the whole rear axle with its springs, slide the traction unit in place, clamp it to the frame of the machine and connect up the drive shaft and the brake rods. You then have the equal in capacity and performance of a $2000 to $5000 outfit and it has cost you merely a second hand automobile and the time of attaching the traction unit, which sells for $390, $570, or $750, depending upon the capacity of the outfit you wish. We can give immediate delivery on the 2 ton and 3 ton sizes. The 2 ton are made to be attached to Fords, Chevrolets, Maxwells, small Buicks etc. The 3 ton capacity is for attachment to larger cars such as are used for 7 passenger touring purposes.

Our used car department has for sale many thoroughly tested and reliable cars at prices from a few hundred dollars up. These cars can easily be used with the Knox traction unit and thus equipped will successfully deliver reliable truck service, day in and day out, for many years. Housewives' motto for July: Eat all you can. Can what you can't.

Considering the shortage of farm help, a disproportionate amount of muscle is being used in swinging hammocks.

A convincing evidence of the fertility of the soil is given by the weeds which many of the gardeners are raising.

A few dollars to the Red Cross looks like a very generous gift to the man who hasn't any boy who can be drafted.

After a food speculator has made a million or two he feels quite patriotic to be the owner of one or two Liberty bonds.

The people who complain because the newspapers don't publish the news, are usually the ones who kick if their names are put in the paper.

Among the conscientious objectors is the boy who feels it his duty to celebrate July Fourth in spite of the paternal call to the hayfield.

It is amazing how the patriotism of the July Fourth celebrators is stimulated when they find out that some one is disturbed by the noise.

Everyone should do his bit, but that does not necessarily mean getting up at 5 a. m. to mow the lawn while your neighbors try to sleep.

The American army is expected to knock the wind out of the Germans and the American aviators to knock the Germans out of the wind.

Some people are so constituted that the first thing suggested by their country's peril is that they can get high prices for the necessities they have to sell.

The married men can't enlist because they have their wives to take care of, and their wives can't go as nurses because they have their husbands to look after.

After wondering why a destroyer can't spot a submarine hiding in 1000 square miles of sea water, some of our men have to get their wives help them locate their Sunday shirt in the bureau drawer.

Some of the gardeners spend their spare time explaining to the neighbors how the unfavorable weather is going to prevent their raising a crop, while others get busy with the hoe and save the garden.

Isn't it a pity that the women who are making such fools of themselves at Washington cannot be dealt with as would law violators of the other sex? It is unpatriotic, much less disrespectful to our Chief Executive.

JULY FOURTH IN WAR TIMES

For the first time since the Civil war, the United States must celebrate its birthday in a war period threatening the very life of the nation. The Spanish war covered the July Fourth period but it was comparatively but a toy conflict.

From all over the country there come reports of different July Fourth plans. It is manifestly inopportune to burn up good powder that later will be needed to discharge at the Germans. Also in time of high cost of food and war taxes, it is not wise to burn up any buildings in July Fourth fires.

The fact that the owners of these buildings are insured is immaterial. Some one has to pay for insurance. We all settle the bill in the cost of our policies, and if we rent houses we pay in the landlord's bill. Furthermore, a general free-for-all for bonfires would give opportunity to the spies and plotters who are looking for a chance to destroy something. Give the firemen a rest for once. They have worried over the July Fourth risks ever since they were on the job.

With so much real sorrow coming, it is not necessary to play war by killing off or maiming any of our children with toy pistols or giant fire crackers. Our patriotism can be equally well displayed by working in the garden, buying Liberty bonds, etc.

It is just the time for old time rousements that shall stir up American spirit. Let us hear about the heroes of the old wars who gave their lives for the liberty we are now trying to defend. These exercises should depend on volunteer effort so far as possible, which is amply available for a demonstration of patriotic feeling.

CONTROL OF THE AIR

If the United States wants to do something right off quick to help end the war, it should not rest content with the tardy training of troops to show up in a year from now. It should get busy on the big air fleet that the war department is calling for.

Aeroplanes are the one part of war machinery that can be put together on short notice. The great number of automobile factories provide us a complete equipment for airplane manufacture. The American people can use their own old pleasure cars a year longer if necessary, so that a big air fleet can be created.

It would revolutionize conditions on the French front. With the German airman overpowered, their artillery would shoot blindfolded. They would have to depend on long distance observation from the rear, which is out of date. Fire thus directed can often be dodged.

A big American fleet could secure control of the air and there is no limit to the damage it could do. Conditions behind the lines could be made as perilous as the trenches, and Fritz would feel like turning tail for the Rhine. Give 'em the money, Congress.

AN UNPLEASANT RECORD

The Legislature which has just adjourned has presented anything but an edifying spectacle to the people of Maryland. With the country at war the people had a right to expect that its Legislative representatives would forget party and personal interests and co-operate heartily in the emergency work which rendered the call for an extra session necessary. Instead, the session has been marked by partisan and factional squabbling, which in the circumstances has been simply disgraceful. And it has culminated in the refusal of the House of Delegates to give the right to vote to those citizens who, of all others, are deserving of the highest consideration—the men who are away from home fighting for their country.

It isn't necessary to go into the details of factional politics in the State in order to locate the responsibility for this unpleasant performance. Governor Harrington and the State administration may be no better inherently than those who have opposed them at Annapolis. But the simple fact is that the Governor and the able members of the State Council of National Defense who have cooperated with him prepared a rational, comprehensive program of war legislation, a program in which there was little that could be reasonably objected to, and that the combination of partisan and factional enemies which had control of the House opposed certain features of it for political reasons and none other.

The main body of this program was so utterly unobjectionable and so obviously essential that even these obstructionists were forced to assent to it and enact it into law. For that, we suppose, the people should be thankful. And they can be thankful that the Legislature has at length adjourned. But in spite of their tendency to forget political misbehavior quickly we think they should place in their book of memory the names of the misrepresentative representatives who in time of war showed that they placed their political and personal interests above the interests of their country.—Baltimore Sun.

Cause of Despondency

Despondency is often caused by indigestion and constipation, and quickly disappears when Chamberlain's Tablets are taken. These tablets strengthen the digestion and move the bowels.

Non-Perishable Foodstuffs Needed

The great need in crop production at this time, say those who are familiar with the world's food crisis, is in non-perishable foodstuffs—crops that enter into world trade and may be shipped or stored without danger of damage. These include especially the grains. Next to these come crops that may be stored for winter's use or may be canned, preserved or dried. Among these are potatoes and other root crops, also peas, beans, corn and the various fruits.

Young Men Wanted For Hospital Corps

Sixty-four young men from the various sections of the State, exclusive of Baltimore City, have enlisted in the United States Navy since the beginning of the second recruiting campaign. These results, the Navy recruiting authorities of the State maintain, show that Maryland still holds its preference for the country's Aquatic Arm of Defense.

Lieutenant M. A. Leahy, officer-in-charge of the Maryland district, is anxious at this time to receive applicants for the Hospital Corps of the Navy. There is still an urgent need for young men in this branch of the naval service. Accepted applicants for this branch of the service are enlisted as hospital apprentices, second class, and their salary starts at $55.90 per month; $15 per month having recently been added to the salary as an extra compensation in time of war.

The opportunities for promotion in the Hospital Corps of the Navy are exceptional, and any ambitious young man going into the service at this time can soon rise to the warrant rank of pharmacist, ranking with an ensign in the Navy.

Full particulars of enlistments can be obtained from the nearest postmaster; directly from the Navy Recruiting Substations at Cumberland and Hagerstown.

They Also Serve Who Stay Behind

The following article is furnished us by Mrs. L. A. Oates, who is untiring in her efforts in getting the women of the county interested in preparedness and Red Cross work:

It is a very gratifying fact that the women of Somerset county are working with earnest purpose and great energy to aid the country in this hour of her need. It is the women of the world who are looked to for service and sacrifice and for ministering to the sick and needy.

Mrs. Mabel T. Boardman, former president of the National Red Cross Society, says: "It is not enough that we sew and make bandages, serve in hospitals and care for the women and children the men will leave behind them. You can't make bricks without straw, you can't make sheets without sheeting nor bandages without gauze. We must not only make things, but we must give out a sense that no generosity can be commensurate with the sacrifice of life American men are prepared to make."

We women of Somerset county are giving our money and work generously. We are working to get others to give their money, knowing that it is all the government can do to house and clothe the soldiers and we, through the Red Cross, must add the comforts, little luxuries and diversions our boys have been accustomed to at home. Some of our girls are fitting themselves for service as telegraph operators, typewriters, etc. We are proud to say that we have even a graduate woman ambulance driver and nurses aid in the county. The colored people are to have a part in this work also. Under the Woman's Preparedness and Survey Commission eight stations have been selected as headquarters for Red Cross and food conservation circles. Earnest and enthusiastic meetings have been held and the women are engaging themselves to make jams and jellies, bandages and hospital supplies for the army, and to knit helmets, scarfs and sweaters for the navy. They will do any service possible as the struggle goes on. May the brave men be braver, the self-sacrificing women more self-sacrificing.

Vivid Account of New Victory

TORPEDO DID NOT EXPLODE

Shells From American Steamship Reach Mark and Submarine Fails to Resurface.

The captain of an American steamship just arrived at an Atlantic port, reported that he believed the steamship had sunk a U-boat on June 4, when two days out from Liverpool.

Beyond this statement the captain would give no further information.

A statement written by the wireless man of the steamship said:

"We discharged our cargo at Liverpool and left for our homeward voyage on June 13. We were running at night without lights. The guns were cleared for action, but we hoped we would be as lucky going back as we were going over."

"We saw one submarine on June 4.
One British ship, her wireless call was T. L. O., her name was not listed in the international radio stations of the world—sent a signal of distress, which we picked up. She reported she was attacked by a submarine."

"The British ship was exchanging shots with the submarine for about a half hour. When they reported by wireless the submarine had submerged."

"I heard S O S from another British vessel—the Manchester Port. She reported she was being attacked by a submarine. She was fighting at close range. After twenty minutes of hard fighting the submarine again submerged and the Manchester Port at 6.18 o'clock P. M., wireless she was O K and not damaged."

"We could plainly see the shells from these British vessels as they dropped, but could not see the submarines with whom they were fighting."

"After the second unsuccessful attempt to sink the two ships we considered we were apparently out of danger."

"We were on a zig-zag course and making full speed when the lookout sighted a life boat. We steered to see what was in it. It was empty."

"About twenty minutes after passing the empty lifeboat, one of the gunners sighted a torpedo headed straight for us. He shouted to the bridge.
Here she comes. Torpedo port side."

"The chief officer, who was on the bridge, shouted to the quartermaster, Hard starboard. We swung off. The torpedo had a red head about sixteen inches in diameter. She was about ten feet long. The torpedo struck us on the port side a glancing blow amid-ship right near the engine room."

"Our ship was empty and we all thought she had exploded from the terrible noise she made when she hit."

"Simultaneously the ship's whistle blew short and successive blasts, which was the signal to abandon ship
and man the lifeboats."

"I sent out a signal of distress, which was picked up by the Manchester Port."

"I was then ordered to my position in the starboard boat."

"The captain who had remained on the ship, found the torpedo had failed to explode. All hands were then ordered back on ship. We were lying perfectly still for at least an hour."

"When the commander of the submarine saw our crew coming back from the life boats and climbing upon deck he immediately gave up his chase
for two other British merchant ships and started for us again. The submarine was about 2000 yards off our starboard."

"Suddenly came the command, 'man
the guns.'"

"The gun crew scrambled to the deck. They ran fore and aft to their respective positions. The chief gunner gave them their ranges from the bridge."

"When about 600 yards off our starboard quarter a shell from our forward gun hit her and she submergued. Again she appeared and our after-gun hit her and blew away her periscope. Another shot from our forward gun fell right on top of her. There was a shower of black specks, which rose high in the air, followed by a great commotion, bubbles of water and a light blue smoke arising from the stern of the U-boat, where a second before had been the eyes of our enemy."

"Our crew, which was lined up against the starboard-rail watching the battle, gave a hearty American cheer
when the submarine disappeared."

"Nineteen shots in all were fired which is the secretary of the navy's military salute."

ARE MAKING USE OF LAND BANK

Maryland Farmers Organizing Loan Associations.

STEPS TO TAKE

Aid Of County Demonstration Agents
Can Be Secured In Organization.

College Park, July 5.—In co-operation with the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore, the Extension Service of the Maryland State College of Agriculture, through its county demonstration agents, has begun a campaign of education, with a view of making the farmers of Maryland better acquainted with the Federal Farm Loan Act and its uses.

It has been recognized from the beginning that the farmer would be slow to take hold of the idea of a new kind of banking institution; and that especial efforts would have to be made to arouse popular interest in the organization of the Farm Loan Associations in the various counties. In order to accomplish these ends, the Extension Service has just published Bulletin No. 4, entitled, "The Federal Farm Loan Act and The Farmer," by F. B. Bomberger, Assistant Director.

This bulletin is designed to present in simple language such directions and explanations as will enable any group of farmers, who desire to borrow money upon the security of their farm lands, to proceed step by step in the organization of a National Farm Loan Association, and actually to do the things necessary to be done in order to receive from the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore, the loans which they may desire in order to finance their farming operations.

The bulletin explains the purposes of the law and furnishes the general outlines of the Farm Loan System.
Then follow the successive steps necessary to be followed in the formation of the organization. Blank forms of organization, provided by the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore, are printed in the bulletin in order to make very explicit exactly how the association is to be formed and how it is to proceed
after it has been organized.

In discussing the scope of territory to be included in any one association, it is pointed out that the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore, recommends that the county be made the unit of organization, and that the Secretary-Treasurer be located at the county seat where the records of the county will be readily available.

Any ten farmers who desire to borrow an aggregate amount of $10,000
may form an association, although it is desirable to have more than ten in the initial organization. A farm may borrow any sum from $100 to $10,000.

After a charter has been granted to the original association, any farmer of the county must borrow through the county association.

An interesting feature of the System is that each borrower must become a member of the County Association by investing five per cent. of the proceeds of his loan in the stock of the Association. This stock will participate in the earnings of the Association and the amount invested in the stock will be returned to the borrower when his loan is paid off.

All loans run for the period of thirty-six years, but the borrower may pay off the loan at any time after five years. An interesting feature of the system is the fact that the borrower is required to pay an annual installment of one per cent. on the principal in addition to the interest. Thus, at present the loans bear interest at five per cent. and by adding one per cent.,
making a total of six per cent. per year, the loan is fully paid off in thirty-six years.

The advantages inherent in this system of long term loans, with low rate of interest and the privilege of paying off the principal of the loan in annual installments of only one per cent., should make it very attractive to farmers who want to borrow money upon their farm land. These features remove the dangers that have heretofore attended the borrowing of money upon short term mortgages and do away with the expense of making new mortgages and securing new loans.

THE HOME GARDEN.

College Park, July 5.—Maryland farmers are taking especial pains with their home gardens this year. They are aiming to keep up a constant and sufficient supply of vegetables for their own use and for their local markets.
They are accomplishing this purpose
by adopting a rotation of garden crops that will keep every foot of garden soil busy during the growing season. In a bulletin recently issued by the Maryland Agricultural Extension Service, S. B. Shaw, specialist in Horticulture, says: "The systematic rotation of farm crops has been advocated for a number of years, the principal end in view being an improvement of soil fertility. A well planned rotation of garden crops brings about this same result and, in addition, accomplishes two other purposes. It affords a greater amount of food supplies for a longer period of time, and, to a certain extent, it aids in the control of certain insects and diseases."

Train Runs Down Guardsman.

Samuel Barnes, of Yorkville, Pa., a private in the Thirtieth regiment was run down by a Lackawanna freight train while doing guard duty at the Kingsley viaduct on the Lackawanna railroad, near Soranton, Pa.
viaduct on the Lackawanna railroad.
He suffered a crushed right foot.

Admiral Potter Dies Suddenly.

Rear Admiral William P. Potter, U. S. N., retired, died suddenly at his home in Whitehall, N. Y., of apoplexy. He was sixty-seven years old and was placed on the navy's retired list in May, 1912.

BAD BACKS BRING SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

Many Princess Anne People Deprived of Needful Sleep by a Sore, Aching Back

There is little peace or rest for the backache sufferer. Night brings no re-pite from the day's misery—the same old backache is ever present, the sharp twinges when turning or twisting. The annoying urinary troubles, the headaches and nervousness, all tend to prevent rest or sleep. You often arise more tired than when you went to bed.
If you have kidney trouble you must get to the cause—the kidneys. Weak kidneys seldom get well alone. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that is so strongly endorsed by your friends and neighbors in Princess Anne. Could you desire more convincing proof of merit?

W. T. Gibbons, farmer, Route No. 4, Princess Anne, says: "I was troubled with backache and mornings I felt tired out on account of losing a lot of sleep.
When I sat down and tried to get up, pains shot through me like a knife thrust. My kidneys were too active, causing me to get up at night. The kidney secretions were highly colored and I was in a bad way in general. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Jones' drug store, and after using two boxes, I was rid of kidney trouble."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Gibbons

Hints to Milliners.

"No successful milliner can work alone," says a milliner in the American Magazine. "If she does her hats will come to have a sameness year after year that will lose her patrons. If she cannot go to Paris she must visit shops, such as mine is at present, and see as many smart people as possible.
This is a fact generally recognized by all good shops. Those in the middle west and far west who cannot send their representatives abroad send them to New York instead, and the smaller milliner who cannot afford even this must keep up with the smartest people in her own town and the nearest large cities and even supplement this by the smart trade magazines."

Grow Rhubarb In Your Cellar.

To cultivate a fine specimen of rhubarb
you do not need any garden at all, but just a corner of a cellar and an old barrel or deep box.

Bore a dozen holes in the sides of your barrel for ventilation and a few in the bottom for drainage. Then place in it a layer of cinders about two inches deep and cover this with ordinary garden soil. Now plant your roots side by side, and cover them with another layer of earth.

Water them occasionally and keep the top of the barrel covered with a piece of carpet—Pearson's Weekly.

"Is It Safe?"

The Great Western railway, as part of its "safety" movement for the pre-

has issued a token which it is hoped will remind railway servants to think before taking action. The token, which is of brass and the size of a penny, bears the words, "In every action ask yourself, 'Is it safe?' This will disclose unseen dangers, inspire forethought, induce care and prevent accidents." On the reverse side of the token is the inscription, "A charm against accidents. 'Is it safe?'—Lon-

"Consider The Lilies of The Field, How They Grow"

The life of the lily is but a few weeks or months.
The life of man is "three score years and ten."
But to live one's life in its fullness, women like the lily, must be nourished by those same vital elements which nature provides for nourishing every living thing; and these include the valuable phosphates so often lacking in the usual food we eat today. Argo-Phosphate is rich in these wonderful elements. It contains them in concentrated tablet form which is easy to take and quickly assimilated and absorbed into the system, and from youth to old age, builds and rebuilds body and brain in beautiful harmony with Nature's perfect plan.
That's why Argo-Phosphate makes good solid flesh and muscles.

SPECIAL NOTICE: Argo-Phosphate contains the Natural phosphate which thousands of physicians are prescribing daily to build up thin, pale colorless women to give them rosy cheeks, red lips, and a beautiful complexion. Many cases have been reported where women have increased their weight from 15 to 25 pounds with a few weeks treatment, and any woman who desires a well-rounded and developed form, should secure from her druggist,
this new drug which is inexpensive and is dispensed by any reliable druggist with or without a doctor's prescription. If your druggist will not supply you, send $1.00 to the Argo Laboratories, 10

you a two weeks treatment by return mail.

Pride and Wealth.
Wealth built a splendid mansion and invited Pride to inspect it. Pride came gladly, but found fault with the house and everything in it, from cellar to sareet.

"Why," said he, "Competence has as good carpets and furniture, and Well-to-do has more costly draperies and pictures and a much more elegant main staircase. Furthermore, I see you have consulted Convenience in regard to some of the arrangements, and this I can construe only as a bitter insult to myself."

To placate Pride, Wealth sold his house for a fraction of its value and built a far more costly one. This time Luxury and not Convenience was consulted, and the result pleased Pride so well that he took up permanent quarters in the mansion. He invited in his comrades, Vanity, Ostentation and Prodigality. Wealth was the only one who could not see that the house he had paid for belonged, not to himself, but to Pride.

cupies.—Pearson's.

Watering Plants Drop by Drop.
Lucien Daniel, a French botanist, has made some experiments with cabbages, chicory, lettuce, etc., which prove that they thrive far better by a system of continuous watering than by drenching
the soil thoroughly every other day.
The new method, which is simplicity itself, depends upon the law of capillary attraction. As presented to the Academy of Sciences in Paris it consists of placing near each plant a large mouthed jar containing water, in which is dipped one end of a strip of linen or cotton whose other end lies near the plant. Mr. Daniel determined the exact amount of water required by any given plant for its best development and proved that in general this uninterrupted supply of water, drop by drop, gave infinitely better results than the usual method of intermittent drenching and with a minimum expenditure of water.—Literary Digest.

Embroidery Designs.
Here are suggestions for transferring the embroidery design before you to any material:
Perhaps the easiest way is the "win-dowpane" method. This is successful
when the material is thin, like linen, batiste, etc. Pin the sheet of paper and the material together and hold them up against the glass of a window. With a sharp pencil draw on the material the design, which can be easily seen through the glass. If one-half of the design is given upon the paper and the other half upon the fabric.

If you have carbon paper you should place the sheet between the fabric and the newspaper. The latter is on top.
With a sharp pencil go over the outline of the design. The impression will be left in fine lines and will last until worked.—Exchange.

USE OF SPRAY MIXTURES URGED

Will Greatly Lessen Losses From Plant Diseases.

MUST BE PROPERLY MIXED

Some Practical Directions Given For Preparing Lime-Sulphur and Bordeaux Mixtures.

College Park, June 23.—Every producer of farm and truck crops affected by plant diseases is taking unusual precautions to prevent the appearance and spread of disease. Fortunately, most diseases can be prevented or checked by two or three simple spray mixtures that can be prepared and applied by the grower. In a warning issued by the Maryland Agricultural Extension Service, through its county demonstration agents, C. E.
Temple, State Plant Pathologist, gives some most practical directions regarding the home preparation of spray mixtures. Prof. Temple says: "Every year, thousands of dollars worth of food materials in our State are destroyed by plant diseases and insects.
This great loss can be cut down at a relatively small cost by the use of approved precautionary methods, such as the selection of seed free from disease,
the rotation of crops and the spraying for both diseases and insects."

"Directions for making the more important fungicides are given below:

Self-Boiled Lime-Sulphur.

"This material is used for the control of rot and scab on stone fruits,
such as peaches, plums and cherries.
It is composed of:

"Flowers of Sulphur (finely ground) 8
pounds.

"Stone Lime of good quality 8
pounds.

"Water, 50 gallons.

"To make this spray material, start the lime to slaking in a fifty-gallon container with a little water, using hot water if the lime acts slowly. As soon as the lime begins to slake rapidly, add the sulphur and stir continuously. Add just enough water from time to time to keep the mixture in the form of a thin paste and to allow the mixture to boil violently from three to five minutes. At the end of this time, fill the container with cold water so as to prevent any further action of the lime. The mixture is now ready to strain into the spray tank. Larger quantities may be made in the case of commercial orchardists, but greater care will be required to prevent the mixture from becoming too hot, in which case the sulphur will be dissolved and there will be a red scum formed on the surface after the mixture has been allowed to stand for a few minutes. This red material will injure the foliage and fruits of peaches and plums. When applying this spray, good agitation is essential.

"As a substitute for this home-made spray material atomic sulphur, which is a commercial product, may be used at the rate of five pounds to 50 gallons of water.

Concentrated Lime-Sulphur.

"This material is usually purchased in the concentrated form which usually tests 32 to 34 degrees Baume scale. This solution when diluted to one part to 40 parts of water, makes a good fungicide for spraying apples, pears and quinces for various fungous diseases.

Bordeaux Mixture.

"This is the standard spray for truck crops, potatoes, tomatoes, grapes
and for apples in the case of bitter rot and blotch. The material is made from:

"Copper Sulphate (Bluestone), 4
pounds.

"Stone Lime of good quality, 4
pounds.

"Water, 50 gallons.
"In making the spray material dissolve the bluestone by suspending it in a bag near the surface of a few gallons of water contained in a wooden or earthen vessel. Slake the lime and add several gallons of water so as to make milk of lime. Strain the bluestone solution into the spray tank and add enough water to make from 20 to 30 gallons. Then strain the milk of lime into the barrel, agitating the mixture vigorously. Add water to make 50 gallons and use immediately.
The secret in making good Bordeaux is to have the bluestone and the milk of lime fairly well diluted before putting them together and then while they are being brought together they should be stirred continuously. If concentrated solutions are put together, a very poor grade of Bordeaux is the result.

"Stock solutions may be made by dissolving bluestone the rate of one pound per gallon of water. Slake the lime and dilute to one pound to the gallon. These will keep indefinitely if kept separate, but they should be covered to keep the water from evaporating. When using them, mix according to the formula above. Prepared Bordeaux, both dry and paste,
is on the market and may be substituted for the home-made mixture. Consult your County Demonstration Agent regarding the details of preparing any of the above mixtures.

HIGH EGG PRICES NOT UNREASONABLE

Advance In Cost of Whole Grain Must Be Met.

MASH MIXTURES CHEAPEST

Poultrymen Of the State Must Meet Changed Conditions.

College Park, Md., June 21.—Although egg prices are nearly double what they were a year ago, the cost of grain feeds has advanced even more and poultrymen are facing failure unless cheaper feeds can be made use of.
Poultryman Roy H. Waite, of the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station, in a circular to the poultrykeepers of the State, calls attention to the change in price levels and urges the adoption of mash feeding. Mr. Waite says:

"In June, 1914, eggs were 10 cents a dozen, according to the quotations of a Baltimore commission man. In June, 1917, they were quoted at 36 cents a dozen, an advance of 90 per cent. since the war began.

"This is the part the consumer sees,
and he is all too prone to judge that he is being held up by the poultry raisers, packers, or middlemen. He does not come in contact with the increased cost of feed.

"In June, 1914, a Baltimore wholesale feed dealer quoted wheat at $1.07 per bushel. In June, 1917, he quotes wheat at $2.70 per bushel, 152 per cent. increase. Long ago the poultry raisers who keep books gave us the use of whole wheat as a feed for poultry.

"In June, 1914, corn was quoted at 89 cents a bushel. In June, 1917, it is quoted at $1.91 a bushel, 114 per cent.
advance. Where does the poultry raiser get his profit with his 90 per cent. increase in the price of eggs?
There is only one thing for him to do.
He cannot boost the price of eggs,
and he cannot bring down the price of corn and wheat; the only thing he can do is to substitute a cheaper ration, if he can find one. Just at present there seems to be an avenue of escape from the excessive high cost of feeds in the use of mill by-products.

"Bran, in June, 1914, sold at $1.40 per bushel. In June, 1917, it is quoted at $2.15, an advance of 54 per cent.
Middlings, in June, 1914, were quoted at $1.49. In June, 1917, they are quoted at $2.45, an advance of 65 per cent. These two products are the best part of the wheat for feeding purposes,
and by making extensive use of them
poultrymen can replace their wheat and still get a feed that will help bring down their total cost somewhere near a place where they can make a normal profit.

"Meat scrap, a poultry feed which in normal times is much the most expensive, has only advanced about 40 per cent. If one will combine bran, middlings, and beef scrap into a mash
and feed it liberally, along with corn
as a scratch feed, he will get a ration that has advanced about 85 per cent.
since 1914, or approximately the same advance as eggs."

CONTROLLING INSECT ATTACKS.

College Park, June 21.—In the general scheme of crop preparedness, growers are finding it most important to be equipped to control attacks of insects in their crops. Valuable suggestions regarding the use of insecticides are given by E. M. Cory, of the Maryland Agricultural Extension Service. Prof. Cory says:

"Combinations of standard insecticides with standard fungicides will prove more economical than separate sprays of each, while being just as effective and in some cases more effective.

"Arsenate of lead or lime, arsenate
of zinc, or Paris green may be combined with standard fungicides for the control of insects injuring plants by eating portions of the fruit or foliage.
The usual rate for the use of the first three is one pound of the powdered poison to every 50 gallons of spray mixture, or two pounds of the paste form of the poison to the same amount. Paris green is a rather variable compound and should be avoided unless it is impossible to get one of the other poisons. If it is necessary to use it, it should be used at the rate of one-half pound to 50 gallons of spray mixture. In every case the poison should be thoroughly stirred up in a small amount of water before being added to the diluted spray mixture.

"For the control of sucking insects
the tobacco products, such as Black Leaf 40, may be combined with the fungicides. Black Leaf 40 should be used for most insects at the rate of one-half pint to 50 gallons of water.

"Where Black Leaf 40 or the poisons
are to be used without a fungicide, soap at the rate of two pounds to 50 gallons of water should be added to increase the wetting power of the spray. It must be remembered though, that soap and any mixture containing lime are incompatible and are never to be used together.

Keep the cholera away from your hogs. If it comes into your neigh-hood, be ready for it.

What a Great Peril Did

By F. A. MITCHEL

Nothing will suddenly draw people together as danger incurred in company. Men who have stood shoulder to shoulder in battle, men and women who have incurred shipwreck, all who have escaped perils wherein each has stood bravely up in the fight for life, can never meet again without an exchange of heart thrills.

While superintendent of a mine in New Mexico, finding it necessary to descend to a town where we did our banking, I started in an ore wagon drawn by mules. I had hardly got seated before I saw a girl in a short skirt and large felt hat carrying an easel under one arm and a box of paints under the other coming toward me. She said she wished to go down, and I handed her into the seat beside me. She was an artist from the east and had come out to sketch. I little thought that at the journey's end we would be firmly locked in each other's arms and our courtship would have lasted less than half an hour.

We were obliged to pass through a gulch so narrow in parts that there was barely room for a wagon, the rocks rising precipitously on either hand. Through it the creek when it is not dry trickled over sand and stones.
There is a defile on the route about a mile long, and when one enters it there is no possibility of getting out except at one end or the other. By the time we had entered the upper end of this defile we had got acquainted and were chatting gaily.

On turning a bend we noticed some cattle near the lower end of the gulch.
They had been down to drink at one of the little pools in the creek bed, but were getting out as fast as their hoofs would carry them. Our driver uttered an exclamation. Then he pulled up the mules, jumped out and put his ear to the sand.

"A cloudburst!" he cried, white as the snow upon the mountain top, and,
thinking only of saving himself, detached one of the lead mules, sprang on its back and away he went lickety split without so much as giving us another word. I knew what a cloudburst was and that in a short time a wild torrent would be tearing its way along where we were. Jumping from the wagon, I detached two mules and called the one "Hurry!" to the young lady. She knew something was wrong and sprang down beside me.
Without a word I lifted her and put her astride one of the mules. I bethought myself of the whip. I reached for it, then bounded on to the other mule I had loosened, and we galloped away.

I took position behind my companion and lashed the mule on which she rode without cessation. The first sound we heard—and we heard it soon, too—was a low murmur, as of a far distant storm. Then came a sound of the rushing of many waters. I cried to the girl not to look back, but I was too late. She took one glance, what blood was left in her cheeks left them, and she gave a spasmodic grasp at the harness and collar before her. I half thought she would fall, but after the first stroke of terror she recovered herself and never once lost her nerve.

What she saw was a wall of water and sand blocking the gulch and moving toward us with terrible rapidity.
Less frightful would have been the leaps of a hungry lion. It was pushing before it logs, rocks, anything, everything that it found in its way.
There was every chance that we, too,
would in a few minutes be struck by the turbulent mass and become an insensible part of it.

Somewhat I forgot myself in my interest in the girl. It seemed to me that I must save her. It was not that I was brave, but an object made me insensible to fear. I lashed her mule with all my strength and until a mighty roar from behind drowned my voice I yelled. We bounded over rocks without knowing that they were in our way; we jumped over logs that on another occasion would have seemed impossible. We must rely on the agility, the sure footedness of our mules. Every moment I dreaded to see the animal before me go down, but I thanked heaven that our mounts were of that hardy, sure footed species. Nearer came the din. Perhaps we would have been overtaken sooner had not the torrent now and again been for a moment stayed by a sharp bend in the gulch.
Then it would hurl its advance mass against the rock, recoil and recom-mence its downward course.

We reached the mouth of the gulch.
On either hand the ground sloped upward. I yelled to the girl to turn her mule aside, but the din, now only a few yards behind us, drowned my voice. The mules both knew as well as we where safety lay and with scarcely an abatement of speed dashed up the incline, while the horrible monster that had been pursuing us whirled on with a disappointed howl.

When the mule before me stopped I was off my own and beside him just in time to catch the girl as she fell in a faint. I held her in my arms till she came to herself and then burst forth into a torrent of such devotion as I might have used to one I had known and loved for an eternity. We were made one by that frightful torrent.

Years have since passed, but not yet
has either my wife or myself passed beyond waking suddenly in the night by the horror of that mad rushing of waters behind us.

COUNTRY HOMES NEEDED

Children From 1 to 14 Years May Be Saved To State And Nation

Some one has said that the cheapest thing in the world is human life. When war comes, human life becomes of the greatest value—as it should be at all times. In the great cities thousands of children will die this summer for want of good air, good food, good surroundings.

George L. Jones, of the Henry Watson Children's Aid Society, McCoy Hall, Baltimore, believes that if people who live in villages and on farms realized how they could help prevent this waste of child life and at the same time serve their state and nation, or in other words "do their bit," they would write to him on this subject.

There are three classes of these children," he said. "First, those that are not sick but delicate; they need proper food which is impossible in the city because of the high cost of living there. Second, those whose widowed mothers must be away at work all day in factory or shop. Third, those whose fathers have enlisted in the navy or army. There are other classes, of course, but if we could place these three in homes in the country, either for the summer or permanently, it would help us tremendously to solve one of the pressing problems the war has laid upon our society.

"The children range in age from 2 to 14 years. Some were baptized in the Roman Catholic faith and these we prefer to place in Catholic families. Others are Protestant children and these should go into Protestant homes. The society is non-sectarian, but it endeavors always to permit the children it serves to remain in the faith their parents would wish them to follow. We have photographs of many of these children and we can supply exact information of their parentage. I am sure that many families in the state would be glad to welcome one or two of these children, for it means saving them to become useful citizens; whereas if they are not removed from their present surroundings many of them will not survive the long hot summer and those that do, will be less able to fight their way to future positions of usefulness. We are especially anxious to save our children now that war has come. With the sending away of great armies of men, every one should help conserve our children to become strong healthy men and women.

WHY YOU ARE NERVOUS

The nervous system is the alarm system of the human body. In perfect health we hardly realize that we have a network of nerves, but when health is ebbing, when strength is declining, the same nervous system gives the alarm in headaches, tiredness, dreamful sleep, irritability and uncorrected, leads straight to a breakdown. To correct nervousness, Scott's Emulsion is exactly what you should take; its rich nutrient gets into the blood and rich blood feeds the tiny nerve cells while the whole system responds to its refreshing tonic force. It is free from alcohol.

No. 3168 Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate in Westover Election District, Somerset county, Maryland, of which the late Charles A. Maddox died seized and possessed, for the purpose of partition and division among the heirs entitled to the proceeds thereof. The bill in substance states that Charles A. Maddox died on or about the 12th day of May, 1913, seized and possessed of a lot of land located in Westover Election District, Somerset county, Md., containing eight acres of land, more or less, which was conveyed to the said Charles A. Maddox by Peter Fontaine by deed recorded among the land records of Somerset county in Liber S. F. D. No. 54, folio 246, etc., and being so seized and possessed, he died without leaving a widow surviving him, and intestate, and leaving the following as his only children and heirs at law, who are still living and all of whom are over the age of twenty-one years, namely: Charles H. Maddox, unmarried and residing in Chester, Pa.; Artie M. Maddox, who intermarried with Roseanna Maddox, both of whom reside in Somerset county, Md.; John W. Maddox, who intermarried with Rosie Maddox, both of whom reside in Somerset county, Md.; Robert R. Maddox, unmarried and residing in Somerset county, Md.; Laura J. Collins, who intermarried with Ferdinand Collins, both of whom reside in Swarthmore, Pa.; Mary M. Benston, who intermarried with Edgar Benston, both of whom reside in Swarthmore, Pa.; William F. Maddox, who intermarried with Rosa Lee Maddox, both of whom reside in Swarthmore, Pa.; Sabia Heath, who intermarried with Ralph Heath, both of whom reside in Swarthmore, Pa.; Nellie Roseanna Maddox and Sadie C. Maddox, unmarried and residing in Swarthmore, Pa.

That the said real estate is not susceptible of partition without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interest therein, as above stated, and that in order to make division of said interest, it will be necessary that the said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof divided among the parties entitled thereto, according to their respective interests therein.

That all of the said defendants, the said Laura J. Collins and Ferdinand Collins, her husband, Mary M. Benston and Edgar Benston, her husband, William F. Maddox and Rosa Lee Maddox, his wife, Sabia Heath and Ralph Heath, her husband, Levinna Maddox, Nellie Roseanna Maddox and Sadie C. Maddox, are non-residents of this State. It is thereupon this 7th day of June, 1917, ordered by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Somerset county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 11th day of July, next, notice to the said absent defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 27th day of July, next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Total Contributions $2,050

The Princess Anne branch of American Red Cross held a meeting in the Court House last Tuesday afternoon to decide what should be done with the money from the play, amounting to $102.17. After some discussion it was unanimously decided to keep that amount to be used to purchase materials to fill a box with equipment for nine soldiers, the chairman of the various circles to decide just what kind of a box to fill.

It was reported that $2,050 had been raised for the Red Cross by the county, the different contributions being as follows:

Bank of Somerset.....	$ 520.00
Individual contributors through solicitors, etc.....	520.00
Realized from Rummage Sale, Donations, etc.....	376.74

Mrs. L. Thomas Dennis Dead

Mrs. Fannie E. Dennis, widow of the late L. Thomas Dennis, died suddenly at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Elijah Warwick, at Manokin, Somerset county, at an early hour Sunday, July 1st, aged 66 years. Before her marriage she was Miss Fannie E. Williams, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Williams, of Wicomico county.

She is survived by two daughters (Miss Nellie Dennis and Mrs. Elijah Warwick, both of whom reside at Manokin) and four brothers (Messrs. C. T. W. Williams, of Milford, Del., Charles F. R. Frank and Elmer C. Williams, of Salisbury) and one sister (Mrs. James A. Waller, of Hebron, Md.). Funeral services were held at her home in Manokin last Thursday and her remains were taken to Pittsville, where she and her late husband resided for many years.

Fairmount Red Cross Circle

Fairmount has organized a Red Cross Circle with Miss Elizabeth Sudler, chairman; Miss Jetta Pierson, secretary, and Mrs. J. H. Ford, treasurer. The following is a list of those who have become members by paying $1.00 to the treasurer:

Messdames Cooper Tyler, L. T. White, G. E. Dickinson, Harry Branford, B. K. Green, Ernest Cox, Ira Beauchamp, I. T. Ford, S. D. Parks, H. C. Tull, D. T. Miles, Elijah Cox, Frank Robertson, Jeannette Chelton, Mary L. Muir, C. A. Lankford, Josephine Lankford.

Remember The Soldier Boys

An appeal has been made through the Baltimore Chapter of the Red Cross for sweets in the form of jellies, jams and marmalades for the soldier boys.

The containers for holding the same were very generously donated. These have arrived and are ready for distribution. A number of these have been sent to the different sections of the county.

Any person desiring containers for filling will apply to Miss Susie E. Collins, next door to the Washington Hotel.

All parties taking part in this work will be careful that the spread is not poured into the container while too hot and that the name of the contents is written on the outside. This work is to be completed by October 1st and delivered to the home of Miss Susie E. Collins.

Go To Queenstown By Boat

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Waller and sons, Masters Carroll and Kennedy Waller, motored up to Queenstown last Thursday to spend a week or two at the old Carroll farm on Queenstown creek. Dr. Roy A. Buhrman and Mrs. Buhrman and Mr. Earle B. Polk and Mrs. Polk left Saturday afternoon on Dr. Buhrman's boat to make the trip to Queenstown by water and join the Wallers at the Queen Anne's county farm.

Dr. Buhrman expected to make harbor at Wenona Saturday night and leave for the trip up the bay at daylight on Sunday morning. Weather conditions being favorable, the party expected to make their destination by Sunday night, a distance of 82 miles.

PEST ON THE TOMATO PLANTS

Insect Doing Serious Damage In Many Sections Of Somerset

The most serious pest of tomato plants that has ever appeared in the State is devastating many fields in Somerset county. The insect is a small green or pink plant louse that first clusters on the under sides of the leaves, eventually covering the leaf and blossoms, buds and the tender stalks, sucking out the plant juices, causing the plant to wither and die. The insects when full grown are about one-eighth of an inch long, and may possess wings, though the greatest number are without wings and considerably smaller.

County Agent C. Z. Keller says that control can be effected by spraying the plants with black leaf 40 or other 40 percent solutions of nicotine, used at the rate of one-half pint to 50 gallons of water into which two pounds of soap has been dissolved. Use as forceful and fine a spray as can be obtained, spraying upward under the leaves as well as downward. Spray rods should be equipped with an "L" and a nipple, with the nozzle screwed on the latter, to facilitate spraying upward.

The State entomologist, College Park, Md., said last week: "The weather conditions have been especially favorable for the multiplication of the pest all over the state, and tomato growers in other sections, particularly Worcester, Wicomico and Dorchester counties, should watch their fields carefully and reports of the pest should be made to the entomologist, College Park, Md., who will be glad to detail men to assist in control."

"Reports from the Eastern Shore of Virginia tell of entire fields of potatoes being ruined as though scorched by fire. In some places the yields have been extremely low, due in part, no doubt, to the feeding of the aphids. Potatoes in Somerset county are so far advanced at this time that there is little probability of serious injury from the lice."

Library Organizer In Somerset

Miss E. W. H. Scott, Field Secretary and Library Organizer for the Maryland Public Library Commission, is visiting Somerset county this week, making Princess Anne her headquarters.

Miss Scott is speaking before various organizations in the county on "the library as an aid to preparedness." "Any line of work," says Miss Scott, "is assisted by the literature on the subject. By means of the Public Library, the testimony and experience of experts is made accessible to any resident at a minimum cost."

In view of the fact that many residents of the State live too far from the large towns to avail themselves of library privileges, the Maryland Public Library Commission, represented by Miss Scott, is furnishing traveling libraries, consisting of thirty-five volumes on various subjects, enclosed in a case. These may be obtained by any resident of the State by the signature of three persons in a community and the payment of fifty cents toward the transportation charges.

This little library may be kept four months and a new one obtained at the end of that time. Many of these are located in the State, several in this county.

Miss Scott has visited the local library and finds it most interesting and well conducted. She urges the people of the town to make more use of it.

War Exemption Board Organizes

The War Exemption Board for Somerset county—Mrs. Charles W. Wainwright, C. E. Collins and Mr. W. Jerome Sterling—held its first meeting in Crisfield last Thursday afternoon. Dr. Wainwright was made permanent chairman.

The board decided that all applicants who reside at Westover and north of Westover, in Somerset county, shall appear before the board at its meetings in Princess Anne, and all those who live south of Westover shall appear before the board at its meetings in Crisfield.

The board decided to engage the services of a clerk. Mr. B. F. Sterling was appointed to act as clerk at all meetings held in Princess Anne and C. C. Collins was appointed to act as clerk at the meetings held in Crisfield.

White Girl Assaulted By Negro

Last Tuesday afternoon Will Collins, a 14-year-old colored boy, had a hearing before Justice Samuel F. Miles, charged with an assault made upon the 11-year-old daughter of Mr. William Long, who resides on a farm near King's Creek, Somerset county, on Sunday, the 29th ulto. Mr. Long sent his daughter on an errand to a neighbor, and while en route the negro made the assault. The girl informed her parents and her father immediately notified the sheriff. The boy was found on Deputy Sheriff Charles Dryden's farm Monday evening of last week. The girl identified him as her assailant, after which he was placed in jail until Tuesday when Justice Miles committed him to the House of Correction for two years and four months.

U. S. TAKES OYSTER NAVY

Government Requisitions 17 Vessels Of Maryland's Fleet

The fleet of vessels comprising the Maryland Oyster Navy, steamer Robert M. McLane, flagship, passed under the control of the Federal Government at Annapolis last week. The skippers and members of the crews of the boats also were recruited for service under the United States during the period of the war.

The vessels, some 15 or more, most of them schooners of the doublestick class, gathered in Annapolis harbor early Monday morning of last week. All of the craft presented a war-like appearance as they have been painted the dull gray color, which is the standard hue of war time.

The vessels which went into the service of the United States, with the names of the skippers, follow:

Steamer R. M. McLane, Commander T. C. B. Howard; Anna B. Smith, G. F. Akers, Chester river patrol; Frolic and Dorothy, Thomas H. Collier, Easton Bay patrol; Julia Hamilton, George O. Haddaway, Poplar Island patrol; Eliza Hayward, E. S. Neavitt, Choptank river; Bessie Jones, Webster C. Wroten, Fishing Bay, Honga river and tributaries; Nellie Jackson, A. J. White, Wicomico river; Helen Baughman, J. W. Webster, Tangier and Pocomoke sounds; May Brown, William H. Sanders, Annapolis; Polly, John H. Ford, Herring Bay; Daisy Archer and Buck, Edward N. Dixon, South, West and Rhode rivers; Music, T. M. Woolford, West Shore; Snookums, H. B. Cullison, St. Mary's and Potomac rivers; Nettie, Andrew L. Johnson, Patuxent river; Swann, S. A. Cohee, head of the bay.

Commander Thomas C. B. Howard, for a number of years commander of the State Oyster Navy, will be the active commander of the fleet with the rank of junior lieutenant. Lieutenant Killian, however, will have direction of the scout work of the boats. The skippers and crews, under the Federal scale of wages, will receive an increase in pay ranging anywhere from $5 to $20, and in addition each man will be allowed 75 cents a day for rations, as compared with 30 cents given by the State.

The Clay Bird Contest

The Princess Anne Traps Shooting Club held its patriotic clay bird contest for the benefit of the Red Cross on last Wednesday, July 4th. It was well attended and the club raised $20, which has been forwarded by its secretary to the proper officer of the Red Cross Ambulance Fund.

The shoot was an added bird handicap race, and F. D. Layfield won first honor badge, second honor going to Omar J. Reading, third to Raymond Carey, fourth to C. C. Waller and fifth to Arthur Jones. There were also six cash prizes, divided according to the Lewis Class System. First prize in first class, $2.25, went to F. D. Layfield, second prize, $1.35, to B. H. Dougherty and third prize, 90 cents, to Earle B. Polk. In the second class, Edwin Hayman drew first prize, $2.25, William Wilson second prize, $1.35, and James Sterling third prize, 90 cents. There were eighteen shooters present.

American Ship Orleans Sunk

The American steamship Orleans of the Oriental Navigation Company has been torpedoed and sunk by a submarine. Four of the crew were drowned, but all members of the armed naval guard were saved. The State Department announced the sinking last Friday and withheld the place and the time of the attack.

The Orleans, a vessel of 2,808 tons gross, left New York June 18 with cargo for France, commanded by Captain Allen in the Tucker. Of her crew of 36, ten were American citizens. After Germany announced unrestricted submarine warfare the Orleans was the first American steamship to reach France from an American port. She was formerly the Avellaneda and later the Menaphtha under the Argentine flag.

Mrs. Wilson Does "Bit"

Four dozen pairs of pajamas and an equal number of sheets and pillow cases, made by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Miss Helen Woodrow Bones and donated to the Red Cross, have been divided equally among Red Cross organizations of England, France, Italy and Canada. Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall has organized weekly Red Cross sewing meetings of Senators' wives and Mrs. Franklin K. Lane has organized women of the Interior Department for similar work.

ENLIST IN STATE MILITIA NOW

Fourth And Fifth, Field Artillery And Other Units Need Men.

Within about a month several thousand young Baltimore and Maryland men are going to find themselves in military service whether they want to enter that service or not. The draft is going to operate then and indications from Washington are that there is to be no favoritism, but that all of the draft law rules are going to be adhered to rigidly.

This fact is peculiarly significant in this state because of the fact that all of Maryland militia units are not yet up to full war strength, as the militia units in other states of the Union are.

The Fourth and Fifth Maryland Regiments want men—they want about 600 of them in all. They have been appealing to the young men of Baltimore City and counties of the State for some time, but so far that appeal has not been answered as it should have been answered by Marylanders. Now the time approaches when the young men who have been holding back—who have been refusing to enlist in their own state units—are going to find themselves forced into some unit of the national Army, where they may not like conditions nearly so well as they would like conditions in the Maryland militia units.

"There is now no time for putting off," said an officer of the militia last week. "The draft is about to become operative. After the men of Maryland are selected by the draft there will be no choice. They cannot enlist after their names have been drawn in the lottery in Washington. The time when they could have made their choice will have passed. The young Maryland man, who is single, without dependents, and who is physically strong, yet who does not enlist now, is taking a long chance. He is almost certain to be drafted and he may be sorry then. The Maryland militia units hold open the opportunity for the Baltimore young man or the young man of other parts of Maryland to be with his friends—with the folks from his own home town. The national Army will not give the members of it this opportunity."

"It is up to the young men of Maryland. Let them come forward now, enlist in the Fourth or Fifth Regiments, Maryland Field Artillery, Maryland Naval Brigade or the other militia units needing men. If they don't, they are going to be sorry!"

Judge Jones Dies In Hospital

Judge Robley D. Jones, of Worcester county, associate judge of the First Judicial Circuit and one of the best-known lawyers in Maryland, died about 5 o'clock last Saturday afternoon at the Church Home and Infirmary, Baltimore.

Judge Jones, whose health had been failing for over a year, was taken to Baltimore a couple of weeks ago to be operated on at the Church Home and Infirmary. Showing little signs of improvement after the first operation, the knife was again applied Friday in a last hope to save the jurist's life. He never rallied however.

Judge Jones was the son of the late Dr. Charles P. Jones and was born at Newark, Worcester county, on December 31, 1860. He received his education in the public schools of the State and at the University of Virginia, where he was graduated in law.

April 6, 1908, Governor Crothers appointed him to succeed Associate Judge Henry D. Lloyd, and he served until the general election of 1909, when he was elected for the full term of 15 years.

On December 22, 1897, he married Miss Louisa Richardson Franklin, of Berlin, daughter of the late Hon. Littleton Purnell and Sarah E. Franklin. Of this union there is a daughter (Miss Emily) now 18 years of age. Besides his widow and daughter he leaves two brothers (Dr. Paul Jones, of Snow Hill, and Oswald M., pharmacist, Norfolk, Va.) and three sisters (Mrs. James P. Townsend and Mrs. Edwin H. Nelson, of Snow Hill, and Mrs. John R. Franklin, of Philadelphia).

Funeral services will be held this (Tuesday) afternoon at 4 o'clock, from his late home in Snow Hill and the interment will be in the Methodist Episcopal churchyard.

Always kind and sympathetic, Judge Jones had a host of friends, not only in Worcester county, but throughout the entire peninsula, many of whom will attend the funeral.

More Gold For Allies

An additional war loan of $100,000,000 was made to France last Friday, bringing the total of credits to that country to $310,000,000 and the grand total of American loans to the Allies to $1,303,000,000.

CHANGES IN CRAB AND FISH LAWS

State-Wide Crab and Purse Net Laws
Now Effective

The Maryland Legislature, at its recent session, passed a new State-wide crab law as follows:

"It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to take, catch or have in his or their possession any hard crabs, other than one in the peeler state, measuring less than five inches across the shell from tip to tip of spike, or any peelers or soft crabs measuring less than three inches across the shell from tip to tip of spike, nor shall any person or persons take, catch or have in his or their possession any egg-bearing female crab, known as the spawn crab, blooming female crab, or mother crab, nor any female crab from which the egg pouch or bunion has been removed, nor shall any person or persons take, catch or keep in floats or in his or their possession any fat crab, or any crab known as a spot crab or green crab. The provisions of this section shall apply to all waters of the State of Maryland, and any person violating any provision of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall upon conviction be fined not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars for each offense."

Purse nets to be used for catching food fish only, the Acts of 1917, chapter 14, says:

"No person shall fish with purse or buck nets within the State of Maryland south of the line drawn as aforesaid without first obtaining a license so to do from the Comptroller of the Treasury, and then only from June 15th to November 1st of each year, and the applicant shall pay the sum of twenty-five ($25.00) for each and every purse or buck net owned and operated by him, whereupon the said Comptroller shall issue to such applicant a license or licenses to operate such purse or buck nets, and all moneys arising from said license shall be paid into the State Treasury to the credit of the Conservation Fund, and any person failing to procure such a license and violating this provision of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be subject to the fines and penalties imposed by Section 5 of this article, and to the penalties imposed by the Statutes of Maryland for failure to procure licenses wherever required by law. It shall be unlawful to use a purse or buck net with a mesh less than three inches for the catching of food fish, and no license shall be issued by the Comptroller of the Treasury for the use of a purse or buck net with a mesh less than three inches, and it shall be unlawful to fish with purse or buck nets within any of the waters of this State for the purpose of catching menhaden or any other kind of fish for the manufacture therefrom of oil or guano, or for any other use than food; and any person or persons violating this provision shall upon conviction be subject to a fine not exceeding three hundred dollars, each day's illegal fishing to constitute a separate offense. Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary, no one shall be permitted to use purse or buck nets in Chester river or any of the tributaries of the Chesapeake Bay within the limits of Baltimore, Queen Anne's, Anne Arundel, Harford and Cecil counties. It shall be unlawful to use a purse net within one mile of the shores of Harford county, exclusive of Poole's Island."

Races At Pocomoke City

A large crowd witnessed the races at Pocomoke Fair Grounds last Wednesday afternoon. The finishes were close and the slowest heat trotted was in 2.20. The finish between D. C. Armstrong's Dock McKinney, driven by himself, and the Virginia horse, Bellewood, D. Mason driver, was the most startling of these. Dock McKinney won in straight heats, but always by the narrowest margin; best time, 2.18½. In the 2.17 pacing race, George Cast succumbed to the Virginia mare, Miss Key, W. L. Bull driver and owner. The winner made almost a tract record—2.14½, 2.13½, 2.14, for the three heats. The mixed race required four heats to decide, and finally went to Climax, entered by H. P. Law of Bishopville.

HOOVER'S FOOD SAVING RULES

Economy In Use Of Wheat, Meat, Milk, Fats, Sugar And Fuel Urged

The food economies which Herbert C. Hoover suggests to the American people have been officially promulgated.

They constitute the cardinal principles of the food campaign, and are set forth in clear type on a small card, in terms so definite and concise that all will know exactly what and how to save.

This food administration card is designed to hang in every American kitchen and its directions be followed with scrupulous care by the homemakers of the land. Already the appeal has met with a generous response. The information is at hand that 1,000,000 food pledges have already been signed.

The document issued by Mr. Hoover and signed by him as United States Commissioner is headed: "Win the war by giving your own daily service."

The recommendations it contains are:

Save the Wheat—One wheatless meal a day. Use corn, oatmeal, rye or barley bread and non-wheat breakfast foods. Order bread twenty-four hours in advance, so your baker will not bake beyond his needs. Cut the loaf on the table and only as required. Use stale bread for cooking, toasts, etc. Eat less cake and pastry.

Our wheat harvest is far below normal. If each person weekly saves one pound of wheat flour that means 150,000,000 more bushels of wheat for the Allies to mix in their bread. This will help them save democracy.

Save the Meat—Beef, mutton or pork not more than once daily. Use freely vegetables and fish. At the meat meal serve smaller portions, and stews instead of steaks. Make made dishes of all leftovers. Do this and there will be meat enough for every one at a reasonable price.

We are today killing the dairy cows and female calves, as the result of high price. Therefore, eat less and eat no young meat. If we save an ounce of meat each day a person, we will have additional supply equal to 2,200,000 cattle.

Save the Milk—The children must have milk. Use every drop. Use butter-milk and sour milk for cooking and making cottage cheese. Use less cream.

Save the Fats—We are the world's greatest fat wasters. Fat is food. Butter is essential for the growth and health of children. Use butter on the table as usual, but not in cooking. Other fats are as good. Reduce use of fried foods. Soap contains fats. Do not waste it. Make your own washing soap at home out of the saved fats.

Use one-third ounce less per day of animal fat and 375,000 tons will be saved yearly.

Save the Sugar—Sugar is scarcer. We use today three times as much a person as our Allies. So there may be enough for all at reasonable price, avoid useless candy and sweet drinks. Do not stint sugar in putting up fruit and jams. They will save butter.

If every one in America saves one ounce of sugar daily, it means 1,100,000 tons for the year.

Save the Fuel—Coal comes from a distance and our railways are overburdened hauling war material. Help relieve them by burning fewer fires. Use wood when you can get it.

Use the Perishable Foods—Fruit and vegetables we have in abundance. As a nation we eat too little of greenstuffs. Double their use and improve your health. Store potatoes and other roots properly and they will keep. Begin now to can or dry all surplus garden products.

Use Local Supplies—Patronize your local producer. Distance means money. Buy perishable food from the neighborhood nearest you, and thus save transportation.

Buy less, serve smaller portions.

Preach the "gospel of the clean plate."

Don't eat a fourth meal.

Don't limit the plain food of growing children.

Watch out for the wastes in the community.

Full garbage pails in America mean empty dinner pails in America and Europe.

If the more fortunate of our people will avoid waste and eat no more than they need, the high-cost-of-living problem of the less fortunate will be saved.

Primaries Probably September 11th

The law provides that the primaries must be held on some day between the 8th and 15th of September, agreed upon by the chairmen of the two leading political parties, and in the event of their being unable to agree, it shall be held on the second Monday in September. As September 8 and 9 fall on Saturday and Sunday, September 12 on a legal holiday and September 15 on Saturday, only four days remain open, and one of these happens to be Friday, on which day neither side wants an election. So there remain Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. The supervisors do not take kindly to Monday, as the election of that day would necessitate the distribution of books, etc., on Saturday or Sunday evening, hence the available days are Tuesday, the 11th, and Thursday, the 13th.

Tuesday is regarded as the day best suited and it is more than likely that this will be the day selected, but in order that they may proceed with their arrangements it is incumbent on the heads of the two organizations to meet and agree, if possible, at an early day.

FIFTH EPISODE

The Island God Forgot.

In the breathless hush of that bright midsummer dawn the island rested amid still waters like a great yellow topaz on a field of glowing sapphire. No land was visible in any quarter, yet the mainland was not remote.

Barely an island, little more than an overgrown sandbar, a desolate patch of salt-bitten earth producing no vegetation more valuable than coarse beach grass, it was charted and known to longshore seafarers as Limbo Island. But few if any of these had ever taken occasion to visit it; they knew it by tradition for what it was, so passed it by. Only of late years had it grown accustomed to shelter mankind, a little colony of Japanese fishermen having chosen it for their base.

As the sun rose, so did these simple folk; by twos and threes they emerged from their rude dwellings and went about their business. Some embarked in battered craft to draw the nets and cast the seines with which they wrested from the sea an apparently precarious livelihood. Others swarmed upon a little sloop that had come in overnight to a crude dock that jutted but into the least exposed harbor of the island, and began industriously to empty its hold of a cargo of many, heavy packing cases. These worked under the supervision of one who wore the habit of authority together with the wreck of what had once been a khaki uniform. A solitary inhabitant of the island seemed to have no set task; and this one was not a Japanese.

The sun was high before he discovered himself to its rays, lounging sullenly out of a dwelling slightly more pretentious than its neighbors; a youngish man, well-made, with a dark, keen countenance of Latin cast; his clothing of the simplest, a tattered shirt, trousers worn and patched, an old belt with a rusty buckle—nothing more, not even shoes.

The gaze with which he reviewed the too familiar aspect of sea and sky was eloquent of embittered ennui. His mouth twitched; his eyes flared wildly; he damned the day with a gesture of passionate discontent; shrugged, jerked a coarse cotton bag of tobacco, and a packet of brown papers from a hip-pocket, deftly with one hand fashioned a cigarette, lighted it, inhaled exhaustively, and slouched off, his bare feet following indifferently a beaten pathway out of the dunes.

Near the dock he paused with a little, lackluster gaze regarding the activities of his Japanese associates aboard

Patricia About to Escape From the Island.

the sloop. Then, turning his back to these he drifted from their ken along the wave-packed sands. A few hundred yards farther on, and he checked sharply, by a low-pitched cry of amazement. A curve of the island had brought him within view of the body of a woman that lay huddled on the beach, half in, half out of the water.

The woman's face was hidden, but before he turned it to the light he knew by the gentle movement of her shoulders that she lived. A canvas-covered life-ring lay nearby, stenciled with the name of a Fall River line steamship.

Staring down into that exquisite face, a look of mingled covetousness and craft kindled in the eyes of the man. Rising abruptly, he raked his surroundings with furtive and suspicious glances. At length satisfied that none watched him, he stooped, gathered that frail young form in his arms and darted swiftly away, not as he had come, but inland through the dunes. Two short minutes sufficed for the journey; he came into the hollow of the huts stealthily, pausing to make sure it was unattended before hurrying into his dwelling. But the luck was not with him; without his knowledge, he was observed; the door had not closed upon him and his salvage when a little Japanese slipped quietly from an adjoining hut and trotted briskly toward the harbor.

The girl opened dazed, uncomprehending eyes upon a scene so strange to them that, for a moment, she was half-inclined to believe that she had died of drowning and passed in spirit to some weird half-world. A reek of brandy burned in her mouth and throat. She coughed a little.

As if that sound had been a signal a door was thrown roughly open, letting in a flood of sunlight. Through it entered a Japanese in ragged uniform. The voice of the Japanese broke the tension edged with remembrance.

"Senor Juarez! I am informed—"

The other interrupted brusquely: "That I have found a half-drowned woman—Americano—on the beach and brought her here. It's true."

"You should not have done this!"

"It seems I did!"

With a sudden movement the Japanese produced a pistol. "I regret the necessity," he said, "but Baron Huroki's orders are to kill immediately any stranger who sets foot upon the island!"

"Wait!" The fingers of Senor Juarez closed quickly on the wrist of the Japanese and turned his pistol to the ceiling. Simultaneously the Mexican lifted, with his other hand, a small can of bright tin that had stood upon a nearby table. "One moment, Captain Huroki! This can contains nitroglycerin. In the storeroom back there—a jerk of Juarez's head indicated a door in the back of the building—"over one hundred tons of high explosives are stored. The woman is mine!"

"Baron Huroki!"

"I deal with you—not him—and I warn you, I shall keep the woman or blow this island off the map!"

The Japanese hesitated an instant, then conceded defeat with a shrug. "Have your way," he said mildly, and turned to go.

But the grasp on his wrist was unrelaxed. "Wait another moment, Captain Huroki. I want that pistol."

It was surrendered without a suspicion of contest.

"Now—go—and don't bother us again."

Captain Huroki executed a right about face and marched out of the hut. Senor Juarez secured the door behind him, then turned to see the girl struggling to a sitting position on the cot. He hastened to assist her.

"You are weak, senorita—you must not exert yourself. Permit me . . ."

He wound his arm around her waist, tenderly assisting her to a chair by the table. As she sank into this, he bent over and brought his lips close to hers. She shrank away with a little cry.

"Ah, no! Be not afraid of me, senorita! Remember, I saved your life. . . . What is a kiss in payment for that?"

The pistol he had taken from the Japanese rested on the table. Chance guided the fingers of the girl to its grip, inspiration of despair prompted her to lift its muzzle to the tin of nitroglycerin.

"Keep away from me," she ordered in accents whose feebleness could not disguise a spirit of inflexible determination. "Keep away—or I pull the trigger!"

With a terrified ejaculation the Mexican sprang back to a profoundly respectful distance.

"Senorita—I beg of you—"

"Leave this house—or I pull the trigger!"

Juarez threw himself madly at the door, wrenched it open, started out and—shrank back from a knife-bayonet on a rifle presented by a stocky, deadly-looking little Japanese.

"Captain Huroki's orders: you remain a prisoner till you give up the woman!"

Between the devil and the deep sea, the Mexican threw himself on the mercy of the girl.

"Senorita—in the name of pity—"

She nodded curtly. "Come in—shut that door—lock it. . . . Now tell me where I am!"

"Senorita, you have been washed ashore on Limbo Island."

"Where is that?"

"Southeast of Newport—about thirty miles."

"And why are such great quantities of high explosive stored on Limbo Island?"

"Senorita—I conceal nothing from you—I am your slave—"

"Answer my question!"

The muzzle of the pistol remained in close juxtaposition to the tin of nitroglycerin. The Mexican shivered with terror.

"Because—" he stammered "because Japan uses this island as a secret depot for munitions—"

"To be used in the event of war with the United States?"

"Si, senorita—yes."

"I understand. . . . Now fetch me food . . ."

CHANGELING.

About mid-morning, a young man becomingly attired in riding clothes surrendered his horse to the care of a groom and ascended the steps to the veranda of the Channing cottage on the Cliff walk.

In the doorway a footman waited to greet him with the manner of welcoming an intimate of the household.

"Good morning, Captain Parr. It's a pleasure to see you again, sir."

"Thank you, Gregory. Is Mrs. Wrenn at home?"

"I believe so, sir."

"And . . . Miss Channing?"

"Miss Patricia arrived by boat early this morning, sir."

"Please say to her, I am waiting for the ride she promised me . . ."

"Very good, sir."

The footman stepped back into the house and disappeared. Captain Parr remained on the veranda, seeming idly to admire the view, in reality oblivious of it, preoccupied with private considerations of not unpleasant complexion.

Sounds of stifled lamentation disturbed his mood.

He discovered a pleasant-faced lady's maid of mature years, forehead bowed against the newel-post at the foot of the staircase, weeping loudly and copiously.

"Why, Anne! What's the matter?"

The woman showed a blowsy, tear-stained, written countenance.

"Oh, Captain Parr, my heart's broken! I don't know what to do at all. It's discharged I am, sir!"

"What?" Parr could hardly believe his ears.

"Miss Patricia is after discharging me

she is not at home to Captain Parr!"

Had the servant deliberately slapped his face, Donald could have been no more thunderstruck.

Mrs. Wrenn betrayed no less perplexity.

"Gregory! What did you say?"

"Miss Patricia instructed me to say, Mrs. Wrenn, she is not at home to Captain Parr."

The footman withdrew, murmuring sympathetically.

"But, Donald," Mrs. Wrenn insisted, "I'm sure he must have misunderstood. I'll run up at once and see Patricia myself."

"Please, no, Mrs. Wrenn. Gregory's an intelligent fellow. Patricia is doubtless out of temper with me for failing to catch the boat yesterday."

In point of fact, Parr hardly knew what he was saying or what he heard. Overruling the objections of Rodney and his mother, he strode from the house, threw himself on the back of his horse, and rode away in a state of daze.

It needed a long, hard ride to weary Parr's emotions to semi-numbness. He brought back a horse sadly fagged and lathered.

Now Donald Parr was never one to wear his heart on his sleeve. Toward mid-afternoon he changed to white flannels, stiffened his upper lip and sought the Casino, outwardly a man with mind serene and carefree temper.

Finding nobody of his circle of acquaintances at the Casino—the hour was late for lunch, early for afternoon tea—he fortified himself with a cocktail and sought surcease of brooding in that morning's Boston newspaper. It seemed at first a needlessly cruel freak of chance that the very first news item to meet his eye should be so strong a reminder of his unhappiness.

Fall River, June 27.—While the Fall River line steamship Commonwealth was off Point Judith last night, Mrs. John Ferdinand of Chicago, an invalid suffering from melancholia, eluded her nurse and committed suicide by jumping overboard.

"Chicago, June 27.—The City Directory does not contain the name of Mrs. John Ferdinand."

Slowly Donald lowered the newspaper, a thoughtful frown creasing his brows. Anne's words of that morning came back to him like an echo pregnant with significance.

"Miss Patricia ain't seemed like herself since that dreadful affair on the boat last night!"

What if . . . Horror gripped

"Keep Away!" Ordered Patricia.

without notice, sir—and all these years I've served her and never a cross word—"

"But why? What did you do?"

"It's my clumsiness, sir. I happened to drop her hand mirror, and it broke, it did. And then it was like herself went mad. She flew into a rage, sir, and stamped her foot at me, and called me a clumsy fool, and said it meant seven years' bad luck, and wouldn't listen to me at all at all, and told me to pack my trunk and go, that myself was fired, and—"

"Did she say 'fired,' Anne?"

"She did that, Captain Parr—"

"It doesn't sound like Patricia!"

"It doesn't, sir. For the matter of that she ain't seemed like herself since that dreadful affair on the boat last night."

"What dreadful affair?"

"You haven't heard about it, sir? A poor invalid lady in the stateroom next Miss Patricia's went out of her head and jumped overboard and was drowned, sir."

Anne hastily disappeared as Mrs. Gilbert Wrenn, Patricia's chaperon, entered from the breakfast room with her son Rodney. At sight of Parr they broke into those wondering exclamations he had anticipated.

"Why, Donald!"

"Don! For the love of Mike! How did you get here? Patricia said—"

"I flew," Captain Parr explained modestly.

"I should say you did fly! What did you do? Hire a special train?"

"I flew," Parr iterated. "I planned from Governor's Island this morning."

Donald looked round to find the footman waiting for his attention.

"Yes, Gregory?"

The man hesitated, with what seemed singular reluctance to deliver his message.

"Beg pardon, sir . . . I'm sorry . . . Miss Channing directs me to say

Donald's heart like an icy hand. . . . What if the Patricia of last night were not the Patricia of today?

That a woman existed so like Patricia in face and form that none could distinguish one from the other, was a fact too well known to Captain Parr.

Pondering deeply, Donald rose to leave the Casino and on the way out came unexpectedly upon a group of four, seated over cocktails round a little table. He tried to ignore them, but this was not permitted. A voice that, if not the voice of Patricia Channing, was at least a very creditable imitation of it, hailed him.

"Don—Donald Parr! Do come here!"

With the speaker at her table were Fanny Adair, Baron Huroki and Juan de Lima.

Suspicion rife in his mind, Parr bowed over the hand offered him by the woman who might or might not be Patricia Channing. To each of the others in turn he nodded gravely.

"Awful jolly to meet you here, Don. I do so want you to be the first to know: I have promised to marry Senor de Lima."

To the Mexican, alert to rise with a brilliant smirk of self-satisfaction and a proffered hand, Donald bowed profoundly. His own hands remained clasped behind his back.

"I am happy to be able to congratulate Senor de Lima," he said quietly; and turning, left the Casino.

One more move that would be only natural in an impostor!

He was firmly persuaded that the girl to whom he had just been talking was not the true Patricia Channing.

But how to prove that? How to avenge that crime which had made possible the substitution of this impostor?

Parr set his wits to cope with that problem. Pending their solution, he applied himself to the task of keeping

Baron Huroki under close but unobtrusive surveillance.

Late in the afternoon Huroki was surreptitiously waylaid by a low-caste Japanese, from whom he received a message which seemed to cause the baron considerable perturbation. The messenger was duly identified as one of the colony of fishermen on Limbo; he returned to a little sloop, which had just come in from the island and made fast to a dock on the business waterfront of the community. Baron Huroki himself returned to his hotel and remained there, closeted with Juan de Lima, till nightfall. Under cover of darkness he sallied forth, closely dogged by Donald Parr, made a circuitous way to the waterfront and boarded the sloop, which immediately cast off and set sail for the harbor mouth.

Now what pressing business dragged Huroki away to Limbo island by night?

Parr made it his own business to find out. If there were something on Limbo that interested Baron Huroki so profoundly, it was sure to prove no whit less interesting to the United States secret service.

Within fifteen minutes of the time when the sloop had sailed, Donald launched his seaplane and rose to an altitude whence he could spy the island, a formless blur of darkness on the face of waters silvered by moonlight.

THE HUMAN BOMB.

Half-buried in the side of the largest dune on Limbo island, the dwelling which Senor Juarez had shared with his Japanese associate, Captain Huroki, was a shack of a single room, with one window and two doors. Of these last one, like the window, opened upon the hollow in which the other huts of the station were gathered together; the remaining door led, by way of a short, timbered tunnel, to a huge vault hollowed out in the heart of the dune, wherein a very considerable store of arms, ammunition, mines and high explosives was sheltered. On the farther side of the dune—here a concave bluff, wave-eaten—the vault had two great doors behind which a biplane stood lightly poised, ready for instant use in emergency.

By this means alone Patricia Channing hoped, with the aid of the Mexican, to contrive an escape from the refuge which had proved so quickly the cell of two condemned prisoners.

For the shack was in a state of siege. Since the dispute between Juarez and Huroki the hollow had been picketed with armed Japanese. As yet these had made no offensive move; but the understanding was implicit, that neither prisoner might set foot outside the shack save at penalty of death. Patricia, condemned by Baron Huroki's ukase and live to tell of it, Juarez' death sentence signed by his own act of mutiny. Thus the interests of the two were one, in bonds of common peril.

Juarez had schemed a scheme to hoodwink the enemy which Patricia had endorsed. She waited now, alone in the shack, for the Mexican's return from making all things ready at the far side of the vault.

There was no light other than a feeble glimmer of moonshine filtering in through cracks around window and door. The girl sat in a corner, the tin of nitroglycerin on the table before her, automatic pistol in hand, her pose one of tense vigilance.

Noislessly in his bare feet, Juarez returned, preceded by the flicker of an electric torch, bringing with him a modern magazine rifle newly filched from the stores in the vault.

"Are you ready?" he whispered. Patricia arose with a nod of assent, and picked up the tin of explosive in a cautious hand.

"Follow the aisle between the packing cases," he instructed with a gesture toward the tunnel. "It leads to the hangar doors. If the guards on the beach run off to see what's the matter when I begin shooting, unbar the doors—but don't open them till I join you."

She nodded again, and entered the tunnel as Juarez tiptoed to the window and stealthily unbarred it.

Picking her way cautiously, she arrived beneath the wings of the biplane before the silence of the island night was shattered by a rippling fusillade.

An eye to the crack between the great doors, she saw two armed Japanese who had been patrolling the beach turn and, after momentary hesitation, run off in the direction of the disturbance.

Working swiftly, she had lifted down the last heavy bar of wood that held the doors together before Juarez appeared at her side.

"Good!" he breathed, eye to the crack. "I got one of them. The others are preparing to storm the shack. We've got perhaps two minutes. . . ."

Putting his shoulder against one of the doors, he swung it widely out. Patricia had the other open almost as quickly. She stepped into open night with a little shiver of excitement and fright, and waited to one side while Juarez wheeled the biplane out as easily as though it had been a perambulator.

He turned and beckoned. A vicious tongue of flame licked out of beach grass that crowned a nearby dune. Simultaneously a rifle spoke. Juarez threw his hands high, spun in his tracks, and dropped.

There came a second shot. A little spurt of sand flew up at Patricia's feet. Heedless in her terror, she dropped the tin of nitroglycerin and sped swiftly up the beach, without thought or aim other than to find shelter from those bullets which persistently hounded her footsteps, singing past her or sullenly burying themselves in the sands.

Of a sudden she saw Huroki running to meet her, the brilliant moonlight glinted on a weapon in his hand. With a sob of despair, Patricia turned blindly at right angles and ran—without really appreciating whither she ran—out upon the harbor dock.

Behind her the automatic of the Japanese rattled shrewishly—and was unexpectedly answered from offshore. At the end of the dock, the girl paused and glanced back. Huroki had given up the pursuit—was, indeed, running swiftly for shelter in the dunes; but the rifles of his followers were speaking animatedly.

A great flood of hope surged in her bosom as she looked offshore and discovered an airplane settling down like an immense water fowl upon the surface of the harbor, not twenty yards distant. If doubt existed in her mind as to the identity of its pilot, were he friend or enemy, it was soon erased by his hail.

"Patricia! Quick—swim off to me!"

The pilot's pistol rattled again.

Donald's voice! Patricia was no more afraid; and water was as her native element. Without hesitation she dived and struck off toward the plane.

Little more than a minute later Parr was helping her to climb up on one of the pontoons, then to a seat beside his own, while bullets continued to sing ricocheted over the waters and tear through the covering of the planes.

She was no more than settled in her place when Parr began to manipulate the controls and the seaplane skimmed the surface of the harbor in a long, graceful curve, then began to rise. . . .

Back on the island, standing beside the biplane, Captain Huroki witnessed the successful evasion in a rage that ruffled even his racial placidity. In his understanding the affair was intolerable; though he perished endeavoring to prevent it, this escape must not be permitted.

Summoning assistants, he turned toward the biplane—and paused as his foot struck what one swift down glance identified as the tin of nitroglycerin. Inspired by this accident, he picked up the tin, crammed it into a side pocket of his khaki coat, and clambered to the pilot's seat. Provided he might maneuver his aircraft above the other, he would need only to drop this deadly bomb; and there would be nothing left of the fugitives.

His aids started the motor. With a roar the propellers began to revolve. Huroki grasped the controls. The machine shot off down the beach and took the air at the water's edge.

The seaplane, seeking a high level, was rising in a wide spiral. As yet it was not high, and the Japanese plane was the better at climbing. Within a space of time incredibly brief the two were hovering on an approximate level, high above the island.

One shot might serve his end. The temptation was too strong to be resisted. Huroki drew his pistol, and opened fire.

In Parr's machine, Patricia Channing took the weapon proffered by her rescuer and, leaving him free to attend to his duties as pilot, drew herself back at length upon the plane and returned the fire of the Japanese.

Huroki was conscious of something like the impact of a fist between his eyes. Blindness followed, with agonizing pain. He crumpled in his seat, lurching forward against the controls. His last conscious thought was one of terror; the biplane was falling; the tin of explosive remained in his pocket; when he came to earth he would be utterly annihilated. Unconsciousness mercifully ensued.

Nose down, the biplane dived like a plummet; but the body of Huroki, thrown from its place, distanced the machine. The summit of the great dune that housed the store of explosives received the full impact of its fall. An instantaneous explosion signaled the extermination of Huroki. Barely a breath later the dune opened up like the crater of a volcano, belching smoke and flame to the skies. Detonation followed detonation so swiftly that reeling senses could reckon. The little island, rocked, disintegrating. The sea, rose shouting and overwhelmed it. Clouds of steam obscured the debacle.

When the sloop in which Baron Huroki had embarked arrived on the scene, a ghastly welter of wreckage churning in the wash was all that was left of Limbo.

Pale Faced Women Take Phosphates to Make Rosy Cheeks and Beautiful Forms Men Need Phosphates to Make Strong, Healthy, Vigorous Bodies

Athletes increase their strength, energy and endurance 200% or more by simply taking a few weeks treatment of Argo-Phosphate.

Atlanta, Ga. Dr. F. A. Jacobson says that Phosphates are just as essential to any man or woman who tries easily, is nervous, or irritable, worn out or looks haggard and pale as they are to a strong, robust, vigorous, healthy body, as they are to a strong, robust, vigorous, healthy body. The lack of Phosphates is the cause of all anemic conditions and the administration of 6-grain Argo-Phosphate tablets will increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous men and women 200 per cent. in two or three weeks time in many instances, and their continued use will build up the whole nervous system, and give new life, vim, vigor, and vitality to the whole body. I always prescribe Argo-Phosphate to patients who are pale and colorless, and it is surprising to see how quickly a few weeks treatment will transform a pale face to a rosy checked beauty. There can be no rosy cheeks, healthy, beautiful women, without their system is sufficiently supplied with Phosphates. In recent interviews with physicians on the grave and serious consequences of a deficiency of Phosphates in the blood of American men and women, I have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more phosphates in the form of Argo-Phosphate for weak, worn-out, haggard-looking men and women. When the skin is pale, and flesh flabby, it is a sign of an anemia. When the phosphates are from the blood, the pink cheeks go too. The muscles lack tone. They become nervous, irritable, despondent, melancholy, the brain fags, and the memory fails. Therefore if you wish to preserve your youthful vim, vigor and vitality to a ripe old age, you must supply the deficiency of phosphates lacking in your food by using Argo-Phosphate, the form of Phosphates most easily assimilated.

NOTICE: Argo-Phosphate which is recommended and prescribed by physicians in all anemic cases is not a secret or patent medicine, but one that is sold and recommended by well known druggists everywhere, and physicians are daily prescribing the constituents contained in it. Being entirely unlike many other Phosphates, it is easily assimilated and will be found effective in the treatment of indigestion and stomach troubles, as well as for case worn, nervous conditions. FORGED ANTIQUES.

Even British Museum Experts Have Been Fooled by Them.

The "antiquity" manufacturer is a man who thrives on expert forgery. Furniture, prints, china, pictures, plate, tapestry—he imitates them all most successfully. Each man has his specialty. One devotes himself to old leather jackets, another produces horn books, a third turns out "medieval" MSS.

The British museum once bought a Falissy plate for $250. While an attendant was handling it one of the seals attached to its back attesting its genuineness became detached, disclosing the mark of a modern French potter.

On other occasions terra cotta figures of Isis and Osiris, bought by the institution for hundreds of pounds, have been discovered to be composed of modern clay.

A good story is told of a forged silver cup in Rome that purported to have come from some secret excavation in Sicily. This ancient cup was ornamented with a circular bas-relief, representing the frieze of the Parthenon. But in the height of his innocence the forger had given the frieze in its present ruined condition. The exhibition of the cup was received with shouts of laughter.—London Standard.

Effect of Bad Teeth.

A paper by a dental surgeon in the Journal of the American Medical Association, tells the story of bad teeth and the effects on the laboring man's efficiency. The dentist said he made 30,000 examinations in sixteen months of 17,000 Americans and 13,000 foreigners and found 98 per cent in need of dental service. "In 30,000 months," the dentist said, "we find 60,000 cavities and 18,000 extractions necessary, 78,000 in all. If each one causes an average loss, through waste of time and cost to repair, of $2 it means a cost of $156,000. In New York city last year 67,000 children failed to be promoted to higher grades because of defective teeth, and it costs New York city $1,037,600 to duplicate a year's schooling to those who fail."

Digestibility of Cheese.

By experiments on the digestibility of cheese it has been shown that much depends on the special physical characters of the food. All fat cheeses are said to be dissolved and digested with great rapidity, because the molecules of casein—the nitrogenous part of the cheese—are separated only by the fat, and so the gastric juice can attack a large surface of the cheese at one time. Whether the cheese be hard or soft does not appear to influence digestion, and there is no connection between the digestibility and the percentage of water present in the cheese.

THE FOOD PROBLEM

This Country Pays a Big Price
For Its Reckless Habits.

WANTON WASTE IN OUR HOMES

Each Year $700,000,000 In Good Edibles Is Flung Into Garbage Pails or Is Destroyed in Cooking or Allowed to Spoil.

Good food heedlessly thrown into garbage pails, food allowed to spoil in the household, food ruined by improper cooking and food destroyed by rats, mice and insects constitute the heavy items in the $700,000,000 annual waste of food in homes in the United States.

Seven hundred million dollars is considered to be a conservative figure by the secretary of agriculture. In household waste, of course, are not included the vast losses of food allowed under improper handling or insufficient marketing methods to spoil in transit or in the hands of producers or dealers.

Much of this $700,000,000 household waste of food, the dietary specialists of the department declare, is easily preventable. This preventable waste consists in large part of the following items:

Edible food thrown into the garbage pail or into the kitchen sink. Much of the food is thrown out, the specialists say, because so many people do not know how to utilize leftovers or will not take the trouble to keep and prepare them. The specialists point out:

Leftover cereals can be reheated or combined with fruits, meats or vegetables into appetizing side dishes, and even a spoonful of cereal is worth saving as a thickener of soups, gravies and sauces.

Stale bread can be utilized in a variety of ways in combination with vegetables and meats and in preparing hot breads and puddings.

Skim milk, too widely looked down upon as a food, although it contains practically all the nourishing elements of whole milk with the exception of the cream or fat, can be used as a beverage in cooking cereals or as a basis for milk soups or sauces.

Sour milk, so largely thrown away, can be used in making hot breads or in the home manufacture of cottage cheese.

Every scrap of meat or fish can be combined with cereals or other foods lacking in pronounced flavor, both to give flavor and to add nourishment to made over dishes. Every bit of fat or suet trimmed from meat before cooking or tried out in boiling, roasting or broiling can be made useful in cooking. Many butchers, after they have weighed meat and named the price for the cut, trim off valuable suet and fat. This fat, which the housewife pays for, if taken home and used, would reduce expenditures for prepared cooking fats.

Many persons regard the saving of small amounts of leftover food as unimportant. If they kept accurate account, however, the specialists say, many families would be astounded by the amount of good food they are throwing out.

Next comes the spoilage of food due to careless handling and storing in the home. Much milk spoils quickly because it is kept uncovered in warm kitchens. Close observance of the doctrine, "Keep perishable food, especially milk, cool, clean and covered continuously," may make a striking difference in the food bills of many families.

In other cases, one or two vegetables, beets or carrots, for instance, not needed immediately, are thrown out or allowed to spoil instead of being used in soups or combination dishes. Fruits which could be stewed and kept are allowed to spoil.

As to food spoiled by careless cooking, many housewives who complain that children and adults will not eat breakfast cereals fail to realize that the cereals they serve are undercooked, scorched or improperly seasoned and thus made unpalatable. Most of the cheaper foods require careful seasoning and preparation to be fully appetizing.

Waste in preparation is cited. Much useful food gets into the garbage pail because the housewife in preparing potatoes or other vegetables and fruit, such as apples, cuts off with the skin a considerable percentage of edible material.

Many persons are unaware that the green and tender tops of many vegetables, which contain valuable mineral and other food substances, are excellent cooked as greens or even as additions to salads.

The over generous serving of food is held responsible for waste. Many families take pride in serving lavish and overabundant meals. Such meals lead not only to waste of food on the table, but to overeating, which often impairs health and efficiency.

The same standard, "Eat enough food and no more," rigidly followed, would reduce greatly food bills in many homes and at the same time tend to improve the physical condition of all members of the household.—United States Department of Agriculture Bulletin.

The True and the False.

The president of a bank when asked by a young clerk how he could distinguish the counterfeit bills from the good said, "Get familiar with the good bills and you will recognize the bad bills at sight." Here is a vast volume of general wisdom summed up in a single sentence.—Christian Herald.

Stn may be clasped so close we cannot see its face.—Trench.

HORSE WISDOM.

Horsemen will soon need to be on their guard against overheating. Most cases of overheating can be prevented by keeping a few simple things in mind.

- Give at least a pailful of water to each horse about 10 o'clock and again at 3 or 4 o'clock on a hot day.
- Be very careful with a horse that is a little out of health if you are working him on a hot day.
- Look out for a horse that, after sweating freely, suddenly stops sweating. Put such a horse in the shade as soon as possible and give a moderate drink.
- Do not put a horse not in good condition for hard work in the center of a four horse team in hot weather.
- Work carefully on a hot day and when the atmosphere is moist and heavy.
- A horse can hardly get too hot to water, but one must regulate the amount by the temperature of the water.

PLANT MORE CORN.

The Most Effective Substitute For Wheat at Our Disposal.

The most effective way to remedy the probable shortage in the wheat crop is to plant corn, says the United States department of agriculture.

Ordinarily the quantity of corn produced in the United States is from three to four times the quantity of wheat, but only a very small portion of the crop, from 5 to 10 per cent, has been used for human food. This amount may be estimated in normal times at about 200,000,000 bushels a year. Not over 5 per cent has been exported in peace times. A relatively slight increase in the corn acreage therefore will place many millions of bushels more of human food at the disposal of the world without interfering in any way with the feed needed for the support of live stock.

In the past, with an abundance of grain of other kinds, corn has not been in great demand for human consumption. But with other grains no longer abundant circumstances will compel more general recognition of the value of corn as human food. The department is urging strongly the wider use of corn in the diet. It is the best substitute for wheat that we have and can be utilized in breads, mushes and a variety of other ways. We should make every effort to avail ourselves of it.

"Plant corn" then should be the motto of every farmer in a section suited to the crop.

SWAT THE WEED.

Robber Plants Steal the Food From the Useful Crops.

A nation wide weed swatting campaign is advocated for farmers and gardeners in order to insure a war crop for this year.

Perilous weeds, commonly introduced on the farm by the sowing of impure seed, tend toward crop reduction, says Robert Schmidt, seed analyst in the Kansas State Agricultural college. Often a good stand of alfalfa has been ruined by vigorous weeds which choked it out before it became well established.

Weeds are primarily a robber crop. When growing with crop plants they rob the soil of much food and moisture which should be used by other plants. Weeds are usually hardy and prolific. They will thrive especially well in carefully prepared soil if given a chance. Unless kept down by proper cultivation and crop rotation they will soon overrun the land. Weeds are eradicated at great expense. Good clean seed should always be sown—the best obtainable is none too good.

Sheep on the Farm.

Sheep are good farm help. They will range a farm from early spring until late fall, feeding off weeds and growths that other stock will not touch. A small flock will mow the orchard and keep down the weeds about windbreaks, fences and buildings. All of this is simply incidental "velvet," as the wool clip pays for the flock's keep. The mutton return is the main source of profit. Besides, the high value of farm land, which compels farmers to fence their acres for hogs and other stock, lightens the added expense for keeping sheep.

This year with wool at 10 and 15 cents a pound above normal prices and mutton higher than it has ever been, any farmer is assured handsome returns if he gives his flock reasonable care.

Growing Mash For Chickens.

After chicks are ten days old a good growing mash composed of two parts by weight of bran, two parts middlings, one part cornmeal, one part low grade wheat flour or red dog middlings and 10 per cent sifted beef scrap may be placed in a hopper and left before them all the time. When this growing mash or mixture is not used a hopper containing bran should be accessible to the chickens at all times.

Kill Currant Worms.

Currant worms that hatch out in early May and feed greedily upon the leaves of currant and gooseberry bushes can be killed while small by a spray of arsenate of lead or paris green. Since these materials are objectionable on nearly matured fruit, hellebore or pyrethrum is used for dusting infected bushes later in the season.—Ohio Experiment Station.

DAIRYING AND SOIL CULTURE

KEEPING MILK SWEET.

Absolute Cleanliness and Quick Cooling Must Be Practiced.

Milk is a food product and must be cared for as such. Its value as food is very largely dependent upon the care it receives after it is drawn from the cow, says the Kansas Farmer. The cow may be depended upon to do her share in helping out on the world's food supply, but the care and preservation of milk are as essential as its production. It is valuable, both to the producer and the consumer, if it sours before it can be used.

To make milk safe it is necessary to prevent disease germs from getting into it; therefore the cows should be kept healthy. It is also important that the men who work with the cows be healthy and that pure water from a protected well or spring be used. Further precautions are the use of clean utensils, keeping the cows clean and using partly covered pails in milking.

Keeping milk sweet is entirely a matter of cleanliness and temperature regulation. Cows free from manure and dirt, especially in the region of the udder and flanks; utensils that are carefully cleaned, scalded or dried and careful protection of the milk from flies and dirt after production will prevent the entrance of bacteria into milk.

The milk sours as a result of the rapid increase and development of the bacteria which get into it in the process of handling. It is impossible to prevent some of these organisms from getting into milk. Bacteria cannot reproduce fast enough to sour milk in twenty-four hours if it is kept below a temperature of 55 degrees F. Therefore milk should be cooled as soon after production as possible. The easiest and most practical plan of cooling is to sink the cans to the level of the milk in a tub or running spring of cold water and to stir the milk frequently for five or ten minutes until cool. It should be held at or below 55 degrees F. if possible until used. The same methods are effective in keeping cream. It is impossible to make good butter from poor cream.

The essentials for keeping up the quality of milk and cream might be summed up as follows: Healthy cows and men, clean cows and men, clean cans and pails, covered milking pails and finally cooling the milk or cream to the temperature of cold well water within an hour after it is drawn and holding it at as low a temperature as possible until delivered.

FEED FOR DAIRY COWS.

Silo the Best and Cheapest Method of Handling Corn.

Every farmer who keeps milk cows should have a silo.

The feed question is the most serious problem that dairymen and farmer will have to face this year. With feeds steadily increasing in price every effort should be made to preserve all the home grown feeds possible.

The silo offers the best possible means of furnishing a succulent and palatable feed for the cows during the winter season. Milk cows will produce more milk when receiving silage than they will on dry feed. When corn or Kafir is put into the silo instead of harvesting it in the ordinary way a great saving of feed is effected. When corn is put into the silo in place of being handled in the usual way a saving of 30 to 50 per cent is realized.

The principal requirement of a silo is that it be air tight at the bottom and sides. Any material that will fulfill this requirement will keep silage. The cheapest and most practical type to build is the pit silo in regions where water would not interfere within the first twenty-five or thirty feet from the surface. This type of silo is built on the same plan as the ordinary cistern. In many places in this state the walls of the pit silo can be built by simply plastering the walls with a coating of cement.

Farmers in Demand.

So short are the food stocks in Europe that if the war were to end this summer it would be a year or more before the shortage could be made up and conditions brought back to those where demands for American food supplies were normal. In other words, the farmers and food producers of the United States, so far as can be discerned here, may reasonably expect heavy demands for foodstuffs for export this year, whether the war goes on or not. They may expect it next year even if peace comes. And if the war goes on indefinitely there will be a demand for more than this country can produce.—Farm and Fireside.

Mineral Mixture For Hogs.

Mineral matter kept before hogs at all times reduces their desire to root. No mixture is better than the following: Air slaked lime, two pounds; slaked coal, 100 pounds; salt, two pounds; epsom salts, one pound; coppers, two pounds. The last is dissolved in boiling water and poured over the other articles after they have been well mixed.

Mulching Celery.

Mulching celery is thoroughly practical. Four or five inches of fresh horse manure applied soon after the plants have been set will conserve the soil moisture and prevent weed growth and feed the plants. The mulching system is a success where other plans fail.

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 10, 1917

The imaginative persons who used to see ghosts at night, now see aeroplanes.

Next winter we will eat what we can, and if we don't can perhaps we can't eat.

Women make especially good soldiers because they are so used to thinking that "no" means "yes."

Add horrors of war! The way "The Star Spangled Banner" is sung by the audience at the close of a concert.

When the time comes that the women have to go to war, those who don't look well in khaki will be exempt.

There is a terrible drought in Germany but it is nothing to what the Prohibitionists want to create in this country.

If whiskey gets to be fifty cents a drink, as it is said it will be, many generous invitations to have it on Dutch treat are anticipated.

About time for some of the men who married to escape going to war to show up now at both the recruiting office and the divorce court.

The street costumes the ladies are wearing nowadays are making it very difficult for them to create any special sensation in a bathing suit.

A woman of this town says she knows that her son has been studying hard in college, because the shirts he sent home to be washed have lead pencil marks all over the cuffs.

When you see a man hanging around the entrance to a store half the afternoon, don't assume that he is a German spy. It may be that he is waiting for his wife inside to match a piece of goods.

BUYING AWAY FROM HOME

It is one of the queer things of life that many people like to buy goods at long distances from their own homes. They seem to regard shopping as one of the diversions of an outing trip. They scatter their money about at one place and another regardless whether they know anything about the stores they are patronizing. Thus they help every town to prosper except their own.

This is just what we have been trying to keep the people of this section from doing since we have had the management of the Marylander and Herald—to boost our town and the merchants. Now, we ask, what have we received in return?

Of course the merchants of any town gain as well as lose by this habit. If they lose home trade that should belong to them, they get trade from visitors from other places. But it remains true that the places where there is a strong sentiment of loyalty to home enterprises are the ones that go ahead.

The Marylander and Herald is a home enterprise. It does not beg the support of the merchants of this town, but it guarantees that every dollar that they spend in advertising at home will be of more benefit to them than that spent in advertising in other papers.

It is a great thing to know personally the reputation of the merchants with whom one is dealing. The stores in a distant city may look attractive seen from the outside. But they may have a persistent habit of working off second grade goods. The prices seem low, but just the same thing could be bought at home for the same money, if you told your merchant that you would put up with a second grade article.

The people who buy away from home often pay much more than they need to. They pay for style, elaborate systems of display, high cost of real estate and overhead charges. You can't get something for nothing.

There are bargains to be had regularly in any store, from New York down to the smallest village. They are produced by changes of seasons and styles, overstocks and such regular causes. You can get them at home just as well as anywhere else. By taking the home bargain you are running no chances, as you know from long acquaintance the character of the merchants with whom you are dealing.

For some occult reason Chesapeake Bay seems to imagine that it has a monopoly on German submarines. These mysterious craft are never sighted in Delaware Bay, or off New York or Boston, but always appear to be heading for Baltimore. That city has never recovered from the temporary publicity forced upon it by the Deutschland.—Philadelphia Record.

KEEP UP PAYMENTS ON BONDS

Some bankers of a doleful turn of mind are saying that many people who have bought Liberty bonds on the installment plan will fail to keep up payments. Perhaps the men who say that are out of sorts on account of the task imposed on them of keeping account of these payments. This is some job.

There are of course a great many people who never make a success of installment payments. Insurance companies find many lapses among those who have taken endowment policies. The policy holders lose by lapsing, but they have not the grit to keep up. In the installment furniture business there is a chance for crooked work in taking advantage of the many people who fail to keep up their payments. No doubt people of this kind have bought many Liberty bonds.

A dollar a week will make some people very tired after awhile. They will see so many things they want to spend the money for. Every candy shop, every cigar store, every movie show, calls to them, and will not be denied.

The people who have taken the larger bonds usually know where the money is to pay for them and will hand over the cash promptly. The lapses will be principally in the smaller issues. So the government will not lose such a tremendous sum. But such lapses will increase the work of raising the needed war funds, and spread abroad a feeling of lack of support of the government. It is intermittent patriotism, good at flag raising, but poor at doing anything.

Many thousands of people have taken these bonds who have never acquired before the habit of saving money. It is a test of character for them, a measure of their ability to achieve success. If they can put this thing over, they will have got something more than the $50 or $100 bond. They will have acquired the saving habit, which is the foundation of business success. Keep up the payments.

HOW TO HELP THE FARMERS

People who come closely in touch with agricultural sections find that much of the talk urging farmers to raise more crops has not taken account of their real difficulties. The railroad and bank people of Aroostook county, Maine, the famous potato country, have this spring made an effort to encourage more wheat growing. The intelligent and systematic way in which they went about it is worth widespread attention and imitation.

They did not content themselves with appeals for more food. Instead, they got right out among the farmers and talked over the situation. They found two great obstacles to a bigger wheat acreage. First, lack of financial ability to buy more seed and fertilizer; second, lack of help.

The farmer dislikes to place a mortgage on his farm when he merely wants money to tide over the busy season. It is a question how far the new farm loan banks will meet this exigency. What the farmer needs is short term loans to cover temporary emergencies similar to the temporary accommodations that a manufacturer gets when he has the most money locked up in stocks. The Aroostook people arranged to let the farmers have these temporary loans. They also scoured the country for help, with some results.

The trouble has been that hitherto the farmer has had to wrestle with these problems alone. He brooded over them in his solitary way, but that didn't get him anywhere. He was too busy to take time to form with his neighbors co-operative machinery to meet these problems, so he let things drift and raised the same old crops in the same old way.

In any farm section there can be a big increase in production if the business men of the district will take hold of it in this practical way, giving the farmer the same accommodation that other business men get. It will help every business interest of the district.

OYSTER NAVY IN THE WAR

Into the strum and drang of the world war goes our ancient and valiant oyster navy! And it is some navy—there are fifteen ships of the line and not a single ship of the fifteen that wouldn't plug a submarine just below the periscope if given a chance. The transfer of the Maryland navy to federal service and so to war service was made on Monday with the proper formalities. The ships had already been painted the wartime gray. They are windjammers mostly, and the names painted on their bows are, almost without exception, peacefully suggestive. Who would ever think of the "Snookums" in a raging and relentless sea fight, sinking enemy ships on the farboard and the starboard? But names are quite frequently delusive. The Snookums has on her war paint. Her particular assignment is to guard the mouth of the Potomac River—the sea approach to the national capital.

Peace, at present, spreads all over the Tidewater region of Maryland. The State of Virginia, which also maintains an oyster navy, will, let us hope, not be taking any advantage of the fact that the Maryland navy has been transferred to the federal service. Relations between the Annapolis and the Richmond governments have at times been slightly strained over those Potomac bottoms, but never to the breaking point. War has always been avoided. Upon all festive occasions (until Virginia went home dry) the remarks passed between the governors of the two states were similar in purport to what the governor of North Carolina said to the governor of South Carolina on a famous occasion.—Baltimore American.

FREE SERVICE FOR PUBLIC GOOD

One of the most encouraging features of the recent Liberty Bond campaign was the amount of free service that was given. It has in the recent past been an unfortunate fact that people expect pay for so many services to public causes which they should contribute for the public good.

Formerly a great many public enterprises used to be promoted with gratuitous labor. The old timers got out with their spades and water pots and planted trees along the highways on their own time. They never thought of asking pay for it. Now we call on the municipality to do that thing at public cost. If a man saw a bad place in the road he would get out and mend it out of public spirit. Perhaps the possibility of that has gone by in these days when motors are tearing our roads all to pieces. But the old spirit of helpfulness in such matters was very praiseworthy.

In the country districts they say that the cattle shows and county fairs were started on gratuitous service. Farmers would give grain and hay and their own time. Now most of such services have to be paid for.

The war is bringing the hearts of the people closer together and reviving the old spirit of community service. The newspapers did their bit in the Liberty bond campaign by contributing millions of inches of free space that cost them good money. Financiers and bond selling houses are entitled to great credit. The selling of securities is their stock in trade on which they depend for a living. At the call of the government they gave free service and put a vast amount of work into the proposition. Many of them have sat up nights handling the detail of the thing. Keeping track of all the installment payments that are to be made will extend the task over many months. It is a fine spirit. If we can apply it more in our community life it will make possible many projects heretofore regarded as merely dreams.

MANAGING A VACATION

As the hot days arrive, it is, as usual, time to consider taking a vacation. Of course, some people take one all the year round. But even by hard-working people a vacation can be either used or abused. Indeed, it seems that many persons fail to get very much good from their holidays. They even take harm.

How else can one explain the frequency with which the question is asked, "Have you recovered from your vacation yet?" Of course, this may refer only to a fact commonly known, that after you have broken your regular routine for a while, it does take a day or two to get back into harness, even though you are feeling better than when you left home. But the need of "recovering" from a vacation may run somewhat deeper. It may mean that you didn't think the situation over carefully enough before you started.

Everyone ought to ask himself, before going on a vacation, "How tired am I as a matter of fact?" Just a little mentally weary and needing a change, or tired clear through, mind fatigued and body run down? If a person has reached this second stage, then he ought to lay aside all intention of having a strenuous vacation and give himself all the rest he can possibly get. Some physical exercise each day may be all right, but it should be stopped the moment the muscles grow tired.

On the other hand, if you are feeling fairly fresh when you start, it will probably do you good to enter with enthusiasm into all possible plans for exercises and diversions, even to force yourself a little in pursuit of them. It may be just the thing to start sluggish nerves into new life.

If you cannot take a vacation, it is always well to arrange some little changes in your usual routine. Try sleeping outdoors for a while. Go on a trip or two, if only for the afternoon. One hard-working woman in a big city library was asked if she never took a vacation. "Why, no, I don't need to," she promptly replied, "I just change my work—that's all the vacation I need!"

WHAT THE NAVY DID

Indeed the country got thrilling news on the Fourth of July, when it learned that the vessels carrying General Pershing's expeditionary force were twice attacked; that the naval convoy sank one submarine certainly, and probably more, and that not a ship was scratched and not a man injured. The naval guard of the transports was planned and executed with remarkable ability, the care even going so far as to prevent any floating waste from the fleet, which might have given evidence of its passage, and the marksmanship of the gunners was admirable. The transportation of this body of troops with its armament, supplies and horses with perfect safety, and its defense against a fleet of submarines are subjects for national pride as well as thankfulness. They reflect the utmost credit upon the army and the navy.

Do they bring any sense of shame to the Republican Congressmen and ex-Secretaries of the Navy and newspapers that for four years have been jeering at everything in the navy from Mr. Daniels down, and who have demanded Mr. Baker's removal ever since his appointment? Are these men capable of blushing? Have they enough moral sense to realize now that it was not the Democratic party, but the American nation and the Government of the United States, that they were denouncing and belittling and insulting?

In their attacks on the army and navy, from the Secretaries down, ever since Woodrow Wilson became President, they were sinning against light. They had plenty of foreign—and therefore impartial—opinion to correct their narrow partisanship, but they shed it as a duck's back sheds water. The work of Mr. Daniels was understood and appreciated by Admiral Dewey and by foreign naval experts. The movement of the army to the Mexican border was a demonstration of the enormous improvement in military management since the Spanish war was fought under a Republican Administration. But nothing could silence the din of detraction that was led by a Republican Congressman and a Secretary of the Navy in Mr. Roosevelt's Cabinet, and joined in by the great majority of Republican politicians and papers.

And now the army and navy are being tested in the greatest and most difficult operations ever entrusted to them. What had to be done in 1898 was only child's play compared with the present tasks of our fighting services. They are meeting the emergency as every American, who was intelligent and too patriotic to be partisan, expected them to. And not one of these libelers of the American army and navy has yet had the grace to make a public apology.—Philadelphia Record.

Charles H. Maddox, Artie M. Maddox and Rosanna Maddox, his wife, John W. Maddox and Rosie Maddox, his wife, and Robert R. Maddox vs. Laura J. Collins and Ferdinand Collins, her husband, Mary M. Benston and Edgar Benston, her husband, William F. Maddox and Rosa Lee Maddox, his wife, Sabia Heath and Ralph Heath, her husband, Lavina Maddox, Nellie Rosanna Maddox and Sadie C. Maddox.

No. 3163 Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate in Westover Election District, Somerset county, Maryland, of which the late Charles A. Maddox died seized and possessed, for the purpose of partition and division among the heirs entitled to the proceeds thereof.

The bill in substance states that Charles A. Maddox died on or about the 12th day of May, 1915, and possessed of a lot of land located in Westover Election District, Somerset county, Md., containing eight acres of land, more or less, which was conveyed to the said Charles A. Maddox by Peter Fontaine by deed recorded among the land records of Somerset county in Liber S. F. D. No. 54, folio 246, etc., and being so seized and possessed, he died without leaving a widow surviving him, and intestate, and leaving the following as his only children and heirs at law, who are still living and all of whom are over the age of twenty-one years, namely: Charles H. Maddox, unmarried and residing in Chester, Pa.; Artie M. Maddox, who intermarried with Rosanna Maddox, both of whom reside in Somerset county, Md.; John W. Maddox, who intermarried with Rosie Maddox, both of whom reside in Somerset county, Md.; Robert R. Maddox, unmarried and residing in Somerset county, Md.; Laura J. Collins, who intermarried with Ferdinand Collins, both of whom reside in Swarthmore, Pa.; Mary M. Benston, who intermarried with Edgar Benston, both of whom reside in Swarthmore, Pa.; William F. Maddox, who intermarried with Rosa Lee Maddox, both of whom reside in Swarthmore, Pa.; Sabia Heath, who intermarried with Ralph Heath, both of whom reside in Swarthmore, Pa.; Lavina Maddox, unmarried and residing in Swarthmore, Pa.; Nellie Rosanna Maddox, unmarried and residing in Swarthmore, Pa.; Sadie C. Maddox, unmarried and residing in Swarthmore, Pa.

That the said real estate is not susceptible of partition without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interest therein, as above stated, and that in order to make division of said interest, it will be necessary that the said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof divided among the parties interested therein.

That all of the said defendants, the said Laura J. Collins and Ferdinand Collins, her husband, Mary M. Benston and Edgar Benston, her husband, William F. Maddox and Rosa Lee Maddox, his wife, Sabia Heath and Ralph Heath, her husband, Lavina Maddox, Nellie Rosanna Maddox and Sadie C. Maddox, are non-residents of this State.

The Conscription Boards

Men upon whom has been put the duty of determining who are exempt in the selective draft would probably have been just as well satisfied if their names had not been made public so far in advance of the drawing. It is calculated to subject them to more or less solicitation that they might have otherwise been free from. But the duty that devolves upon them is of such character that it should prompt every one of them to scorn the thought of letting social, business or any other kind of solicitation have the slightest weight. The man who would abuse this function and send one mother's son to the front when another mother's son should go instead must have the sort of conscience whose sleep nothing could murder.

PERSHING GREETED ARMY IN CAMP

French Populace Frantically Enthusiastic.

LANDED WITHOUT INCIDENT

No Transport Was Harmed in the Voyage Through the Submarine Zone.

Major General John J. Pershing arrived at a French Seaport from Paris to greet the American troops in camp. These hardy regulars, the first of the great army which later will represent the United States in the struggle against German autocracy, have been arriving for the last two days.

Thousands of them have come within the last twenty-four hours out of the misty vastness of the U-boat infested sea that held no terrors for them. They came without a torpedo scratch on a transport. Not a single man was lost.

Spick-and-span, with weather-browned faces, their eyes sparkling light, every one of them every inch a man, they tramped down the gangways to the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner," into a pandemonium of unending cheers.

They are in camp itching to get to the front. The camp is not far from here. It is in charge of Major General William L. Sibert, who came in command of the troops.

As these thousands of American fighting lads poured off the American transports, scores of German prisoners stood on the pier. Teeth set, they looked half sideways at these strapping newcomers. Those who watched the prisoners could discern a grudging admiration in their looks.

The remarkable thing about the scenes attending the real entrance into the world war through the safe arrival of the expeditionary force was the spontaneity, the touching warmth of their reception.

Not an inkling of the arrival had leaked out. There had been no preparation, no program committee with speeches and songs, no reception or the like. Not until the first transport had safely arrived off the port Tuesday, ready to disembark did the momentous news become known. Then the people simply "got wild."

The second contingent arrived Wednesday. The first transport struck her gray nose into the harbor in the early morning. The piers were swarming with thousands. There were few men, of course, only aged and wounded. The others are at the front.

The realization that these newcomers are shortly to fight side by side with the French, who are already in the thick of battle, drove the women frantic with joy and gratitude.

The American troops answered the cheers by throwing small silver coins ashore. A roaring scramble among the street urchins followed. They didn't spend the coins for candy. They wrapped them up carefully in under ragged kerchiefs to save them as sacred souvenirs.

The disembarkation passed off in the most orderly manner. There was not the slightest hitch. Ship after ship slipped her berth, discharging men and equipment. Confusion seemed an unknown quantity to these khaki-clad youths and their officers.

From the piers the American troops swung off through the streets where the whole populace had turned out to give them a tremendous ovation. The crowds showered flowers, fruits, cigarettes and dainties upon the marchers. "Vive l'Amérique," ("Long live America,") was the unending cry. This shout was repeated over and over again.

"You'll chase the Germans out of our country?"

"We will!" came the thunderous chorus from the Yankee boys.

The reception and progress through the city were one great triumphal march. The French onlookers remarked time and again upon the youth and physique of the Americans.

For France this was the proudest, the happiest day since the Marne.

AGAINST JEWS IN PALESTINE

Turk Leader Says He Will Not Allow Schools to Reopen.

Djemal Pasha, the Turkish commander in Syria, one of the most influential leaders of the young Turks, said recently in a review called "German Policy," that all the American, English, French and Russian schools in Syria and Palestine had been closed, and that he would never allow them to reopen after the war.

He regarded this as an indispensable step toward the rooting out of entente influence in the post bellum period. Jewish colonization, he declared, was equally injurious, and he would do his utmost to oppose it.

The review, dated June 8, has only just arrived through a secret route. It is believed the German government forbade sending copies abroad, owing to its anti-Jewish character.

Nurses Are Too Fat.

Most Red Cross nurses are too fat. Put them in training for two to six months before you send them to the trenches. This suggestion came to the council of national defense. It is believed "German propaganda."

FOOD UP 5% IN MONTH

Government Figures Show 39 Per Cent
Jump in Year Ending May 15.

The prices of retail food in the United States have advanced on an average of 5 per cent from April 16 to May 15, as shown by figures compiled by the bureau of labor statistics.

During the year ending with May 15 they increased 39 per cent.

The biggest jump during the month was in flour, which advanced 29 per cent. The increase in cornmeal was 15 per cent; beans, 14 per cent; bread, 13 per cent, and rice, 11 per cent.

The only drop in prices was in onions, 36 per cent, and butter, 9 per cent.

Some of the month's increases are given as follows: Beef, 2 to 4 per cent; bacon and lard, 8 to 10 per cent; hens, 1 per cent; salmon, 10 per cent; eggs, 3 per cent; cheese, 3 per cent; milk, 3 per cent; potatoes, 6 per cent; sugar, 5 per cent; coffee and tea, 1 per cent.

The greatest advances during the year were made by potatoes, which advanced in price 149 per cent and in flour, 122 per cent.

In the last four years retail prices generally have advanced 56 per cent.

American foodstuff exports in May reached a value of $104,000,000.

Shipments were greater by $5,000,000 than in April, and $20,000,000 than in March.

During the eleven months ending with May, the country shipped abroad $833,000,000 worth of food as against $744,000,000 in the same period the year before.

TO CUT HARD COAL PRICES

Hard Coal Men Willing to Meet Gov. ernment in Spirit of Conciliation.

Both the American consumer and the government are to get relief from the high cost of coal.

Beginning July 1 the price of soft coal at all mines east of the Mississippi is to be reduced one to five dollars a ton to the consumer, with a still further cut of fifty cents to the government.

It was agreed to defer the question of lower prices on hard coal until after July 1. Anthracite operators indicate willingness to meet the government in the same spirit shown by soft coal men.

As a result of the agreement, government officials estimate the government and public will be saved more than $180,000,000 annually.

By eliminating strong drink from the coal producing states, J. A. D. Morrow, of the Pittsburgh Coal Producers' association, told the senate interstate commerce committee and coal production can be increased 25,000,000 tons a year with an adequate car supply.

In the Pittsburgh district alone, he said, production would be increased 5,000,000 tons.

"Alcoholic liquor is one of the worst enemies of the miners in western Pennsylvania," said Mr. Morrow. "It is impossible to get men to work more than a few days a week. The same trouble exists in Illinois and Ohio."

TRIED TO RUIN POTATO CROP

Unnaturalized Austrian Caught in Act and Ordered From Town.

Jabes Entresky, an unnaturalized Austrian, who was employed cultivating a large potato field on the G. B. Markle company property, at Jeddo, near Hazleton, Pa., was discovered destroying the crop and was promptly discharged.

The man was ordered off the premises, paid what was due him, and told to leave the region or stand prosecution. To friends, it is alleged, he said he was trying to help the Austrians win the war.

U-Boats Got 5 French Ships.

Two French merchantmen of more than 1600 tons and three of less than that size were sunk by submarines off mines in the week past ending.

VALUE OF THE COCONUT.

It Might Pay Well to Cultivate the Plant in This Country.

Americans have entirely ignored or else have never known of the really wonderful possibilities which exist to accumulate a fortune by growing coconuts for export or for the production of the coconut tree's numerous marketable byproducts.

In the West Indies, Central and South America the fruit is used chiefly for local consumption, the water from the green coconut being a beverage decidedly cool and refreshing, with medicinal values. The leaves from the center of the top of the tree make an excellent salad and are to be found in all Latin American markets in the zones in which they grow. The hewn tree serves the native for a habitation, and a roof is made from the gigantic fronds. From the smaller leaves excellent hats of a high grade are fashioned, but few of which reach this country. From some localities ripened nuts are exported in bulk in the holds of ships, often as ballast, to this country, where a few concerns are engaged in grating coconut meat for the use of confectioners and bakers.

In the West Indies housewives make their own butter from coconuts, four nuts yielding a pound of high grade butter at a cost of less than 10 cents.—W. E. Aulbaugh in Leslie's.

THE BANK TELLER.

His Title Comes From the Old English
Use of Wooden Tallies.

Formerly accounts were kept and large sums of money paid and received by the king's exchequer in London, with little other form than the exchange or delivery of tallies, pieces of wood notched or scored, corresponding blocks being kept by the parties to the account. From this usage one of the head officers of the exchequer was called the "taller" or "teller." These tallies were often negotiable. Adam Smith in his "Wealth of Nations" says that "in 1696 tallies had been at 40 and 50 and 60 per cent discount, and banknotes at 20 per cent."

The system of tallies was discontinued about 1830, and the destruction in the night of Oct. 16, 1834, of the old houses of parliament is thought to have been occasioned by the overheating of the flues when the furnaces were employed to consume the tallies, rendered useless by the alteration in the mode of keeping the exchequer accounts. An account of the ancient tally system was written by William Hone.

Grease Spots.

Grease spots can be removed with gasoline or with ether. But careful manipulation is necessary. Gasoline and ether must be kept away from any flame. Pour enough gasoline or ether on a tablespoonful of starch to make a paste, place the paste on the under side of the spot and allow to remain several minutes. Brush off the starch when it is dry. Ether evaporates more rapidly than gasoline and leaves no unpleasant odor.

Names Ending in "Velt."

Veldt is a changed form of the Dutch "veld," the same as our English word "field." It means simply open ground, or prairie. Westervelt means west field; Roosevelt, rose field; Blauevelt, blue field. There are other Dutch names ending in "velt" and many parallel names in German and other tongues.

Puzzled by His Choice.

"I can't understand it."
"What?"
"That rich man proposing marriage to her."
"Why not?"
"Well, he was introduced to my daughter the same day he met her."—Detroit Free Press.

BAD BACKS BRING SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

Many Princess Anne People Deprived of Restful Sleep by a Sore, Aching Back

There is little peace or rest for the backache sufferer. Night brings no respite from the day's misery—the same old backache is ever present, the sharp twinges when turning or twisting. The annoying urinary troubles, the headaches and nervousness, all tend to prevent rest or sleep. You often arise more tired than when you went to bed. If you have kidney trouble you must get to the cause—the kidneys. Weak kidneys seldom get well alone. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that is so strongly endorsed by your friends and neighbors in Princess Anne. Could you desire more convincing proof of merit?

W. T. Gibbons, farmer, Route No. 4, Princess Anne, says: "I was troubled with backache and mornings I felt tired out on account of losing a lot of sleep. When I sat down and tried to get up, pains shot through me like a knife thrust. My kidneys were too active, causing me to get up at night. The kidney secretions were highly colored and I was in a bad way in general. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Jones' drug store, and after using two boxes, I was rid of kidney trouble."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Gibbons had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Baltimore Star

The Leading Evening Paper of the South

The Baltimore Star, established August 17, 1908, by the publishers of The Baltimore American, has won its place as the representative evening paper of the South. It gives more news and more reading matter than any other afternoon paper in Maryland. It is especially rich in departments—financial, sporting, society, children, women, and to these departments the best writers of America are regular contributors. The Star is the great home paper, with something for every member of the family. It is a cheerful newspaper, with plenty of entertainment. Those who try it are on taking it.

The Star is elaborately illustrated. It has the first photographs of important events. Its portraits of leading men and women are unequalled. The Star has two great news services, with wires direct to its offices from all parts of the world. The Star has a wireless equipment. It uses every modern invention and the best enterprise to get all the news.

The Star is different from other Southern papers. It has a quality of its own.

LAST CHANCE TO BECOME OFFICERS

The second series of Officers Training Camps, which opens on August 27th, will probably be the last chance for men not in the military service to become officers during the war.

The purpose of these camps is to train men fitted to become the first lieutenants, captains, majors, and some lieutenant colonels of the second 500,000. The second lieutenants and some first lieutenants will be selected from the younger men in the first camps and promoted from the first draft.

The men most wanted are those from 25 to 44 who stand out in their communities because of their success in business, civic or similar activities—men who have proven themselves competent leaders.

Men of this type will stand a good chance of appointment and should feel every encouragement to apply for admission to the camps. Previous military training is not necessary. The training camp for this district is Fort Myer, Va. Men selected will receive transportation, uniforms, subsistence and $100.00 a month pay during the three months in training. When commissioned they will receive the same pay and allowances as officers of similar grade in the regular army.

Application blanks, with detailed instructions will be sent from the office of Charles L. Lanham, Captain U. S. A., 17 South street, Baltimore, Md.

Men Needed In Regular Army

The men of Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia are apparently beginning to realize that they are needed to volunteer in the Regular Army. The full quota for these two States and the District of Columbia must be obtained, and must be obtained quickly in order that the plans of the Administration may be carried out.

Definite and detailed plans of the General Staff of the Army have been worked out to the effect that the Regular Army has been given a certain mission. A certain place in the order of things has been designated for it, and there are certain duties for it to perform.

Such a vast and complex organization as an army of a nation as great as the United States, must need to have each and every unit complete and efficient to the nth power. That part of its Regular Army which it has is efficient. It is not yet completed. It rests with the eligible young men of the country to complete it by volunteering their services.

Although the Regular Army Week, so designated by the President in his proclamation, has come to an end, even a harder drive is now being made by the Regular Army Recruiting Officers of this District.

Captain McKenney believes it entirely possible that Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia can be brought through with their quota before the end of July. Then these two States and the District of Columbia will have the satisfaction of knowing that they have done their part in furnishing men to the nation.

Western Maryland College

Western Maryland College, at Westminster, Md., appears in our columns this week in an advertisement soliciting the patronage of our people for another year's enrollment.

It has just completed at its recent commencement the completion of its first fifty years. The success of that occasion in every way proclaimed that "Western Maryland" has made a good record and built up a reputation that was enviable. Men and women can be found all over the State doing credit to its training and there are few communities not represented in the enrollment of its recent years. Altogether it has registered about 3500 students, and of these it has graduated over 1000.

Its beautiful location, in the highlands of Maryland, its excellent equipment in buildings and grounds, its well-trained faculty, its up-to-date curriculum, and its charges all kept down to reasonable terms make it an attractive place to get an education.

In addition to the usual Classical, Scientific and Historical courses leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts, there are supplementary courses in Music, Elocution, Oratory and Pedagogy. Completion of this last-named course secures the certificate of the State Board of Education.

We commend this Institution to any of our readers who may be considering the question, where is my boy or girl to go to college?

A Maryland County Agent's Doctrine

"Do not plant your crops and expect a full yield unless you do something to help the soil feed the crop," says County Agent J. H. Drury, Prince Frederick County, Maryland. "Commercial fertilizers are higher in price than formerly, but so are crop prices. If you will use the right formulas on the right crops and make a test of same, you will need only one season to prove to you it is both practicable and profitable. To be convinced of this just lay off a portion of your crops, on like soil, and grow with and without fertilizers. We are still much like the doubting Thomas; we must see to believe, but we are starving our lands and growing poorer each year when we neglect to feed our soil."

Nails Tell Story.

If there are any black spots on the nails, these denote grief, contention and melancholia while they last. They are very rarely found, however, being the product of an occasional severe case.

Doing Good

Few medicines have met with more favor or accomplished more good than Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. John F. Jantzen, Delmeny, Sask., says of it, "I have used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy myself and in my family, and can recommend it as being an exceptionally fine preparation."

Governor Names Defense Council

Governor Harrington last Friday named the State Council of Defense authorized by the Legislature in special session. There are 50 names in the list, the limit set by the Legislature.

Of the names announced 44 were members of the Preparedness Commission, which proposed the war legislation recently adopted. The six new names are Frank A. Furst, Gen. Francis E. Waters, Judge Hammond Urner, Stevenson A. Williams, Louis K. Guffman and Joseph Y. Brattan. DAIRY WISDOM.

Type is not the real test of a cow's value. The scales and tester are better indications. Every year the farmer wonders how the pasture is going to hold out, says the Farm Journal. It is a pretty safe guess that it will fall off about August. Be ready for it. Don't overload the pastures. Salt, shade and water are essential to the development of a dairy herd. Stagnant water is unfit for the stock. Drain the marshes and ponds or fence the cattle away from them. Where chronic dysentery is present in a dairy herd try washing the cows' udders with a 2 per cent solution of coal tar disinfectant before allowing the calves to suck. A cow with the ability to make good records is hindered in production if handled by an ignorant herdsman.

He Was Soured.

"Have you 'Love Letters of Wise Men?'" she asked timidly. "No, miss," responded the clerk in the book department. "And why not?" "Because wise men never write love letters."—London Telegraph.

Confer On Annapolis Ferry

Several representatives of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway Company were in conference last Thursday afternoon with Governor Harrington and State Treasurer John M. Dennis relative to the proposed ferry service between Claiborne and Annapolis.

The Governor called the conference for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the company would be willing to undertake the operation of the ferry on its own account, and, if not, whether it would be possible for the State, if it operates the ferry, to make use of the company's docking facilities at Claiborne.

It was stated that it will be next to impossible for the company to handle any more traffic at its wharf during the summer, but that some arrangements may be made for increasing its facilities during the winter. The State has under consideration the purchase of a boat to answer all purposes, which can make both the Claiborne and the Annapolis landings without increasing the present depth of water.

This boat is now in operation near New York. It is 193 feet long, 33 feet wide and draws about 9 feet of water. Experts who have examined it say that it is a bargain at the price offered the State. The appropriation for the purchase of the boat is $50,000 and the boat, it is asserted, can be bought for less than that amount.

The Governor is to put his proposition in writing and send it to the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Company, which will then give him a definite answer.

How To Win The War

In a recent interview W. S. Gifford, Director of the Council of National Defense and of the Advisory Commission, said:

Our nation possesses more producing resources than any other two nations in the world. Organized as a producing machine we shall win the war. Individual initiative and self reliance are normally developed in a democracy to a higher degree than in any other form of government. Peoples and institutions have grown under the spur of competition and freedom of action so that we are noted for our individual efficiency and enterprise. An army must obviously be highly organized and subject to discipline.

Individual effort, no matter how great, must be organized so as to work for a common purpose if they are to be effective. Not alone team work, but a voluntary acceptance of discipline in the cause of national defense is imperative. We do not wish to Prussianize America, but each of us must voluntarily submit to the rules and regulations of organization in order that we may build up fighting industries which, with their voluntary discipline will stand side by side in efficiency with our fighting armies. The time has now come when we must sink the individual in an organization of which the keynote will be the highest efficiency, the spirit will be patriotic unselfishness and self-sacrifice, and the accomplishment will be the realization of Democracy in the speedy termination of the war.

It takes a lot to please some people who are not very pleasing themselves.

GET YOUR NUMBER FROM POSTED DRAFT LIST

Full List Of Those Registered For Draft In Somerset County Has Been Posted In The Clerk's Office At Princess Anne

The Exemption Board for Somerset county—Drs. Charles W. Wainwright and C. E. Collins and Mr. W. Jerome Sterling—has had prepared lists of all those who registered for war service, in alphabetical order, as provided for by the War Department, and these lists have been posted in the Clerk's Office at Princess Anne so that every man may familiarize himself with his number, which will correspond with the number placed in the wheel in Washington when the drawing comes off next week, for the selection of the first 500,000 men who will compose the first division of the new army.

Under the instructions from the War Department, the Exemption Board has renumbered all the enrollment cards in numerical order from 1 to 1896, which is the number of men enrolled in Somerset county. When the drawing comes off in Washington only numbers will be placed in the machine, these numbers corresponding with the number set opposite the name of each resident of this county, and as soon as the drawing in Washington is completed the numbers will be telegraphed to the board here and the names selected accordingly.

After the drawing in Washington and the publication of the names by the Exemption Board those who have any just cause to ask for exemption will have their cases heard by the board, and the applicant, if not satisfied, has the right of appeal to an Exemption Board which is composed of five members. It is understood that the exemption Board here will have but little discretion regarding exemption, as the board will be forced to follow strict rules laid down by the War Department and cannot deviate from these rules without authority from a higher source. This ruling has been made by the department so as to insure no partiality being used in this selective draft.

Public School Notes

At a meeting of the Board of Education of Somerset county last Tuesday a number of recommendations for teachers in the county were gone over but all confirmations were withheld until the meeting of the board this (Tuesday) afternoon. One teacher at least was agreed upon, namely, the principal of the Princess Anne High School. The gentleman selected is Mr. Elgie G. Purvis, who is a graduate of the University of Virginia, who called upon the school authorities ten days ago. Mr. Purvis comes with the highest class of recommendations and with experience as principal of a Virginia High School. In addition to this work, he has attended the summer school of the University of Virginia for several years past.

Mr. W. Percy Maddox, who was one of those who took the competitive examination for the vacant scholarship at St. John's College, was the winner in the contest. The Board of Education last Tuesday appointed him, after receiving the report of the examination from the county superintendent. Mr. Maddox's appointment was sent to Senator George P. Parsons for his approval and upon its return was forwarded to Dr. Thomas Fell, president of the college, at Annapolis. Mr. Maddox is a son of Mr. Robert F. Maddox, of Princess Anne.

Mr. E. Clifford Ryall has resigned as principal of Fairmount Central School, and sent his resignation to the Board of Education last Saturday. Mr. Ryall has enlisted in the Navy Reserves, and expects to be called to active service in the next three weeks.

Among the recommendations for scholarships were the following for the Maryland State Normal School, Towson, Md.: Miss Elsie Anderson, Princess Anne, Route 1; Miss Elizabeth Cullen, Kingston, and Miss Elizabeth Shores, Chance.

Mrs. Aline N. Benjamin Dead

Mrs. Aline Naisby Benjamin, widow of the late Mr. A. J. Benjamin, of Salisbury, died at an early hour last Friday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. Douglass Wallop, at the Washington Hotel, of Bright's disease.

Mrs. Benjamin was born in 1847 and was a native of Philadelphia, Pa. She and her husband had been residents of Salisbury for many years. Mr. Benjamin being one of the most prominent citizens of that city. For the past year or more Mrs. Benjamin had made her home, at intervals, with her daughter in Princess Anne. She was an educated, refined and cultured woman whose many good qualities of mind and heart endeared her to a large circle of acquaintances and friends.

The deceased is survived by two daughters (Mrs. Sidney H. Phillips, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. J. Douglass Wallop, of this town) and one son (Mr. Alan F. Benjamin, of Salisbury). She is also survived by one sister, Mrs. T. Larkin Fairbank, who resides in Colorado, and by eight grandchildren. Miss Aline D. Wallop and Mr. J. D. Wallop, Jr., of Princess Anne; Howard W., Hugh J. and Albert J. B. Phillips, of Washington, D. C., and Alan F., James L. and Albert J. Benjamin, of Salisbury.

The remains were taken to Salisbury last Sunday and funeral services were held there at 4.30 o'clock in the afternoon at the Episcopal Church, conducted by Rev. Mr. Boyle. Interment was in the churchyard adjoining. The pallbearers were Messrs. John D. Williams, C. J. Birkhead, Walter C. Humphreys, William M. Cooper, E. Riall White and Dean W. Perdue.

Miss Morgan Gives Demonstrations

The Women's Canning Club, of Princess Anne, met last Wednesday morning in the High School building. Miss Morgan, the county home demonstrator, demonstrated the canning of beets and beans, and much interest and enthusiasm was shown by the members. In the afternoon the Girls' Club met and canned peas and beans and began their sewing. The lesson was very interesting and much enjoyed by all.

It is hoped that more girls and women will take advantage of these lessons, which will be given every Wednesday in the High School building at 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. The work will not be limited to canning, but all kinds of home economics will be taught, from government directions and according to the economy plan laid by the United States food specialists.

Miss Morgan has an office in the Court House, where she can be found every Saturday. It is hoped that all the women of Somerset county will take advantage of the work in their various towns, and feel free to write or call upon Miss Morgan at any time.

Stores Now Close Early

We are glad to see that the merchants of Princess Anne have taken a sensible view of business during the summer months and that the stores are closed at 7 o'clock p. m., Saturdays excepted. The merchants naturally feel they want some little recreation during the hot summer months. They have, therefore, requested us to say to the public that they will greatly appreciate it if prospective buyers will endeavor as much as possible to co-operate with them in this undertaking and do what buying is necessary before 7 o'clock in the evening.

NO BOOZE NOW SHIPPED BY RAIL

Reed Amendment Applies To All Dry Counties Of The State

Thirsty "Eastern Sho'men" must get their "booze" in the future by boat or aeroplane and within the state. No more can the habitats of the "gallon-a-month" counties order choice liquors from Philadelphia, New York or some point outside the state. Likewise they cannot even order their drinkables from Baltimore shipped to them by rail. This because all such shipments would become interstate commerce and the Reed "bone-dry" amendment, which became effective on July 1, covers sections of states which are "dry" as well as whole states operating under prohibition laws.

United States District Attorney Dennis has given an opinion that the Reed amendment applies to all dry counties of Maryland and has announced that his office will prosecute all violators of the amendment.

This opinion thus forces residents of dry Maryland counties to order liquors from some wet point within their own state alone and to transport the supply by some means whereby it will not become interstate commerce.

As all Eastern Shore points are only reached by rail connections through Delaware, the Reed amendment thus forbids rail shipments of intoxicants to "the Shore." Such shipments may, however, be sent by boat from Baltimore and likewise may be sent to all points within the state reached by existing trolley systems. Dry Garrett county is also seriously affected in that its thirsty ones must also do without rail shipments and must depend upon motor-truck or horse service to transport their "joy" water, because both railroads running through Western Maryland skirt over into West Virginia before reaching Cumberland.

Somerset county has been declared dry territory under the recent Federal law forbidding the use of the mails for the purpose of advertising or soliciting of liquors and further forbidding any railroad company to carry any alcoholic beverages into dry territory.

Burial of Judge Jones

The funeral of Judge Robley D. Jones was held from his residence in Snow Hill last Tuesday afternoon, burial being in Whatcoat Methodist Episcopal Church Cemetery. The pallbearers were John M. Staton, William D. Corddry, William F. Johnson, Oscar M. Purnell, John L. Nock and J. Edward White. Revs. L. E. Poole, of Whatcoat Methodist Episcopal Church, and W. S. Kregar, of Mackemie Memorial Presbyterian Church, officiated. Practically the entire bar of the First Judicial district, with the associated judges of the bench, and Judge Conrad, of Delaware, acted as honorary pallbearers.

The funeral was one of the largest ever held in Snow Hill, and prominent people, representing the legal profession and ministers and prominent laymen of the Methodist Church from Delaware and Maryland Peninsula were in attendance.

Those who attended the funeral from Princess Anne were: Judge and Mrs. H. L. D. Stanford, Colonel and Mrs. Henry J. Waters, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Duer, Messrs. Joshua W. Miles, S. Frank Dashiell, George H. Myers, Harry C. Dashiell, Gordon Tull, W. Jerome Sterling, L. Creston Beauchamp, B. H. Sterling and William J. Phillips.

Democrats To Meet July 25th

Dr. J. Hubert Wade, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, last Tuesday issued a call for the meeting of the committee at the Hotel Remert, Baltimore, at 1 p. m. on Wednesday, July 25. The principal business before the committee will be to arrange for the fixing of the date for the primary election and to name the date for the State Convention to follow. Under the existing law the primary must be held "on a day to be fixed by an agreement between the governing bodies of the two political parties for the state not earlier than the 8th of September and not later than the 15th day of September."

To Organize Farm Loan Association

An important meeting of farmers will be held Friday afternoon, July 20th, in the Court House, to organize a Farm Loan Association in Somerset county. Professor Bomberger of the State Extension Service will be present to assist in the organization. All farmers interested in the organization of a Farm Loan Association should be present at this meeting. For further information write your County Agent, C. Z. Keller.

FOOD CROP BILLION BUSHELLS MORE

This Is The Farmers' Response To President Wilson's Appeal

A billion bushels increase over last year's production in the principal food crops is the response American farmers have made to President Wilson's mid-April appeal saying that upon them "rests the fate of the war and the fate of nations."

The extent of the farmers' response was disclosed last week when a production of 6,093,000,000 bushels of principal food crops was forecast in the Department of Agriculture's July crop report. It shows this year's corn crop will be the largest in history, except one, and that four and possibly five other crops will make new high records.

The corn crop, which with favorable weather from now on may equal the bumper yield of 1912, shows an increase of 541,000,000 bushels over last year, with a total of 3,124,000,000 bushels. The acreage is 14 per cent. larger than last year.

The combined winter and spring wheat crop will be 38,000,000 bushels more than last year's, with a total of 678,000,000 bushels.

Barley, with prospects of the third largest crop ever grown, will exceed last year's production by 33,000,000 bushels with an output of 214,000,000 bushels.

Oats promise to exceed last year's crop by 201,000,000 bushels, the total production being forecast at 1,453,000,000 bushels. That is slightly under the record. Improvement between now and harvest, however, may result in a record crop.

White potato production, on a 22 1/2 per cent. increase in acreage, will be a record crop with 452,000,000 bushels, or 167,000,000 bushels more than last year, not taking in account the home garden production, which this year is estimated to be much larger than ever before.

Rye, another record crop this year will amount to 66,100,000 bushels, or 8,700,000 bushels more than last year.

Sweet potatoes will register a new high total with 82,200,000 bushels, or 11,000 bushels more than last year.

Rice production will be 34,400,000 bushels, the second largest crop ever produced.

Production of tobacco will break another record, with a crop of 1,215,000,000 pounds, which is 64,000,000 pounds more than was grown last year.

Gen. Gray Heads Defense Council

The Maryland Council of Defense, appointed by Governor Harrington under an act of the extra session of the Legislature, was organized and started well in its work last Wednesday at a meeting held at the Merchants Club, Baltimore. The council is composed of the members of the old Preparedness and Survey Commission, with three or four others named by the Governor, to complete the membership of 50.

Gen. Carl R. Gray, chairman of the old commission, which the Governor named informally when war was declared, was elected to the same position by the Council, and the following were named members of the executive committee, which, with the State Comptroller and the Treasurer, will have control of the war loan of $1,000,000, subject to the Governor's veto: General Gray, Frank A. Furst, Judge Hammond Urner, Gen. Francis E. Waters and Stevenson A. Williams.

General Gray made a brief speech, discussing the work done by the old commission and that to be done by the Council. Among the more important matters to be taken up soon are the organization of the Maryland State Guard and the procurement of labor for the canneries and the farms. The latter is said to be especially important. The canneries have contracted for vast quantities of goods and have reported that they could use 30,000 people, whereas, they have only 15,000 and the farmers are crying for help.

It is understood that the Governor shortly will issue a proclamation warning all idlers that they must go to work.

Maryland And Virginia Crops

The wheat crops of Maryland and Virginia will be slightly larger this year compared with last year's yield, according to the estimates of the Bureau of Crop Estimates.

The Maryland wheat yield is placed at 10,470,000 bushels against 10,240,000 last year, while the Virginia yield is estimated to be 17,434,000 bushels against 16,250,000 bushels last year.

The Virginia corn crop also will be heavier this year, the crop board estimating the total yield at 62,805,000 bushels against 60,990,000 bushels last year. The crop board estimates that the farmers will get about double the price for their wheat and corn this year compared with last year.

THE CALL TO ARMS FINDS GUARDSMEN READY

State Troops To Leave This Month—All Will Be In Service By July 25 And Formally Drafted By August 5 For Duty In France

The last step necessary to make the entire National Guard available for duty in France was taken Monday of last week by President Wilson with the issue of a proclamation drafting the state troops into the Army of the United States on August 5.

To make certain that the purpose of the national defense act is carried out, the proclamation also specifically declares the men drafted to be discharged from the old militia status on that date. In that way the constitutional restraint upon use of militia outside of the country is avoided and the way paved for sending the regiments to the European front.

Prior to the application of the draft regiments in the northern and eastern sections of the country are called into the federal service as National Guardsmen in two increments, to be mobilized on July 15 and 25. Many units already are federalized and presumably they will be mobilized with the other troops from their states. The guard from the other states will be mobilized on the day of the draft. The arrangement was necessary to provide for movement of the regiments south to their concentration camps without congestion and to the same end the division of states into these increments was revised from the original schedule. The operative date of the draft was delayed until August 5, so that all regiments can be taken into the Army simultaneously.

The call provides that the Maryland men, as well as the other militiamen of the country, will not be formally drafted before August 5. But they will be mobilized and be started on their way to a Southern concentration camp before that date. This call in Maryland affects the following organizations:

First Maryland Regiment.
Four companies of the Coast Artillery Corps.
Maryland Battalion, Light Field Artillery.
Field Hospital.
Ambulance Company No. 1.
Probably the First Separate Company of Infantry (colored).

Adjutant General Warfield received last Tuesday orders from the War Department postponing the date of the call for the Coast Artillery from July 15 to July 25. This will bring the artillerymen out at the same time as the infantry. The Field Artillery will, according to the President's proclamation, be called on the same date.

Generals Warfield and Gaither stated that the First Regiment will not be called on to mobilize in the state concentration camp. The men of the various companies scattered throughout the state will be called to their armories on July 25. They will then be kept there and equipped. From the various armories they will travel to the concentration camp which the War Department will later select, and will be drafted into the federal service with the artillerymen and other units on August 5.

Special Services At Antioch Church

Special services will be held at Antioch Methodist Episcopal Church next Sunday morning and evening. The new pipe organ, Mrs. S. D. Garwood, organist, installed by the M. P. Moller Organ Company, of Hagerstown, Maryland, will be used for the first time, and there will be a special music program at each service as follows:

Morning at 11 o'clock—Organ prelude, Mendelssohn; anthem, "Praise Ye the Lord," Robertson; offertory, Gluck; anthem, "The Trinity," Lillmas; postlude, "March Romain," Gounod.

Evening at 8 o'clock—Organ prelude, Beethoven; anthem, "Break Forth Into Joy," Simper; offertory; anthem, "Come Ye Weary," Robertson; postlude, Battman.

The pastor will preach at both services. No special collection.

Pays Tribute To Judge Jones

The July term of the Circuit Court for Somerset county convened Monday of last week, Judge H. L. D. Stanford presiding, but adjourned until Wednesday morning out of respect to the memory of Associate Judge Robley D. Jones, who died in Baltimore the Saturday previous.

Mr. Joshua W. Miles announced the death of Judge Jones and moved that the court adjourn and that a committee be appointed to prepare resolutions. Judge Stanford appointed Messrs. J. W. Miles, H. Fillmore Lankford and Gordon Tull on the committee.

Court re-convened Wednesday morning and, there being little business of importance to be transacted, it adjourned until September—the jury term.

Join The Red Cross

By DOROTHY DUSTAN PEACE

Sons, husbands, sweethearts—we must let them go. And do it bravely. At their country's call Ready they stand to give their lives, their all. That we may be protected from the foe.

Our men, our soldiers, they are marching—see! Comfort forgotten—swinging by in line— Going to fight for all things pure and fine, Good faith, and honor, and a world set free.

We who are left behind are soldiers, too. No time for tears—no whimper and give way. Think what those boys may need—and every day, God helping us, we will find work to do.

Our path of duty now lies straight and plain. While our men fight, while our men bleed and die, We must be ready with a great supply Of all things needful to relieve their pain.

While our men fight, while our men bleed and die, Think what their mothers, wives and children bear! Their health and comfort is our sacred care— A duty which must never pass us by.

Help us to succor those who suffer loss! Care for our soldiers battling for the right! It is our privilege to join the fight, Beneath the banner of the brave Red Cross.

At a meeting of the Somerset County Board of Education last Tuesday the following was adopted:

Whereas, The Somerset County Board of Education fully realize that a condition of war now exists between our country and Germany, and thousands of our people are now in a foreign land and thousands more will go to face the dangers of battle and defeat. Also, we believe it to be the duty of every man and woman to render all the assistance possible to comfort and relieve the suffering of our soldiers now at the front.

Resolved, That we believe that there is no better method to render that service than to help in the Red Cross. Therefore, we earnestly advise and urge the teachers of Somerset county, as instructors of the youth, to join and assist in this benevolent work.

The Red Cross Circle at Westover have decided to hold an open-air festival tomorrow (Wednesday) evening across the street from the railroad station, near Mr. E. D. Long's residence. It is hoped all friends of the Red Cross movement will help Westover Circle to make their first effort to raise money for the service a glorious success.

Even a Sergeant's Job

You will hear it said that war, as it is fought in Europe today, uses so many machines and involves so many millions of men, that the individual human being is wholly lost in the shuffle. Don't believe this. The facts deny it. In actual truth, no previous war has ever laid such heavy demands upon individual initiative, judgment and courage, from the highest command to the humblest.

Take the duties even of a sergeant, standing watch over his small group of men in a short stretch of the trenches. At night he carries a signal revolver, always ready in his hand. The moment he has reason to suspect a surprise attack, he takes a red cartridge and fires. A rocket shoots up from the revolver, displaying three red balls in the air.

That instant the supporting artillery, at the rear, opens fire on the enemy's trenches opposite the point where the sergeant is posted. The guns have previously been aimed so that their projectiles will fall exactly on the enemy's line. If the fire endangers any of the sergeant's outposts, he will send up a blue signal, and the range will immediately be lengthened. There had been no time to telephone, though there are forty telephones to cover 800 yards of the front. Sixty lost seconds might mean defeat.

And all this happens in response to the word of a sergeant! Think of the responsibility it puts upon him. The mechanical part of the arrangements is remarkable. But if the sergeant is to give his signals rightly, he must be something more than a mechanic. He must be awake and alert. He must be fully informed, by personal study, of the whole field of battle, so that he will quickly understand the significance of the slightest enemy movement. He must not waste ammunition on false alarms. The immense growth of mechanical appliances for the conduct of war has correspondingly increased the need of individual human ability which can rightly control it.

Work continues on the Pocomoke-Westover road, although the contractors are compelled to move very slowly. This is due to the fact that they cannot get the material as fast as they can use it, freight conditions are so congested.

PATRIA

THE GREAT ROMANCE OF PREPAREDNESS

& LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

Novelization of the Motion Picture Play of the Same Name Produced for the International Film Service, Inc., Under the Direction of Wharton, Inc.

THE CAST.

MRS. VERNON CASTLE as Patria Channing.
MILTON SILLS as Donald Parr.
WARNER OLAND as Baron Huroki.
DOROTHY GREEN as Fanny Adair.

SYNOPSIS.

Patria, last of "The Fighting Channings," while en route to Newport, her summer home, is thrown to drown from a sound steamer by agents of Baron Huroki, chief of the Japanese secret service, who, conspiring to embroil the United States and Mexico, desires control of the extensive Channing munition plants, owned by Patria. Her physical counterpart, Elaine, a notorious dancer, in Huroki's pay, substitutes for the supposedly dead woman. But Patria's life is saved by Captain Donald Parr, late of the United States secret service and secretly Patria's fiance.

SIXTH EPISODE

"Alias Nemesis."

Rendezvous at Noon.

Superbly mounted though he was, the horseman rode with slack rein and specious air of aimlessness. Suffered to select its own pace, his cob ambled indolently through the avenues of Newport town and out into the basking countryside, choosing a way along the eastern shore, often within sight of the Sakonnet river.

For the beauties of nature in general Capt. Donald Parr cared no snap of his fingers; his thoughts, like his heart, were exclusively centered upon one single beauty. His purposeless gesture, his semblance of indifference to the flight of time, were alike misleading; he had a most particular goal in mind, and secretly was in the maddest haste to arrive at it. Lastly, his interest in the charming views was positively nil; but his interest in making certain that none followed him was acute.

Had any one of his languid reviews of the road he was traveling discovered a single sign of anything remotely resembling a follower, Donald's ride would have ended back in the summer city by the sea without a pause. As it was, though well persuaded that none spied upon him, he came to his destination by a most circuitous way, doubling back on his path for the matter of two miles before, while passing a lonely patch of woodland between road and river, he elected to disappear.

A twitch at the rein with a touch of the spur swung his horse sharply aside into an almost imperceptibly marked path.

Winding tortuously through the forest, the path presently debouched into a little glade from which, through a thinning growth of trees, the shimmer of sunlit waters was visible.

Here Captain Parr pulled up, dismounted, tethered his horse to a sapling, and went on afoot, striding rapidly toward the river, with a marked manner of eager anxiety.

A turn in the path, rounding a thick- et, brought him abruptly face to face with the object at once of his happiness and all his cares.

He stopped short.

"Patria!" he cried in a voice vibrant with the wonder that her loveliness never failed to arouse.

As she offered both hands to his ardent clasp, her smile seemed a trifle wistful.

"Don!" she said. "At last! I knew you wouldn't be late—but even when She looked round quickly with eyes filled with inquiry. He nodded affirmatively.

"Yes—at the Casino. I was just about ready to start on my well-known morning ride—purely," he laughed, "in the interests of my health, of course—when Huroki, and De Lima turned up with the changeling."

"Elaine!"

"Your volunteer substitute. So I had to wait till they were otherwise occupied before I thought it wise to leave."

The two came out by the river's edge in a little rock-bound cove with a sandy floor. Inland, more than half-hidden among the trees, a modest bungalow of unsurfaced logs was visible—on its veranda the ample person of Anne, Patria's maid, placidly rocking and sewing.

"Sit down," The girl sank, feet crossed beneath her, to the beach. "Tell me about this creature. Does Elaine really—?"

"Get away with it!" Parr laughed again. "I should say she did. The girl's a consummate actress and mimic. Only a close observer can detect in Elaine's manner the inevitable, occasional gaucherie, when she's at a loss how to behave out of her element, momentarily without Fanny Adair at her elbow to prompt her. As a diplomat, however, she conspicuously lacks finesse—either that, or she's vilely ill-advised."

"How do you mean?"

"I mean she goes about ridding herself of dangerous encumbrances in the crudest fashion imaginable. Well, you know how she quarreled with Anne on the flimsiest pretext, and sent her packing; and how she couldn't resist the temptation to slap my face with the confidential announcement of her engagement, as Patria Channing, to Juan de Lima. And today, desiring to get rid of Mrs. Wrenn and Rodney, she has caused this announcement to be published, without saying a word to them. The newspaper gave the first hint Mrs. Wrenn got of the affair."

Parr drew from his pocket a folded paper, and displayed to Patria one of her own photographs, wretchedly reproduced in half-tone, above a story headlined somewhat in this fashion:

MISS PATRIA CHANNING
Multimillionaire Heiress Signs Newport Society by Announcing Her Engagement to Senor Juan de Lima, Wealthy Mexican Mine Owner.

With a little exclamation of exasperation Patria read the article through, then angrily crumpled the paper in her two hands.

"And what came of it?" she asked.

"Oh, Mrs. Wrenn protested, of course—insisted that 'Patria' retract the announcement. And the row, Elaine had been spilling for was on, ending with her informing Mrs. Wrenn that, if she disapproved so strongly, Fanny Adair would relieve her of responsibility as 'Patria's' chaperon. So Rodney and his mother are leaving."

"When?"

"Today, I presumed."

"Oh!" the girl declared in deepest indignation, "this is intolerable! I can't stand it, I won't, another minute! Don, you must let me come out of hiding and expose these imposters!"

"Please, dear!" Donald begged.

"Give me another thirty-six hours; I'm watching them more closely than they suspect; they do nothing I don't know all about, either through personal observation or through my agents. I only want to spare you publicity and annoyance. Give these fools rope enough and they'll hang themselves as high as Haman, and spare us the trouble. But let them once suspect you live, and your life's worth—well, hardly that!"

"That" was a snap of Parr's fingers.

"Don't let me alarm you with my exaggeration," he added, with a reassuring smile. "But Huroki can move as swiftly as a rattlesnake, when he wants to, and strike with as deadly effect. I'm confident of my ability to protect you. And you don't want to die just yet, with your work undone!"

Her hand stole into his. "I don't want to lose a lifetime of being in love with you," she corrected. "So—I'll do as you say."

Less than an hour later Parr left, to return to Newport, and resume his task of espionage.

ESCAPEE BY MOONLIGHT.

What little wind there was went down with the sun.

Around about the little bungalow on the Sakonnet shore the hush was absolute.

Only Patria was restless and ill-at-ease. Impatience and dissatisfaction with the lot imposed upon her by Donald Parr's arguments, prayers, will and wishes, raged in her bosom.

Alone upon the little veranda, she fought temptation as long as she could, till suspense in inaction galled her intolerably, then rose and stole into the house as noiselessly as any cat, to reappear after a lapse of time incredibly brief clothed in dark bathing suit and sandals, a light silken beach wrap covering her shoulders.

Like some shadow of the night she crept down to the beach and launched her canoe. It was a matter of several miles, but she made nothing of the cruise to the beach beneath the cliffs crowned by her summer home.

Effecting a landing there as secret as her launching had been, she dragged the canoe up on the sands, hugged the cloak more tightly round her, and with a delicious shiver of daring sought the private flight of steps that zigzagged up to the grounds of the Channing cottage.

At the top Patria sought the friendly shelter of the nearest shadows, then made a furtive way towards the house. There were on the ground a dozen coils of vantage known to Patria whence spying would be practicable and safe.

In the nearest of these, close by the wide veranda, she resigned herself to wait with far less composure than her motionless pose might have been taken to indicate.

Even so, her patience was not severely taxed. Within a very few minutes the light in one of the French windows of the drawing-room was twice eclipsed, as two people came out and began slowly to pace the veranda, side by side—Elaine and the unspeakable Juan de Lima!

Moonlight flooded the face and figure of the changeling with unearthly brilliance. Patria could have cried out in amazement, so extraordinary seemed the vision she gazed upon.

De Lima wooed her after the manner of his kind, ardently, crudely, with patent intention. Inching closer, he essayed to kiss her.

But Elaine would not suffer him.

"That's as far as you'll go!" she told him, in the choice of words that came most naturally to her. "I'm going to marry you—yes! Marrying you is part of my contract with Huroki—I wish to God it wasn't. I'll go through with it because I agreed to, but—lay off me whenever we're alone. Marriage is one thing—kisses are something else again!"

She swung brusquely back through the window. With an imprecation in his native tongue, the Mexican followed.

Patria stepped back and sought a way round to a point whence she might see through the windows. Taking courage from the silence, she ventured to raise the window and step within. But she had not gone two feet when, without any warning, she was seized, enfolded in the arms of a hulking creature who had been spying upon her from behind a tree.

A villainous reek of alcoholic breath half strangled the girl as her captor bent his face toward hers.

"Got you!" he muttered thickly.

"Got you, m' lady, with the goods on! You will throw me down, will you? You will leave me go with the devil while you blow around with swells, pretending you're what you ain't, never was, never will be! Oh, I'm onto your little game, Elaine, my beauty! And I'm in on it, or I'll squeal so loud you can hear me in the office of the prosecutin' attorney! Stop strugglin' and listen to reason, do you hear?"

In the bloated and congested features of the drunkard Patria recognized the man Edouard, the manager of Elaine, who once before had mistaken her for his dancing woman—and had suffered grievously at Parr's hands in consequence of that mistake.

"Let me go!" she panted in loathing.

"Let me go, I say!"

"Fat chance!" he jeered. "But listen, dearie, you don't have to be afraid of me. All I want is a square deal, and I won't hurt you. You only got to quit trainin' with that guy, Parr; I'm goin' to get him—get him good—"

He had unhappily struck the wrong note. The hint of peril to the man she adored maddened Patria. She fought like a woman possessed, beating Edouard's face with her small fists till, in endeavoring to catch and stay her hands, he relaxed his embrace, and she leaped back to freedom, then took to her heels and ran as she had never run before.

Accident more than design directed her flight toward the cliff.

Three minutes more and Patria was again afloat, paddling frantically toward the place of safety she had so unwisely left.

TWO AND AN EXTRA.

Oddly enough, considering the anxiety on Donald Parr's behalf inspired by the threats of Edouard, Patria slept a deep and dreamless sleep, and awakened so late that, by the time she had taken her morning swim and dressed and breakfasted, it was hard upon noon.

As the hour of their daily rendezvous approached, she found it difficult to contain her impatience, so impatient was she to be reassured as to the safety of her betrothed. Had Donald been five minutes late he would have found her half-hysterical with dread.

He was, however, a trifle earlier than usual.

None the less, she was beforehand with him in the glade. And the relief with which she saw him riding, sound and whole, to meet her, translated itself into so violent a seizure of trembling that he could not have failed to remark it.

He did not even wait to tether his horse, but ran to her the instant his feet touched the earth, seizing her hands and drawing her to him.

"Patria! what has happened?"

"No—nothing!"

"But you were never like this! You're quivering like a frightened child! Something must be the matter!"

"Only—only I have fretted so for fear of some accident to you, dear. I am so glad to see you safe!"

His arms closed round her; for a little her face was hidden in his bosom.

Like a naughty child, she had feared to own the truth about her overnight adventure. But now the need of confession was strong upon her.

From the haven of her lover's arms she stared thoughtfully off into the forest.

Something moved among the trees. The head and shoulders of a man rose slowly from cover of a breast-high growth of underbrush. Patria looked straight into the eyes of Edouard, bloodshot in a mask of features that worked with rage.

She drew a long breath. By no other sign did she betray the terror that as-

"You promise that?"

"Then give me a kiss to prove it!"

Instantly she offered her lips to his. He tightened an arm round her, lowered his head. She seized the pistol, planted an elbow against his chest with wicked force, fought wildly to break away and disarm him.

What followed was so blurred with fear, desperation, panic-stricken struggles, that she retained no clear understanding of the affair.

She knew only that it culminated in the explosion of the pistol. She saw Edouard reel back, catching wildly at the air, and fall. She stared incredulously at her hands that held the weapon. Instinctively she fled that place like a hunted thing.

BAL MASQUE.

Parr, alarmed by the pistol shot, ran back toward the glade to meet midway and receive in his arms the well-nigh demented girl.

It was many minutes before he succeeded in gaining a disconnected account of what had come of Patria's infuriated attempt to sacrifice herself.

"And then," she wailed, "the pistol went off in my hands, and he fell—dead, dead! I murdered him!"

On the echo of that cry both heard the sound of drumming hoofs deadened by the forest mould.

"Dead?" Donald doubted. "Oh, I fancy not. Either Edouard has already recovered sufficiently to steal my horse, or he had a confederate to do me that service. Come and see."

The glade, when they again entered it, was empty. Both Elaine's manager and Donald's cob had vanished. There remained only the echo of flying hoofs to testify that either had been there.

"How he managed to trail me here without my knowledge is what mystifies me," Parr complained when, some time later, the two sat together before the little bungalow. "He could hardly have done it unassisted. I see Huroki's hand in this; the man is shrewder than I credited him with being—and that's saying a lot."

"And what can we do?"

"There's only one thing to do now. Every hour's delay now means added danger—for if Huroki doesn't know it already, he'll learn quickly enough now from Edouard that you still live; and he won't waste much time before he tries to rectify that fatal flaw in his calculations. We've simply got to beat him to it."

"And how—?"

"Tonight there's to be a bal masque at the Channing cottage. If we lie low till nightfall—I won't leave you again—we can take advantage of this masquerade, I fancy, quite effectively."

Rapidly and clearly he outlined a plan of operations.

"Publicity we must avoid if possible, both for your sake and for the sake of the work you have yet to do as executrix of the Channing Defense Fund," he concluded. "If we can quietly put the fear of God into the heart of Elaine and send her back to town, and at the same time persuade Huroki and Company it's far more comfortable to leave the country than stay to face charges of criminal conspiracy—I think we may call it a good day's work and let it go at that, without hankering for more spectacular revenge."

It was nearly eleven when Parr brought the canoe to the beach whereon Patria had landed the previous night. The girl, again in bathing suit and beach cloak—the only things Patria had been able to muster from her bungalow wardrobe in the way of costume—jumped out lightly and lent Donald a hand he didn't need to carry the canoe well up out of reach of the tide.

At the top of the cliff they paused only to adjust their masks; there was no need for further discussion of plans already definitely formulated.

Viewed from a little distance, the scene on the lawn was distractingly interesting. As Parr had foretold, so it had fallen out, all Newport—all that social colony which makes Newport what it stands for in the comprehension of the world—had foregathered on the lawn of the Channing cottage in brilliant costumes and gayest spirits.

But Patria and Captain Parr did not linger. Their time was too precious.

Entering the house by a side door little used, they separated immediately, Parr strolling nonchalantly to a prearranged point of assignment with his assistants, Patria slipping quietly upstairs to her dressing room.

She threw open the door and entered without ceremony, courageously prepared to do what she had come to do, but at once disappointed and a bit relieved to find the room tenanted only by an astonished maid.

"I wish to see Miss Channing," Patria demanded.

"Madam will find her on the lawn," the maid replied, eying this strange masquerader with considerable suspicion. "She has just descended to dance for her guests."

One of Patria's hands brought from beneath her beach wrap a treasury note.

"Please find her for me—ask her to come here without delay."

"And whom shall I say—?"

"Tell Miss Channing a friend of Edouard's wishes to see her on important business."

The money changed hands; the maid departed on the errand; Patria selected a chair close by the door and sat down, retaining her mask.

Minutes dragged interminably. A rumor of applause, hand-clapping commingled with cries of "Encore! Encore!" came from the lawn.

Patria rose and went to the window. She could make out nothing more definite than a general movement of the crowd.

Prefaced by scurrying footsteps in the hallway, the door was opened. Elaine flung herself excitedly into the room. Patria arose, put her back to the door, turned the key. Elaine swung sharply to confront her.

"Who the deuce are you?" she demanded.

Silently Patria removed her mask.

With a low cry that was half a groan, the dancing woman reeled back to the wall, her face ghastly beneath the rouge.

The Enraged Lover Attacks the Girl.

Dropping her beach wrap, Patria uncovered her pistol.

"Be good enough," she said coldly, "to let me have that costume you are wearing. I give you this chance of escape, but warn you not to waste time. The police will be here in ten minutes!"

Dumb in despair, Elaine began to fumble with the fastenings of her attire.

The door was tried; from the hallway the voice of the maid became audible:

"Miss Channing! do you need me?"

"Not in the least," Patria replied.

"Go away and don't come back for half an hour."

Patria moved across the room and picked up the costume out of which Elaine had just stepped, a Spanish dancer's dress.

But it was far from easy to manage the change and a pistol at one and the same time. On sudden decision Patria unlocked the door.

"Put that beach cloak over your underthings," she ordered Elaine, "and go!"

Submissively, Elaine picked up the cloak and went to the door. Patria crossed to a cheval glass on the far side of the room, on the way putting her pistol on a little table in the recess of the window. A moment later, while hooking up the dress before the glass, she saw Elaine fling the door open and dart toward the table.

Patria moved, but Elaine had moved too quickly for her. Her hand closed upon the pistol.

Simultaneously a man's hand was thrust in between the window draperies, holding a revolver. This last was discharged with what, in that small space, seemed deafening detonation. Without as much as a sigh Elaine fell. She was dead before she lay at rest.

Thoughtless of danger, Patria reached the window in time to see a man leave the foot of a ladder whose topmost rung rested on the windowsill, and scurry off in desperate haste.

As she turned back she heard several people hurrying down the corridor, talking with more or less animation. The suave accents of Baron Huroki were distinguishable.

At her feet the pistol glistened temptingly; the rays it reflected struck fire from Patria's brain. Hastily she picked it up.

Followed by Fanny Adair and Juan de Lima, Baron Huroki unceremoniously entered the room.

"The maid said she was afraid you were in some sort of trouble," he began, and checked in stupefaction, staring down at the body of the dancer.

"Shut that door," Patria brusquely told De Lima.

"What does it mean?" Mrs. Adair whimpered.

With a hint of contempt Patria looked from face to face.

"Mean?" she said. "It means that Patria Channing is accounted for at last. Somebody had to do it—and you men bungled every time you tried it. Now I've done my part; it remains for you to cover this up. I'm going back to my guests before they miss me."

She left the three staring, dumb-founded, aghast.

In the lower hallway she encountered Parr, drew him aside, told him what she had done.

"But why? To what end?" he stammered.

"As long as they think me Elaine, and therefore are sure that Patria is dead—I am inside their councils," she explained. "I shall become intimate with all their schemes—and disclose to you all I find out!"

In the dim gray twilight of dawn the body of Edouard was found at the foot of the cliffs. It was surmised that—blinded by remorse and drink—in the haste of his flight, he had stumbled over the brink to his death.

The discovery furnished Baron Huroki and his circle with a way out of their dilemma. The story they gave out was to the effect that Edouard had shot Elaine in a fit of jealous rage, and then killed himself.

you're most punctual, it always seems so long a time of waiting!"

"I meant to be earlier today," he said, falling in by her side as she turned back toward the shore, "but was unexpectedly detained."

Two Out of Three Plays Always Fail.
In an article called "Acting—A Part Time Job" in the American Magazine
Walter Prichard Eaton says:

"Suppose we say that a play is rehearsed on an average of three weeks.
(Some few are, unfortunately for art, rehearsed less, some a good bit more.) Now, bear in mind the fact, which is pretty well established by figures, that at present two out of every three theatrical productions in America fail.
That means the ordinary actor or actress, out of three attempts to land a salary paying job, works at least nine weeks on half pay or less. When you further deduct the usual summer vacation time of, say, six weeks and add a week, at the least, hunting each new job, you reach the rather astonishing conclusion that the average actor may very conceivably lose nine weeks out of the fifty-two entire and nine more weeks in large part. In other words, he is only a part time worker. His 'mumificent' salary doesn't look so munificent when figured on this basis."

Voracity of Pike.

While two Edinburgh anglers were fishing from a boat on Loch Ard, Aberfoyle, they were attracted by splashing on the surface of the water close to a clump of reeds near the shore. Approaching the spot, they found that two pike—the individual weights, ascertaining later, were two and two and one-quarter pounds—were locked together,
the smaller of the two in an attempt to swallow the larger, having succeeded in enveloping in its jaws almost the whole head of the other. On the fish being taken into the boat with a landing net considerable difficulty was found in separating them, the teeth of the one being firmly fixed in the skull and gills of the larger fish. While the voracious-ness of this fish is well known, it must remain a mystery whether the incident described arose from cannibalism or was the outcome of a fight.—R. M. W.

SAVE THE BREEDERS.

Every Animal Capable of Breeding
Should Be Retained on the Farm.
(Prepared by United States department of agriculture.)

DON'T SELL BREEDING AN- IMALS.

Maintain and increase breeding herds.
Feed cheap roughages.
Feed live stock as little human food as possible.

The temptation of high prices now being offered for live stock and the uncertainty about the prices of feeding stuffs have led to the selling for slaugh-

PERCHERON MARE.

ter of breeding animals in some sections of the country. This is a serious mistake. Farmers should not sell their breeding animals unless they can replace them immediately with better ones. Every breeding animal is absolutely essential to the maintenance of the live stock of the country. There is a shortage of meat animals throughout the world and farmers cannot hope to import new breeding stock to replace those how foolishly killed off. Every breeding animal must be regarded as the seed essential to the domestic meat and draft animal supply of the nation.

Feeds not available or needed for human consumption should be used as largely as possible in feeding live stock.
By feeding straw or corn stover, especially for wintering mature stockers and breeding animals, farmers will make the best possible use of these roughages. In this way a large proportion of the straw and stover ordinarily burned or wasted can be manufactured into meat and milk. Grain roughages, wherever they are available,
should be fed to release corn for human uses. Grain, where fed, should be used as economically as possible.

Every animal should be a factory for turning into food material inedible for human beings. This will necessitate changes in many feeding formulas, and stockmen are urged to apply at once to the United States department of agriculture or their state agricultural colleges for information as to the most effective and economical methods of feeding live stock under existing emergency conditions.

Pruning Necessary.

Pruning is a necessary part of orchard practice, says C. W. Rapp of the Oklahoma Agricultural College of Horticulture. An unpruned tree is much like an untrained horse—both can work and will work well if properly trained. It is true that an untrained tree will produce some fruit, but it will not do its best. Much of the energy that should be directed toward fruit production will be used to produce useless wood.
The tree will grow excessively and will often become misshapen. Proper pruning—the removal of dead, dying, diseased and excessive wood—together with the proper shaping of the tree, is an essential part of successful orchard practice. Such treatment must be followed if the orchard is expected to produce fruit as it should.

Profitable Pork.

Eighty-eight pounds of juicy pork made in eight weeks, and in some instances as high as ninety to 100 pounds, is the pace made by the Oregon experiment station, and made repeatedly. It was done by using a well balanced ration. If such gains can be made on common materials in experimental feeding let farmers strive to do as well in home feeding.

Cultivate Cabbage.

It will pay in dollars and cents to take care of the cabbage crop this year, says M. F. Ahearn, associate professor of horticulture, Kansas State Agricultural college. Cultivate the crop, keep down weeds and fight insects. The most dangerous insect enemies of the cabbage crop are the cabbage worm,
the cut worm and cabbage aphid.

THE STOCKMAN.

Pretty soon the gaddy will emerge from manure piles and begin to torment the sheep. Be ready for it. Smear the sheep's noses with tar.
If the corn drowns out, sow rape for the hogs. Forage helps to put the gains on hogs at the lowest cost.
Before letting the colt to the mare at mealtime partly milk out the udder. In hot weather let the mare rest and cool off a few minutes before the colt sucks.
If you want to see the lambs grow, give them oats to eat often.
Put the self feeder where the pigs can help themselves. Let them do the work until marketing time.
Colic often results from working a horse immediately after feeding. Allow plenty of time at noon.

FARM HORSE IN SUMMER.

Especially Necessary to Keep Him in Good Working Condition.

That the efficiency of the average farm horse can be increased 25 per cent
by the observance of simple precautions is the opinion of Dr. C. W. Mc-Campbell, associate professor of animal husbandry, Kansas State Agricultural college.

Water the horse frequently during hot weather. He needs large quantities of water, and frequent watering will overcome the dangers that result from watering freely at long intervals.
Feed regularly a ration uniform both as to kind and as to amount. This lessens the danger from colic and other digestive disturbances.

Eliminate lice, worms and flies, for they may decrease the efficiency of the work horse 50 per cent and increase the feed bill 25 per cent.

Clean the collar every time it is put on the horse and keep its bearing surface hard and smooth.

Sponge off the work horse when he comes in from work, especially where the collar and other parts of the harness have left marks. Sponge out his mouth, nose and eyes. Soak his feet thoroughly with cold water, but do not turn the hose on his body or legs.
Wash his shoulders every night for a few weeks with cold salt water.

Allow him to stop in the shade for a few minutes whenever possible for a brief rest and a chance to breathe freely and deeply.

Watch the work horse carefully.
Drooping ears, unsteadiness of gait,
short, quick breathing and a sudden ceasing to sweat are danger signals demanding prompt attention. They mean that the horse is getting too hot and that he must have shade, cooler air and rest.

If the horse suffers a heat stroke protect him from the sun, remove the harness, apply cold to the head, either water or ice, wash out his mouth and nostrils and sponge his entire body with cold water.

Groom the work horse thoroughly.
This will save feed and will increase his health, vigor and power.

Remember that the horse produces the greatest amount of net power from the feed and care provided when driving a load at a moderate gait; hence greater and more efficient power and energy can be secured by increasing the load rather than the speed of the work horse.

Save the Ewe Lambs.

Save every ewe lamb possible for breeding, is the urgent message the department of agriculture is sending to sheep owners. Market for slaughter only those being absolutely worthless for breeding stock. There is a strong demand among farmers for breeding stock, and owners of ewe lambs should have no trouble finding a breeding market for them through country agents or the state agricultural colleges. Sheep specialists of the department believe that, although prices for breeding stock now are high, those who start production of wool and mutton
on a moderate scale will have no cause to regret purchasing breeding stock at present figures.

Watering the Horse.

Three times a day is not enough to water live stock. They should have, especially in hot weather, an opportunity of drinking at least five times daily—before each meal and at intervals of two and one-half to three hours apart between meals. The animal that works in hot weather on a five or six hour stretch without water suffers intensely from thirst. Frequent watering prevents water colic and other ill effects. Never allow the animal to drink when very hot. Always force him under such conditions to drink a little at a time until satisfied.

Keep Hogs Healthy.

Every precaution should be taken to keep hogs in good health. It does not pay to feed lice on $15.50 hogs, says Carl P. Thompson, specialist in animal husbandry, Kansas State Agricultural college. Spray hogs with crude oil or hog dip as often as they need it.
Germs that cause scurf, pug nose and white scours are found in the sleeping quarters. Clean out and disinfect every hog shed.

Ground Fence Wires.

It is a common occurrence to lose stock each summer from lightning. A great part of the loss can be traced to wire fences that are not grounded. A ground wire every few rods will make animals safer and the losses fewer.

VIRTUE OF THRIFT.

Cultivate It Earnestly, but Do Not Carry It to Excess.

Thrift is a composite quality. It embraces within itself nearly all of the great virtues. It involves industry, prudence, forethought, self denial.

It certainly has no relation to niggardliness or meanness.

Some men would let their grandmothers starve for the sake of a few dollars. Such action cannot be called thrift. A virtue carried to excess becomes a vice and is no longer a virtue.

Thrift that does not take into partnership honesty of character develops into covetousness and avarice.

Thrift is the opposite of thriftlessness, prodigality, improvidence and waste.

Thrift means better homes and better food, more comfort and enjoyment,
less waste and less anxiety.

It is possible that a large proportion of people have earnings so small that saying seems impossible. But this is no reason for their being unthrifty. On the contrary, it is reason for making the best and the most of the little they have for their health, comfort and true happiness.

A few dollars in a home or a savings bank, or any safe investment, is as good seed as ever was sown.

Out of it grow confidence, quickened energies, firmer courage, more stalwart thought and hope, more orderly citizenship, education for the children and the independence and self respect that lift aimless, hopeless drudges up to the true manhood that aspires and achieves.

QUEER WEDDING CUSTOMS.

In India the Native Guests Literally Paint the Town Red.

They have some curious wedding customs in India. At a native wedding in Bombay the wedding guests literally "paint the town red" by throwing on one another a kind of red powder until they are crimson from head to foot. Their disordered white draperies, the stains and splashes on their faces and hair give them the appearance of victims of a massacre. In India halls which may be secured for a small rental are provided for these ceremonies. But weddings are also celebrated in the Hindu temples, with priests in attendance. In a Hindu temple a bride of twelve must seat herself on a stone and be drenched with water by her bridesmaids. Behind her, her mother is subjected to a similar deluge, and at a short distance behind the bride's mother the grandmother undergoes the same treatment, while in front of the dripping trio two priests sit beside a briskly burning wood fire mumbling the prescribed words for the ceremony. One casts a few grains of rice into the fire and the other, with a ladle, throws into it a few drops of oil.

During these performances the bridegroom, seated in a carriage outside the temple, receives the congratulations of his friends. In the far east the bridegroom would seem to be the member of the party most to be envied.—People's Home Journal.

Japanned English.

A prominent merchant in Osaka, Japan, sent the following to an English firm:

Messrs.—We have much pleasure in requesting your latest catalogue of your products, price list and discount sheets. If it turns satisfactory we shall consider the question of the large orders. Now, our aim doing in this case is our first attempt to prepare ourselves to purchase of the products directly from makers instead of the broker of each side. We must beg your kind co-operation on this new movement. We are of opinion as well as our customers here that will probably be obliged to us to follow this new principle. Trusting that the result will be encouraging the further business, and remain, etc.

Strictly Ornamental.

Man's only nonutilitarian garment is the necktie. It's as useless as a monocle. Yet we wear 'em. We'd feel awfully awkward walking down the street without one. Once upon a time the necktie was used to fasten the collar on. But now it doesn't do that. Man's necktie is the Indian's eagle feather, the cannibal's necklace of teeth, the mid-African's ivory earrings. It's his pride, on which he bestows much thought, great care. We wonder what would happen to the vanity of the human race, masculine half, in case of a necktie famine.—Toledo News-Bee.

Effect of Discipline.

"Just see how the chickens mind the old hen, Robby," said Mrs. Norris to her son. "Watch them run to her when she calls them."
"I suppose she sat on them when they were little," remarked the infant phenomenon reflectively.

Clever Child.

"You can't eat your cake and have it."
"Well, ma, if I want cake to look at there's plenty in the baker's window."
—Pittsburgh Post.

Look Ahead.

Henry Ward Beecher said, "Don't be like a grasshopper, which jumps first and afterward looks round for a place to land."

They'll Help Some There.

Save the old tin cans. You'll be putting them to good use if you only can get the grouch in them.—Atlanta Constitution.

One of the chief secrets of happiness is never to allow your energies to stagnate.

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 17, 1917

Either too much sun or too much rain hurts the garden crops, while either condition seems to make the weeds grow.

The people who kick about the hot weather are usually the same ones who
a few weeks ago, kicked about the late spring.

Every dog owner is convinced that his Towzer is a noble and kindly animal, while his neighbor's is a depraved and dangerous beast.

There is an unanimous opinion among the married men that if they only had no families dependent on them, they would gladly enlist.

Determined not to be accused of being slackers, many of the girls rush to the railroad stations to kiss the soldiers as they go through.

Our peculiar military system turns down the man who is anxious to go to war, but has to wear glasses for a slight defect, and compels the man who has a little better eyesight to go, even if he has to be dragged all the way.

From the size of the government borrowings the coming generation will feel no lack of interest in the war. However, no one has predicted that the coming generation would rather do its own fighting than pay interest bills.

THE LATE JUDGE JONES

The news of the death of Judge Jones was a great shock to this community and much feeling of profound regret has been expressed by the members of the bar and the citizens of Princess Anne generally. Judge Jones was highly esteemed by the people of this county, both as an able, conscientious jurist and a man of the highest integrity. He possessed a most attractive personality which endeared him to our citizens with whom he came in contact while here in the discharge of his judicial duties.

SUMMER BOARDERS

There was a time when it was widely customary for farmers to take summer boarders. Farmers who couldn't make money any other way saw a dollar in entertaining the city folks. The farmer raised a big share of the table supplies, and as his wife did all the work,
he cheerfully took the money to help reduce the mortgage.

The farmer of today has got a little beyond that. He is after bigger game at present prices of food stuffs. The summer boarder business is concentrated into hotels and regular boarding houses that make a business of it.

The people who are looking for country board make a good many demands that many farm homes do not supply. They want all the comforts and conveniences of city living, and do not take kindly to simple farm service.
So the farmer is probably right in seeing no money in it. It is a mighty good summer hotel that gives as substantial and well cooked food as you get at the ordinary farm house. But perhaps in the boarder's mind, the superiority of style makes up.

ORGANIZING THE ARMY

After the fatal registration lists are complete, after the names are drawn,
after the drafted men are thumped and mauled by the doctors, the army is raised—on paper. But the work has only begun.

There follows a stupendous task, that of supplying and arming the men. There are a million hungry and husky fellows to feed. They must have clothes for heat, cold and wet. They must have arms at least equal to the foe's. They must be protected against disease germs and trench infection. The job of training them in fighting technique is comparatively simple.

The supply proposition is a job comparable to running the United States Steel Corporation or the Pennsylvania railroad, and it is new kind of work at which everyone is an amateur. No wonder it drags, while our allies watch and wait impatiently for our reinforcements.

To perform this amazing task all political feeling must pass. We must stop being Republicans and Democrats and Socialists and be simply Americans.
Technical experts must give service free. Politicians must step aside, and the United States must become a pure business corporation. In so far as we can maintain these high standards, we shall prove a winner in the field.

DROWNING ACCIDENTS

It is queer how public sentiment will overlook great losses of life that happen in a regular way. A few years ago there was a terrible stir because a score or two of young men were killed annually at football. But every summer between 5000 and 6000 are drowned,
and no one gets excited about it.

The careless way in which many people who don't know anything about the water will act in boats and canoes is amazing. They come from inland places where there is not much water, yet they like to astonish the natives at the summer resorts with their impromptu skill and daring. They undertake to sail boats with no conception of the enormous leverage given by a high sail,
and the ease with which sail boats topple over. An illiterate sea captain watching their motions once remarked,
"Them that know nothin' fear nothin'."

They go out in row boats and change places as nonchalantly as if on a dancing floor. By and by they fall in, and all they can do is to yell for help.

In the cities tanks are becoming common, and chances to learn swimming are multiplied. Often the most accidents occur in country towns where there is every chance to learn swimming, but where no one supervises the learners. Some parents turn their boys loose without oversight to learn among their mates. Usually they come through all right, but often they don't. Others go to the opposite extreme, and a boy is told not to go near the water until he can swim. Some day he breaks loose, gets into a canoe,
and never comes back.

Swimming can easily be taught. In many places volunteers could be secured to give lessons to the children of a neighborhood. Considering the great loss of life, it is a thing for parents to consider more carefully. Those who find no good opportunities to learn at home commonly get chances while they are on summer vacations.

Many people are convinced that while they are away on their vacation their neighbors will esteem it a pleasure to come in three times a day and feed the dog and cat.

When people light a match to see if there is a leak in the gasoline tank, the existence of the same is thoroughly demonstrated to the surviving bystanders.

In spite of the confident and hopeful predictions of failure issued by the pessimists, the amateur gardeners seem to be getting quite substantial results.

Picking The Fighters

Day by day as the war goes on, it becomes more and more a fight for food.
The primacy of the United States among the food-producing nations of the world, more than any other factor, makes its entry into the war as a party to the struggle largely decisive of the result.
To keep our food supplies out of reach of the Teutons will go as far to bring on a defeat of their armies as sending our soldiers and sailors to the help of our allies. To help feed the allies, without starving ourselves, is just as essential as to furnish them with funds, munitions, ships and armies.

It is folly, however, to put an embargo on exports of foodstuffs if at the same time we allow the country to be drained of men who are engaged solely in the production of foodstuffs. The producers of meat and bread are fighting as effectively for German defeat as if they were already at the front with Pershing or Simms. To get a recruit on the farm is quite as necessary as to procure a recruit for the fight. There are men enough on the registration lists to make it quite unnecessary to deplete either the number of necessary fighters or farmers the country stands in need of.

THE CHAUTAUQUA REMAINS A SUCCESS

In a number of places this summer may not seem quite like summer because there will not be so many Chautauqua assemblies held throughout the country as usual. For the fortunate towns and cities that have kept their Chautauqua, war or no war, congratulation is surely in order, but in some the programs have been cut down.

Let no one imagine, however, that the general success of the Chautauqua idea is diminishing. It certainly is not. On the contrary, it is gaining ground. Whatever one thinks of Mr. William Jennings Bryan, no one can deny that he gave the Chautauqua a great deal of publicity. And lately one of the nation's most exclusive and "literary" magazines printed a long article singing Chautauqua's praises.

The woman who wrote the article had been lecturing on a Chautauqua circuit. When she started out, she confesses she thought the programs included only Swiss yodelers, performing dogs, and an occasional lecture. She soon learned her mistake. She found what good music, high class entertainment, and really instructive and helpful speeches there were in the programs.

The lady herself discovered that the audiences in the big tent had a good deal to teach her. If there were any numbers poorly done or not very interesting, the people in the audience found it out quickly enough. They refused to be humbugged.

It isn't human nature to accept a humbug, after you have been waiting all year for a good week of profit. Many an industrious woman gets her housework so arranged in advance that she will be free to attend all the meetings when Chautauqua comes to town, and many a man lays special plans in his business for the same purpose. Chautauqua will remain a success because it meets a wide and true demand of the American people.

Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea

Remedy

Now is the time to buy a bottle of this remedy so as to be prepared in case that any one of your family should have an attack of colic or diarrhoea during the summer months. It is worth a hundred times its cost when needed.

OLDER BUT STRONGER

To be healthy at seventy, prepare at forty, in sound advice, because in the strength of middle life we too often forget that neglected colds, or careless treatment of slight aches and pains, simply undermine strength and bring chronic weakness for later years.

To be stronger when older, keep your blood pure and rich and active with the strength-building and blood-nourishing properties of Scott's Emulsion which is food, a tonic and a medicine to keep your blood rich, alleviate rheumatism and avoid sickness. No alcohol in Scott's.

Thrift Made Easy

Perhaps at some time in the past you have tried to save money, but it proved a little difficult and you gave it up.

Do not, however, despair. There is an easy way.

To start Thrift but three things are needed:

- 1—A Savings Account in this reliable Institution.
- 2—A determination to save so much every week or month.
- 3—Careful management in little things.

Those who practice Thrift naturally save money; in fact—It saves itself!

IDLERS TO ENROLL AUGUST 20TH

If You Don't Obey The Law The Governor Will Get You

Governor Harrington last Wednesday issued a proclamation putting into effect on August 20th next the Compulsory Work Act passed by the General Assembly recently in session.

On and after August 20th the sheriffs will begin rounding up the loafers. The Governor is determined that those who do not fight shall work. The loafers eat, and the Governor intends to do everything in his power to make them earn what they eat and not to be a burden upon the balance of the community. There will be a fine up to $50 for each idler who does not register, and if the fine is not paid he will go to jail and be registered for work afterward. Any person who disobeys the Governor's assignment to work after the registration shall have been completed will be subject to a fine up to $500 or to imprisonment up to six months, with assignment to the work afterward.

The registration will be with the clerks of the circuit courts in the counties and with the Clerk of the Superior Court in Baltimore city.

By the terms of the proclamation all habitual male loafers and idlers, men without visible means of support, must register on the day named or be prepared to take the consequences. These consequences are that the loafer and idler will be put to work by the state, either for the state or for a private employer. The law applies to all able-bodied men between 18 and 50 years of age. The exceptions are:

Students and persons fitting themselves to engage in trade or industrial pursuits.

Persons temporarily unemployed by reasons of differences with their employers.

Persons engaged or employed in any seasonal business, trade or occupation carried on in Baltimore city or the counties.

Rules and regulations will be prepared and published governing the assignment of persons of the designated ages to work, which will assure that all persons similarly circumstanced shall, as far as is possible to do so, be treated alike, and in due time, and from time to time the Governor will proclaim the occupations which he finds to be essential for the protection and welfare of the people of this state and the United States and which he finds cannot be carried on as the protection and welfare of the people of this state and of the United States require without resort to the act in question.

In due time also the aforesaid clerks of court and other appropriate officials will be supplied with registration cards whereon such persons will be required to register.

Mt. Vernon Red Cross Circle

Under the auspices of the Women's Council of Somerset County, Mrs. L. A. Oates, chairman, a working circle of the American Red Cross was organized at Mt. Vernon last Friday night with the following officers: Mrs. S. W. Webster, chairman; Mrs. Edgar Jones, vice-chairman; Miss Estelle Harrington, secretary; Mrs. W. H. Revelle, treasurer.

The meeting was held in John Wesley Hall and there were about 40 ladies and gentlemen present. Mr. George H. Myers talked of the great war, its causes, our part in it and what every American man, woman and child must do, and do quickly, to help bring this struggle to a successful end. Mrs. Oates spoke of the needs and mission of the Red Cross. Miss Anne Page urged the saving of food as the great way in which every woman can help win the war. County Demonstrator, Miss Morgan, outlined plans for canning surplus food products. She will organize a canning club to-day (Tuesday) at the home of Mrs. S. W. Webster.

DRAFT TO DEFEND NATION IN WAR WITH GERMANY

Greatest Human Lottery Carried Out In Washington Last Friday—List Of Those Drawn For United States Army In Somerset County

Fate has acted; the Gods of Fortune have arranged the numbers in the greatest lottery of all time to determine the order in which men are to be drafted to serve the American government on the battle front in Europe. The first number was drawn at 9.50 o'clock last Friday morning by Newton D. Baker, the Secretary of War. It was No. 258. Every man bearing this number in the 4,587 registration districts throughout the country is the initial man in his district subject to examination for the draft.

Of 7,500 Baltimore city men between the ages of 21 and 31 years and of 7,500 county men of Maryland between the ages of 21 and 31 years, are the men who, as the result of the draft, will be called first for examination to fill up the quota of men from the State of Maryland in the great new national armies of the United States. These are the men who will be notified first to appear before the local exemption boards, and in the order in which their names appear they will be passed upon and accepted, or rejected, until the State's full quota of 7,096 men has been secured. Each man as he is accepted automatically is drafted into the army. The draft in Somerset county for the United States

TO ENFORCE THE CRAB LAW

Conservation Commission Will Endeavor To Protect Crabs

Members of the Conservation Commission—W. Thomas Kemp, chairman; William H. Killian and J. Edward White—visited Oxford, St. Michaels and other crabbing centers in Talbot county last Wednesday to investigate complaints of nonenforcement of the crabbing law enacted by the General Assembly while recently in extra session. As far as the information received by the Commission goes sentiment in that county is divided as regards the law, some opposing, while others are in favor of drastic enforcement. The Commissioners explained the provisions of the law and its beneficial results in localities where complete information does not exist. At the same time steps were taken looking to an enforcement of the act in localities where violations have been reported.

In its first official bulletin issued last Tuesday the Conservation Commission thus discusses the new crabbing law:

The alarming and continuous decrease in the supply of crabs in Maryland waters proved the necessity for immediate and drastic efforts to avoid complete destruction of that important industry. The legislature has, therefore, passed a statewide law fixing 5 inches as the minimum size for hard crabs, and 3 inches for soft crabs and peelers, and has also prohibited catching or possessing egg-bearing female crabs and snot crabs or green crabs. This law was first tried out in Somerset county where it gave complete satisfaction, and it has now been made a statewide measure. The Commission is convinced that this law is vitally necessary to save the destruction of millions of small crabs which were being cooked and then thrown out on the shell pile. This law is just as important for the counties of the Upper Bay as for the Lower Bay, and it is hoped that the crabbers of all sections will co-operate in assisting the Commission in carrying out the letter and spirit of this measure which is designed for their own protection.

The Commissioners told the canners and crabbers that the law was not a bluff; that it was a real live law; that it was designed for the protection of their industry, and that it will be strictly enforced.

The members of the commission after patiently listening to the arguments used by the various speakers at St. Michaels, voicing their complaints about the working of the new crab law, in reply, in part, said:

We sympathize with your difficulties at this particular time of the year, and we want to help you in any way we can, but the decrease in the crab supply demanded a minimum-size law, and our duty is to see that this law is uniformly enforced. No law can be respected in other sections if there is lax enforcement in a given locality. The small crabs which are now being caught will shed within four weeks at the most, perhaps sooner, and they will then be legal-size crabs, with twice as much meat and value. Most of the crabs will not leave your waters, but will probably be caught again by you.

An inspector will be assigned to the canneries in St. Michaels. He will be instructed to stay on the job all the time.

New Motor Vehicle Law

The new motor vehicle law recently passed forbids glaring lights at night on roads. Only 30 days will be allowed from July 1st to comply with the law.

Perhaps the most important feature of this bill is that prohibiting glaring headlights on any of the roads in the State. This provides that:

"It shall be unlawful to use a vehicle of any kind, operated on the public highways of this State, including motorcycles, any lighting device of over four candlepower, equipped with a reflector, unless the same shall be so designed, deflected, or arranged that no portion of the beam of reflected light, projected to the left of the axis of the vehicle, when measured 75 feet or more ahead of the lamps, shall rise above 42 inches from the level of the surface on which the vehicle stands under all conditions of load."

Still another provision directs that machines while standing still must have a light on the left side, showing red in the rear and white in front, both lights to be visible for 200 feet. This does not refer to the ordinary tail light.

The provisions of the law are made State-wide and no local law or regulation can be enacted that is in conflict with them.

High Hopes Of Mr. Root's Work

Almost without exception, the Japanese newspapers, vernacular and English, express satisfaction at the appointment of former Secretary of State Elihu Root as chief of the United States mission to Russia. "It is given to Mr. Root to perform a great service to mankind," says the Japan Advertiser, "but his path will be beset with great difficulties."

COLORED SCHOOLS IN MARYLAND

Statistics Given Out By Department Of Interior On Negro Education

Public and private schools for negroes in Maryland are described in the report on Negro Education, just issued by the United States Bureau of Education, Department of the Interior.

Besides listing the private and higher schools for negroes in Maryland and other southern states, this federal report on colored schools analyzes the provision for education by the states; discusses means and methods of education for negroes; describes building and equipment for typical schools, and attempts to give specific aid to public and private authorities interested in negro education. The problem before the colored schools of Maryland is indicated by the fact that illiterates are still 23 per cent. of the colored people 10 years of age and over, and 9 per cent. of the children 10 to 14 years of age.

The Maryland section of the report shows that there are, according to census figures, 232,250 colored people in Maryland, forming 18 per cent. of the total population. It is pointed out that 29 per cent. of all persons engaged in agricultural pursuits in the state are colored, and that the number of farms cultivated by negroes increased 9 per cent. between 1900 and 1910. As farmers renting and owning land, they have charge of more than 350,000 acres of Maryland soil, and, if their work as farm laborers be taken into account, they undoubtedly cultivate a much larger area. The report, therefore, emphasizes the special need of agricultural and industrial education.

Public provision for colored and white children in Maryland is compared on the basis of the amount expended for teachers' salaries and the number of children of school age. "The public school teachers of Maryland received $2,849,540 in salaries in 1911-12," says the report. "Of this sum, $2,567,021 was for the teachers of 136,147 white children, and $282,519 was for the teachers of 44,315 colored children. On a per capita basis, this is $13.79 for each white child of school age, and $6.38 for each colored child." There is a wide variation in the per capita expenditure for colored children. In Somerset and Anne Arundel counties this is less than $1.60, while in the city of Baltimore it is $15.33.

Private schools for colored pupils in Maryland number 10, according to the report. They have a property valuation of $99,624, an annual income of $23,454, and an attendance of 1,033 pupils, of whom 942 are in elementary grades. All but two of the private schools are supported by denominations. Only one of the 10 schools may be said to play any important part in the educational activities of the state. It is pointed out that a few of the remaining schools may be justified on denominational grounds. The majority, however, are so hampered by small income or poor management that the state receives little benefit from them. The most urgent need of the colored schools in Maryland is trained teachers. The report declares:

"The supply now depends largely on secondary and normal schools outside the state. Within the state only the Baltimore Normal School, the Bowie Normal School and Princess Anne Academy offer even a fair preparation. The annual output of these schools is obviously inadequate to meet the need for teachers in a state with almost 235,000 colored people and 1,000 colored public school teachers."

Fisheries Bulletin Out

The Conservation Commission last Tuesday issued the first number of an official bulletin, which it purposes to put out monthly, for the information and guidance of persons interested in the sea-food industry. The bulletin will be given widespread circulation in the tide-water counties, and the commission is hopeful that it will bring co-operation in the conservation work.

The first number includes a statement of the laws passed by the extra session of the Legislature, at the instigation of the commission, legislation which the commission intends to ask of the 1918 session, an extract from the report of J. P. Snyder, of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, upon fisheries and fish cultural conditions on the Eastern Shore and a discussion of the game-warden system.

Red Dawn.

COUNTERPLOT.

In a hand at once feminine and of decided character, the envelope was superscribed:

ORSON BERTRAM, Esq., General Manager,
Channing, Inc.,
Introducing 87 Broadway, New York.
Capt. Donald Parr.

The addressee accepted it from the hands of Capt. Donald Parr with a slightly bored air which was swiftly dissipated once he had scanned the dozen or so lines composing the body of the note.

With a somewhat startled expression Mr. Bertram peered over his desk at this Captain Parr—a brief scrutiny which Donald endured with composure until Mr. Bertram (with the manner of one challenging the testimony of his own senses), returned undivided attention to a second reading of the note. Then a twinkle of amusement showed in Donald's eyes, he communicated this emotion in a swift glance to his companion, and again masked it with a semblance of impassivity.

Having verified his first impression of the sense of the communication, Mr. Bertram clicked his tongue against his teeth meditatively—"Tch! Tch!" "Miss Channing reposes a—pardon me—surprising degree of confidence in you, Captain Parr," he commented.

"I hope to prove worthy of her trust," Donald declared with all due humility.

"I used the term surprising in view of the fact that it has been my misfortune never to have heard of you as a friend of Miss Channing's."

"Don't apologize," said Donald calmly—and let it go at that.

"Of course," Mr. Bertram amended hastily, "I am Miss Channing's servant. Her will is my law. Pray advise me in what way I may serve you."

"Permit me first," Donald suggested, "to introduce my friend, Mr. Edward W. Ryley, late of the United States Secret Service, now associated with me in the private bureau of information which I have organized for Miss Channing at her suggestion."

Mr. Bertram looked, if possible, more than ever startled.

"I know nothing of that," he said, mechanically shaking hands with Mr. Ryley.

"It is Miss Channing's desire that I inform you concerning it, in strict confidence—naturally."

"Naturally," echoed Mr. Bertram, and assumed a receptive attitude.

Rapidly Captain Parr sketched for the benefit of the general manager an outline of the existing situation between Patricia Channing and himself, on the one hand, and on the other Baron Huroki and his associates.

As he drew to his conclusion Mr. Bertram betrayed boundless amazement.

"Extraordinary!" he commented, and rather needlessly mopped his brow.

"May I ask—?"

"Anything, Mr. Bertram. It is not only my duty, I am only too happy to tell you everything."

"Why—since these Japanese and Mexican conspirators have so openly shown their hands—?"

"I won't indorse openly," Donald interrupted with a smile. "They have been very shrewd and cunning. It has thus far been our good fortune—with the assistance of Mr. Ryley here—to penetrate their intrigues and mate their every move."

"But surely you have ample excuse for swearing out warrants for their arrest?"

"If we do that," Donald explained patiently, "we merely exchange an enemy we know for one we do not know. Japanese conspiracy will not die out in this country if we expose and punish Baron Huroki; another will take his place; and warned by Huroki's fate, will work even more surreptitiously. But as long as Baron Huroki is suffered to remain head and forefront of the intrigue, we know whom to watch and, through our experience with his methods, how best to forestall his machinations."

"But why—in the name of sanity—permit Miss Channing to expose herself to needless danger by continuing to masquerade as Baron Huroki as this creature, Elaine, whom he tried to put in Miss Channing's place?"

"It is not my wish, but Miss Channing's will. She herself conceived the notion of playing Elaine to Huroki, and she insists on going through with it."

"But why—?"

"As long as Huroki believes her his tool masquerading as Elaine, he will have few secrets from her—and consequently—from us."

"But if he discovers his mistake—!"

"I am doing all I can to provide against any serious upshot."

"Miss Channing is a very brave young woman."

"I would be a poor American were I not heart and soul and hand with Miss Channing in this work!" he exclaimed. "Tell me how I may help!"

Donald consulted his watch.

"Her train is due at Grand Central now," he announced. "Unless Huroki has changed his plans, they will call on you at four or thereabouts. I wish to be present at the interview."

"Won't that be dangerous to your plans? How am I to excuse your presence?"

"By this." And with a few words of explanation Donald submitted to the consideration of Mr. Bertram a legal document whose nature completed the process of stupefaction inaugurated by the letter of introduction.

After a time he nodded. "I understand. What else?"

"I want you to go down to Powder Town tonight—as soon as you can leave after the interview with Huroki—and take the situation there in hand."

Mr. Bertram's tone was edged with alarm. "What situation there?"

"Are you ignorant of the fact that there is a certain amount of disaffection among your employees, in spite of munitions-contract wages, short hours, and general prosperity?"

"I give you my word, I know nothing of any such state of affairs!"

"It none the less exists."

"How do you know?"

"Through the activities of Mr. Ryley's assistants, who have been in Powder Town in one or another ostensible capacity—some even working in the Channing mills—ever since we learned, through Patricia—Miss Channing, I mean—that Huroki was planning a demonstration there to compel Channing's acceptance of the Mexican munitions contracts."

"You astound me!"

"Will you go?"

"Without losing a moment's time!"

"Then," said Donald, rising, "there is nothing more for us to arrange until we have had our talk with Huroki. I will be back at half-after three."

Punctual to the minute of his appointment, he anticipated the appearance of Patricia and her dupes by less than a quarter-hour.

As he dropped into a chair by the side of Bertram's desk that gentleman answered the muffled signal of his private telephone, and after giving it an instant of attention, handed the instrument to Donald, accompanying the action with a gesture of surprise.

"Channing, New Jersey," he said, giving "Powder Town" its proper title, according to the United States postal authorities, "is calling Capt. Donald Parr."

Putting receiver to ear, he called: "Yes. This is Captain Parr."

"Barnes, sir," came the response over the wires—"speaking from Powder Town."

"Something important, Barnes?"

"Things look pretty nasty, sir. The air's thick with suspicious circumstances. Strike and violence are being publicly preached, but no one seems to know just when anything definite will happen. And I notice a lot of Japs in the streets; they pretend to be engaged in petty business—running restaurants and that sort of thing—but it's a safe bet they're in close touch with Huroki and his outfit. I've been spotted already, I'm afraid."

"What makes you think so?" Parr asked as the other ceased abruptly to talk.

"For all answer he heard a deadened bang at the other end of the wire—a sound closely resembling that made by slamming open the folding-door of an alleged 'sound-proof' booth."

"Hello?" he called impatiently.

"Hello? Barnes! What the deuce! Hello?"

No answer.

At this juncture the secretary to Mr. Bertram announced Miss Channing with Baron Huroki and Senor de Lima.

Once more Patricia commanded Donald's unstinted wonder and admiration by her consummate histrionic ability; from the instant she entered the room the girl played to perfection the role for which she had cast herself.

"Oh, Mr. Bertram—how do you do?" Patricia offered that gentleman a designedly awkward hand. "So glad to see you looking so well. Permit me to introduce my friends, Baron Huroki and Senor de Lima."

A Message Was in Its Folds.

With his usual admirable address, Huroki recovered from his disgust on recognizing Parr, and acknowledging the latter's presence with a slight, cool nod, turned to exhibit marked cordiality toward the general manager of Channing, Inc.

Then, the secretary placing chairs for the party, they disposed themselves to the business of the hour.

Ignoring Donald completely—turning toward him a cold shoulder which served its master ill since it provided Donald with an opportunity to place Patricia's chair near his own—the Japanese buttered his selected victim with his very best grade of urbanity.

"It is a pleasure to make the acquaintance of one with whom I am to transact so much business," he averred—"to our great mutual profit, I trust."

"I'm sure I hope so," Bertram agreed pleasantly. "But may I inquire the nature of the business?"

"Miss Channing has not yet advised you—?"

Bertram responded to Huroki's artful look of surprise with one of blank non-comprehension.

"Then—permit me—perhaps these papers will best explain."

Bertram accepted a bundle of legal-cap documents and leaned back in his chair to examine them.

"Agreement between Channing, Inc., and Senor Juan de Lima," he read aloud the endorsement on the uppermost—no machine guns and munitions for the de facto government of Mexico."

He managed a moment of embarrassment. "I am sorry, gentlemen, but the strictly defined policy of Channing, Inc., does not permit us to accept these contracts."

"I am sorry to seem rude," Baron Huroki said suavely; "but if you will be good enough to examine the signatures you will find that the president of Channing, Inc., has seen fit to reverse your policy."

Hastily unfolding the document in hand, Bertram scrutinized the foot of its last page.

"Channing, Inc., by Patricia Channing, President," he read, and hesitated, and looked dubiously at Patricia. "This is your signature, Miss Channing?"

The girl, avoiding his gaze, murmured an affirmative.

"You can hardly question its genuineness," Huroki commented with a superciliously lifted eyebrow. "You surely do not mean to imply that the signature could be a forgery?"

"No," Bertram admitted mildly—"no. But I am surprised—yes, much surprised."

"But why?"

"Because—you know, of course, this contract is dated yesterday; whereas I hold here—Bertram exposed the paper Donald had given him at their earlier interview—"an absolute power of attorney given Capt. Donald Parr by Miss Patricia Channing ten days ago, by which it appears that any and all contracts signed by her and lacking his counter-signature become automatically invalid."

Even the racial serenity of Baron Huroki was hardly proof against this blow. He took a rather long moment to recover.

"None the less," he said at length, turning toward Donald, "Captain Parr will hardly withhold his signature when Miss Channing requests him to affix it."

"I am sorry," Donald said quietly. "Even should Miss Channing command, I must refuse."

"Captain Parr!" This was Patricia's contribution, an excellently simulated cry of indignation.

"I am sorry," Donald repeated firmly. "But so long as this power of attorney rests with me, and so long as Japan conspires to embroil the United States with Mexico, by way of preparing for the allied Japanese-Mexican invasion of the Pacific Coast states—so long, indeed, as Japan maintains a naval base at Magdalena bay—just so long will Channings refuse to sell arms and ammunition to any Mexican faction whatsoever!"

"The power of attorney is, of course, revocable," Bertram suggested maliciously.

"If Miss Channing wishes to revoke it, that can doubtless be attended to without delay," Donald agreed. "Do you wish Mr. Bertram to call in a stenographer and a notary, Miss Channing?"

Now, as Elaine, Patricia could not make a creditable forgery of the signature of Patricia Channing; the extraordinarily skillful forgeries appended to the contracts in Bertram's hands were the work of Huroki's able compatriots. As Elaine, she dared not attempt to sign the name of Patricia in the presence of witnesses.

"No, no," she said hastily rising—"not now, not today. I shall, of course, revoke the power—tomorrow. This afternoon I haven't time. I'm already late for an appointment with my dressmaker."

"Then I shall expect a call from you tomorrow?" Bertram inquired amiably.

"At about what hour—?"

"Till telephone," Patricia evaded. "If you please—Baron Huroki—Senor de Lima—"

When he had courteously shut the door upon the backs of the discomfited conspirators, Bertram turned to Parr with a grin of unaffected delight.

"Good work!" he chuckled.

But Donald did not respond. He was studying with a look of exasperation a small slip of paper which he had just unfolded.

"What now?" Bertram asked.

"Read that!" Donald told him wrathfully. "You didn't notice—none of the others did—but Patricia dropped her handkerchief and I picked it up. This message was in its folds."

tion at the doors elicited the information, from innocent and disinterested bystanders, that a young woman clothed beautifully in white had run madly from the church, met a young man at the gate, and with him had vanished in a taxicab whose chauffeur unquestionably placed little value in his license.

At twenty minutes past eight that taxicab, having eluded all attempts at pursuit (if any such there were) drew up before the apartment house in which Captain Parr maintained his New York home.

A moment later the door of his quarters closed upon Patricia Channing and the lover of her choice. "I thought you would never come!" she stammered.

"I had to work very quietly," he explained. "It was obvious from the first that this arrangement couldn't continue—you couldn't go on hoodwinking Huroki and at the same time keep out of marrying de Lima. And when Huroki found out that you had made a fool of him, you would have to be mighty safely hidden to escape reprisal. So I fixed things up for you here. I've moved over to the Vanderbilt—got hold of Anne, sent her to the Ritz with an order for your belongings—she was there within ten minutes of the time you left for the church—brought everything of yours here and . . . Well, here we are!"

"But how did you ever find out de Lima had a wife?"

"I didn't," Donald explained gravely. "She wasn't his wife."

There came a knock at the door.

"That's Ryley. Let him in, please, Anne. I left him to protect the woman in case either Huroki or de Lima became violent."

The grin of the detective as he entered was evidence of the fact that he had experienced no great trouble. There had been a bit of a rumple, he reported—nothing to speak of.

His account was interrupted by the shrill, imperative clamour of the telephone. Donald answered, and sobered to sudden gravity as he carried on a brief conversation with Bertram in Powder Town.

"Trouble at Channing," he announced as he hung up. "Bertram says our man Barnes was shot in a street fight this afternoon by some loafer who interrupted him when he was 'phoning me. In addition the town seems strike-mad all of a sudden—agitators, even now, are preaching strike and destruction of property. Bertram thinks we'd better run down and look the situation over for ourselves. It may prove necessary to call on the governor for militia to protect the mills."

"Donald—please! I am so afraid for you!"

"I must go, dear—I must. You need not worry on my account—we've a dozen men down there who will help Ryley take care of me. Not that I anticipate any serious trouble. The rabble have no excuse for rioting till the company refuses the strikers' demands—and it can't do that till tomorrow."

He found a time-table, scanned it rapidly, snatched up his hat.

"With luck and a fast taxi-man we can just make the next train, the last tonight."

The door banged; incredibly, Patricia was alone—alone, that is, except for Anne.

She threw herself into a chair, when she had suffered Anne to change her bridal garments for a negligee.

Womanlike, she was stubbornly bent on spending a sleepless, wretched night. In spite of herself, toward eleven o'clock, she nodded in her chair, then slept.

It was two when the telephone aroused her.

One of her force of private secret service agents was calling from Powder Town for Captain Parr, in ignorance of the fact that, according to the time-table, and providing he had caught his train, Donald should have been there with Ryley for a matter of three hours.

In response to her catechism the agent reported that the situation at Channings was one of imminent emergency. A strike had been called at midnight; the employees of the powder mills who had come off shift at that hour had not been replaced; rioting was already in process; the general store maintained by the company had been burned and looted; the mob was threatening to march upon the mills.

Instructing the man to seek Captain Parr at the mills, Patricia left the telephone and stealthily entered the bedroom which had been Donald's, which now was hers.

From the adjoining chamber sounded an unmistakable snore: Anne unquestionably slept.

With every precaution to avoid wakening her, the girl found a sports-suit and hurriedly dressed, interrupting that process but once, and then to telephone her garage to send her favorite motor car, a high-powered racing machine, round to the door.

It was waiting for her when at length she crept quietly out of the apartment house.

Dismissing the mechanic, she took the wheel alone.

Constrained within the limits of New York to go warily, once across the Hudson she gave the motor its head.

Patricia knew that country well; she made no miscalculation as to her way; for all that, she could not hope to reach the neighborhood of Channings before the dawn.

With madly throbbing heart, Patricia began to recognize landmarks of the countryside that told her she was close upon Powder Town.

The sun was rising in crimson splendor when Patricia, arriving on the crest of a hill overlooking Powder Town, brought the car to a full pause, that she might spy out the situation before running on into possible peril.

She had brought with her, for just such use, a pair of binoculars belonging to Donald. Now she unslung and focussed these.

Off to the right, at the bottom of the cup, stood the unlovely huddle of mill buildings. Her glasses showed the yard gates closed and guarded by armed sentries.

On her left the single-track rail-ne

line

half concealed by an intervening rise of wooded land. But the smoke of its burning buildings was billowing up in the still morning air.

A stentorian puffing called her interest back to the train of freight cars.

Slipped Out of the Church.

The locomotive was getting under way with vast complaints because of the strain of the up-grade pull.

With a start Patricia discovered that the rear car had been uncoupled and its brakes thrown off. As the train moved uphill, it was moving downhill, at first slowly under unassisted momentum, but momentarily gathering way through the attraction of gravity.

It was at most a mile from the mills. By the time the car had covered half that distance on that steep grade it would be careering downhill at express speed. When it struck the mill-yard gates it would cave them in like eggshells.

Horror's frigid hand clutched at Patricia's heart as she realized that this thing had come to pass through no accident but through deliberate and fiendish design.

That freight car was loaded to its eaves with high-explosive. When the crash came, the Channing mills would be wiped off the face of the earth.

Without conscious thought the girl released the brakes and swiftly coaxed the motor to its utmost.

There was a bare chance that she might save the mills and the many loyal men who guarded it—including, doubtless, her Donald.

About an eighth of a mile from the yard gates the road crossed the railroad tracks; if she could but forestall the freight car at that junction. . . .

She had half a mile to go; the freight car was moving at good speed before her racer was even started. It was gambling with death, but Patricia could not refuse the game because the stakes were high.

Miraculously, as it seemed to her when she was permitted time for retrospect, she made it.

The freight car was a hundred yards distant and bearing down like a juggernaut gone mad, when she stalled the motor-car on the rails, jumped, and ran for dear life.

The ensuing explosion was like the trumpet of Doom. Patricia, lifted bodily from her feet, was flung to earth again with stunning force.

When she came to her senses again there was neither freight nor motor-car to be seen—nothing but a great gap in the tracks, a craterlike hole in the ground.

But that was nothing: Donald Parr was bending over her, lifting her in his arms; and he was whole and unharmed if pale with fright on her behalf.

And she was quite unharmed. With a broken little laugh of happiness Patricia swung an arm around his neck.

MONEY IN BABY BEEF.

Pure Bred Bull of Beef Breeding a Prime Necessity For Success.
[Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

Although it takes less food to produce a pound of flesh on baby beefs than on mature cattle, they sell for as high a price per pound as the best of other fat cattle. This fact and the demand for small high quality cuts and the increased cost of producing beef
in general have fostered a rapid growth of the baby beef industry. An additional advantage is that markets for baby beefs have been very stable during the past ten years. Baby horn.

beef may be described as well fattened, finished animals, weighing from 900 to 1,200 pounds and marketed when between fourteen and twenty months old.

The young heifers sell as well as the steers, and the returns from the money invested in the production of such cattle come quicker. On the other hand, it takes more experience to succeed with baby beefs than with mature cattle, a better grade of stock is required, and farm roughage cannot be substituted for grain to the same extent.

In a new publication of the United States department of agriculture, devoted to this subject, Farmers' Bulletin 811, it is pointed out that the first necessity for the production of baby beef is a herd that has at least a fair amount of beef blood. The cows need not be pure breds, but they should have at least two or three crosses of such blood in them. A preponderance of dairy blood will not give profitable results. The cows should, however, growing and have not been allowed to lose their milk bloom.

produce enough milk to keep the calves well and growing without much additional feed.

A good bull will do much to offset defects in the cow herd. A good beef form and a strong tendency toward early maturity are essentials. The owner's success, in fact, depends to a great extent upon the bull's ability to transmit the latter characteristic to his offspring. Money spent in acquiring a bull that will do this is likely to prove a good investment, for the whole baby beef industry depends upon speed in finishing the animals for market.

A herd at least large enough to produce a carload of calves a year is recommended in the bulletin already mentioned. Shipping in carload lots is usually the only economical way of getting stock to market, from twenty to twenty-seven baby beefs constituting a carload. Some allowance must of course be made for loss and for calves that are not suited for treatment as baby beef. Since a well matured bull can easily take care of fifty or sixty cows, the bull charge per calf
also will be greater when the breeding herd is small. On the other hand, great care must be taken not to crowd
the pastures. Good blue grass or clover should carry from fifty to a hundred cows on a hundred acres; other pastures from fifty to as low as five. The amount of available roughage is another important factor in determining the size of the breeding herd. Roughage should form the basal portion of the ration for the cows. It cannot be bought with profit at the prevailing prices, and no more cows should be kept, therefore, than the farmer can feed with home grown roughage.

DEHORNING CALVES.

Growth of Horns Can Easily Be Prevented by Proper Treatment.
[Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

In the average dairy it is better that cows be without horns, as the danger of their hooking one another is thus prevented. Only in pure bred herds, where the appearance of the herd is considered important from a show or sale point of view, is there any justification for allowing horns to grow. It is much easier to prevent the growth of horns than to remove them.

The points that ultimately will develop into horns can be felt as small buttons embedded in the skin. The prevention is most effective if the treatment is applied when the buttons are just large enough to be felt, which is usually between the third and the seventh days.

To prevent their development the hair should be removed from the horn buttons. A stick of caustic potash or soda, wrapped in paper to protect the hands of the operator, is then moistened with water and rubbed on each horn button two or three times, allowing the caustic to dry after each application. Care should be taken to apply the caustic, which should not be too moist, to the buttons only, for if it touches the surrounding skin it will cause unnecessary pain. Immediately after the application the calf also should be protected from rain, in order to prevent the caustic from spreading.

If the operation is carefully performed the horns will make no growth. If scurs or horn growths appear it is an indication that the caustic was not properly applied.

Worms in Hogs.

Keep your hogs free from worms by giving the following ingredients: Santonin, two and one-half grains; areca nut, one dram; calomel, one grain; sodium bicarbonate, one dram. The above is a dose for a 100 pound pig, and the dosage may be increased or decreased according to the size of the animal. The pigs are starved for twelve hours previous to giving the remedy. The medicine is thoroughly stirred in a small amount of ground
feed and the dose repeated in ten days.

Girls Have Pretty Face
And Beautiful Complexion

An Atlanta man makes new discovery that makes an old face look years younger. If your skin is dark, brown, or covered with freckles or blemishes, just use a little Cocotone Skin Whitener; it's made with coconut oil and is perfectly harmless. A few days' use will improve your looks 100%. The worn out skin comes off evenly, leaving no evidence of the treatment, the new healthy, under-skin appearing as a lovely new complexion.
Just ask your druggist for an ounce of Cocotone Skin Whitener, and if he will not supply you send twenty-five cents to the Cocotone Co., Atlanta, Ga.,
and they will send you a box by return mail.
If your hair is hard to comb, is kinky, nappy and will never stay straight, just use Cocotone Hair Dressing and it will become straight, long, soft, glowy and beautiful in a few days. Mail orders filled, 25c for large box.

FARM AND GARDEN.

Use the poultry droppings
where they will do the most good. Celery, onions, lettuce and cabbage are especially benefited by applications of poultry manure.

The beet plant is easily transplanted, especially when the ground is moist and the weather cool and cloudy. An excellent plan is to use the surplus plants
where the rows are thinned.

Golden Bantam sweet corn is at the top of the list for quality, but it will not yield so large a crop as Country Gentleman and Stowell Evergreen. These later varieties should be selected for drying.

Don't grow small grains in the orchard. This for the reason that they grow and require much food and moisture at the same time the trees are growing—namely, in early summer.

Field beans, where they can be grown, are excellent orchard crops and are not subject to the objection sometimes raised against corn, that it shades the young trees.

IMPROVING WOOD LOTS.

Rundown Forests May Be Put in Good Condition by Underplanting.

Rundown wood lots can be put into good condition again by an improvement cutting, followed by underplant-ing with useful species.

The purpose of such a cutting is to remove all trees of bad form, of undesirable kind and those in defective condition.

This may open up the stand very considerably, especially where the lot has been neglected for a long time, and it will be good forestry to underplant with some useful kind of tree when such trees of valuable kinds are lacking. Nursery grown white pines which have previously had one transplanting make a good tree for such underplant-ing. In addition, along exposed borders a belt of four rows of Norway spruce may well be set to form a protective mantle to shut out drying winds.

An improvement cutting which followed this method was completed this winter on one of the Cornell (New York) university wood lots under conditions which seem to indicate that it is practicable near any fair sized town.
Where there is a market for lumber and fuel the wood removed by the improvement cutting may be sold to good advantage.

Under such a plan a new forest wholly of useful trees can be had by the underplanting. After eight or ten years the remaining trees of the old stand can be removed. Because of the larger growing room and greater supply of light which they will receive they will have made a rapid increase in girth during the period. On steep slopes the underplanting will tend to hold the soil in place and to prevent washouts on the hillsides.

Homemade Land Measurer.

Make a land measurer by putting together one-half by one and one-half strips of wood in the manner shown.
The four strips that make the "wheel"
are firmly nailed together. Then a hole is bored through the middle for the round bolt that will pass through

LAND MEASURER.

the side pieces and the wheel. Have the end of one strip painted that a complete revolution may be easily counted as one walks along. Mark on the ground the exact distance covered by one revolution. If feet and any inches except six are shown cut off
the ends of the sticks until one revolution shows an exact number of feet.
This multiplied by the number of revolutions across a field will give its length readily.—American Agricultur-ist.

Use Pure Bred Stallions.

[Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

War conditions abroad have placed upon the American farmers the responsibility for the continuing and improvement of the horse industry;
hence it is especially important at this time that horse breeders give particular consideration to the selection of a proper sire. The influence of the sire is pre-eminent, because he directly affects a greater number of offspring than does the single female. There can be no improvement or grading up process by the use of scrub sires. It is not a paying proposition simply to breed mares to any stallions that may be available. A sound, pure bred stallion must be used if best results are to be obtained.

Time to Wean Lambs.

Lambs should be weaned at from four to five months of age, depending somewhat on the condition of the ewes and the size of the lambs. Where they are large and growthy and the ewes thin the lambs may be weaned earlier in order that the ewes may be put in better condition before breeding. Where the lambs are small and the ewes in good condition, however, they may be allowed to run together longer. The lambs should be well fed at weaning time to avoid setbacks.

RUNNING AND BREATHING.

Why the Exertion Makes the Lungs
Gasp For More Air.

It is hard to breathe after running awhile, because your body requires more blood in circulation. The efforts of your heart, brain and lungs make breathing difficult. We breathe to take air into the lungs, where the blood which has once been through the arteries and comes back on its return trip to the heart is exposed to the air in the lungs before going back into the heart. The air which we take into our lungs purifies the once used blood and makes it into good blood again.

When you run the heart pumps blood into your arteries faster to enable you to run, we are told by the Book of Wonders. Thus also the arteries send much more blood back to the heart through the veins, and this must be purified by the lungs before going back into the heart. To attend to purifying this extra amount of spoiled blood
the lungs need more air, and thus you are made to breathe in more air for the purpose.

Unless you are in good training—your wind in good condition, as we say—it is almost impossible for you to supply the lungs with enough air for the purpose, but whether you can do it or not the lungs call upon you for more air and cause you to try to get it,
and that is what makes you get out of breath.

SINGING IN ENGLISH.

The Difficulty of Sounding Certain Words on High Notes.

English as is commonly sung has become so hard to understand that musical authorities are earnestly seeking a remedy. And the composer is principally to blame, says Francis Toye, writing in the London Nation.

"That there are difficulties in singing certain English syllables on certain notes may be admitted," says Mr.
Toye. "English, unlike German and Italian, is not predominantly a language of broad vowel sounds. It is awkward, for instance, to sing 'fir' or 'her' or 'sun' with a loud, sustained tone on a high note. But if composers knew their business they would not, save in any exceptional circumstances, ask the singer to do anything of the kind.

"Half the imaginary difficulties of singing English arise from the incompetence of many composers in setting it to music. They seem neither to think in terms of singing nor to study
the natural rhythm of the language.
When they do the 'problems' of singing in English vanish like the mist before the sun."

Pugnacious Earwigs.

Earwigs are quarrelsome creatures
and are always ready to use their tippered tails against each other on the slightest provocation. When the light of a lamp falls upon them congregated at the sugar some are more scared
than the others and scuttle away, when each earwig which they nearly touch in flight will savagely swing back its tail and nip in the air with fury. Sometimes the blow falls upon a neighbor, which instantly retaliates,
and half a dozen furious nips are rapidly interchanged. But fighting weight quickly settles the quarrel, the smaller earwig scuttling off and the larger pursuing him for several inches, running backward and reaching savagely to right and left with his nippers. Yet these same earwigs, so vindictive at meals, will be crammed, all sizes together, into any hole or crack by day.—
London Globe.

A Real Experience.

"Yes," said a traveling man, "I was once out of sight of land on the Atlantic ocean twenty-one days." Another man spoke up: "On the Pacific ocean one time I didn't see land for twenty-nine days."

A bald man knocked the ashes from his cigar and contributed his bit:
"I started across the Kaw river at Topeka in a skiff once," he said, "and was out of sight of land before I reached the other side."

"What!" demanded the man who had spun the first yarn. "The Kaw is not more than 300 feet wide at Topeka."

"Quite true," said the bald man quietly. "The skiff turned over, and I sank twice."—New York Times.

Women and the Styles.

"This article says," remarked Mrs.
McWinkle, "that osteopathy has been the cause of the dissemination of a much wider knowledge of human anatomy than ever existed before the development of that branch of science."

"I am aware," replied Mr. McWinkle, who is an observant man, "that knowledge of human anatomy, particularly of female anatomy, is much more general than it was a few decades ago,
but I had supposed that the modistes and not the osteopaths were responsible."—Dallas News.

should walk ten or twenty miles a day,
sir, but your walking should have an

It All Depends.

"Dad, what's a man who runs an auto called?"
"It depends on whether he is being called by his employer or by the man
he has just missed."—Puck.

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 24, 1917

All reports from the soldiers in those dirty trenches are that they are full of grit.

The amount of good food stuffs used in making intoxicating liquors is said to be a staggering total.

A stormy Sunday on the motor roads makes a dull Monday for the hospitals, doctors, and undertakers.

Lordy, won't the old baldheads have a glorious time when the young bloods have all marched away to war.

At the present price of leather, old shoes are too precious to throw at the departing bride or the back yard cats.

The great and much-to-be-desired change in the map of the world will be made only when the Kaiser is wiped off it.

Now that stylish men's coats are cut closely to the figure, the chapies must look out carefully after their corset covers.

When a woman goes shopping it makes her mad to find the very thing she is looking for in the first store she goes into.

One of the delights of boarding in the country is getting fresh vegetables—fresh from the big city dealers 200 miles away.

The recruits being transported across country in the middle of the hot weather can always open those stick-stick windows with the butts of their rifles.

Who says the Council of National Defense is not adequate to the situation, when substitutes for the German dyes have been gotten out on time for the girls summer sport clothes?

Don't forget to read the newspaper advertising before making purchases. It gives you a list of merchants who are so sure of the value of their goods that they will spend money to solicit your trade.

About this time look out for the sensitive people who do hope those inquisitive reporters won't put in an item about their going away, and then who rush down to the news stand to see how it looks in print.

The question is asked what has become of the boy who used to save up money for two or three years to buy a $35.00 bicycle? Well, he has passed on, and his son has just mortgaged his house to purchase a $1450.00 automobile.

THE FAMILY VACATION

To a great many people of moderate means the cost of a good restful vacation is getting to be quite a problem. Comfortable hotel life costs a lot more than it used to, as prices of food and service are so high. A bungalow in any of the prominent resorts is still more expensive.

Many people with youth and strength camp out very comfortably and have a lovely time of it. Our fathers used to sleep in pine boughs or in hammocks and enjoy it gloriously. The campers today want board floors and cot or spring beds, and perhaps portable houses. But any of these arrangements are comparatively inexpensive.

A family in most ways is just as comfortable in camp out as at the ordinary hotel. The children do not have to be prinked and pranked for every meal where they must encounter the criticisms of the dining room. Quarters are cramped, but the young people are not bawling at a piano until 1 a.m. The one exception of course is the house work question. The men are all too apt to slip off fishing, and leave their wives all day to struggle with pots and pans.

For a party of young people the housekeeping is fun and the boys wipe the dishes for the girls with alacrity. After they get married it's another story. When the family gets larger and people lose a little youth and elasticity, they begin to want more restful vacations.

Probably the best solution is for a group of people of similar tastes to get together and hire a cook to provide meals for a little colony of people. If the crowd is satisfied with a simple menu, and if the people do not ask too much service, the thing can be done at prices away below those of the hotel table. It is jolly out door life, and people make more friends that way than in a formal hotel.

THE COMFORT OF RAILROAD TRAVEL

A railroad train at the height of the vacation season is a scene of much discomfort. The staid and starched society of the Pullman car is of course very parlorified. Everyone looks comfortable as the men loll around the smoking compartment and the women do fancy work and read. No railroad system the world over provides quite as much comfort as is given in one of our typical sleeping or chair cars.

No traveling equipment of the civilized world is quite so uncomfortable as the typical day coach. The European compartment, where you lean against a high cushioned back, and particularly where the compartment opens direct on the platform, has its superior features.

Our cars are commonly crowded and poorly ventilated. On a hot day the men remove coats, vests, and collars, down to the legal limit. They slouch in their seats, thinking if they can get their head low and their knees high, that may ease up a little. But that leaves the small of the back dangling in mid air.

Just how far these discomforts limit the passenger income of the roads is of course a question. When people get their going shoes on, they take the first train, comfort or no comfort. They curse the railroad for not providing cars enough, and they curse the road if it applies for raises of rates with which to buy more equipment.

However the railroads can do something to remove unpopularity by attending to minor matters. One of the most annoying features is the window that won't come open. The sashes should slide up and down easily, and it should be someone's business to see that they do so. A water cooler in each car is a godsend on a hot day. In ordering new cars the companies will be forever blest if they provide high backed seats and large wide windows. These things don't cost a great deal, but they make traveling far more attractive.

The Compulsory Work Act

Technically speaking, this State took a long step forward toward compact serviceable organization for the war with the executive proclamation concerning compulsory labor for the idle. To render that step effective, nevertheless, there must be wisdom, courage and administrative arrangements of the highest order.

If the act can be honestly, fearlessly, intelligently enforced to meet emergencies, this State should become a model for others; nor need it fear any task set it by the nation. But the test of such an act lies absolutely in its methods of enforcement. It might, on the one hand, as easily make the State the nation's laughing stock as creditor or, on the other hand, it might prove just a bit of legislative bravado. The time for judgment of it will come later.—Baltimore News.

To Protect The Fighters

To insure an adequate supply of canned goods for the Army and Navy the Defense Council's supply committee last Tuesday asked all the country's canners to reserve 12 per cent. of each canners' pack of peas, 12 per cent. of corn, 18 per cent. of tomatoes and 6 per cent. of salmon. These percentages are based upon the canners' entire pack, not on his unsold surplus. The request affects fully 2,500 canners in 18 States. The canners already have agreed to accept a fair and just price to be established by the government.

Such parcels are automatically insured against injury or loss, with additional charge, for their actual value, up to $50 when a 10-cent fee was paid and up to $100 when a 25-cent fee was paid.

The sender of a C. O. D. parcel will not be permitted to pay a fee of only 10 cents thereon when the amount to be remitted is greater than $50, even though he should be willing to accept indemnity only for $50 in case of loss, but when the value of the contents of a parcel exceeds $50 and the remittance to be made to the sender is $50 or less, the parcel may, if the sender so desires, have a 25-cent fee paid thereon, entitling him to indemnity for any loss or damage sustained, not in excess of $100. A parcel on which the remittance is to be $50, but on which, because of the money-order fee, the collection from the addressee would be in excess of that amount, will require only a 10-cent fee.

CAN YOU SPARE ONE DOLLAR?

At present prices the paper which goes into a year's subscription to the Marylander and Herald costs just 88 cents, without freight. It is plain that after the cost of printing and postage is added there is but little profit for the publisher. As a fact, every subscriber costs the publishers a good bit more than the charge of $1.00 a year. By looking at the label on your paper you can see if you are in arrears. If so, you will confer a favor by paying your subscription, and not expect us to continue sending the Marylander and Herald when you could pay the One Dollar more promptly.

U-Boat Chasers Need Men

A special appeal for volunteers to man the submarine chasers which now are under construction for the Government was issued last Thursday by the United States Naval Bureau, 9 East Baltimore street. Skilled machinists, especially gasoline marine engineers, are needed badly. Volunteers are sought who will consent to go immediately to the Norfolk Navy Yard and learn the operation of the submarine chasers, which are rapidly being completed there.

A special course will be given to the crews in navigation and seamanship. Machinists will be drilled in the designing, caring for and manipulating the motors used in the submarine chasers under a corps of expert seamen.

Corn Brings $2.02

Corn prices last Thursday topped the record price of $2, established Wednesday, when at the midday call at the Chamber of Commerce, Baltimore, the grain was quoted at $2.02. A large number of sales have been made at $2 and over, and the transactions are limited only by the small quantity available.

The steady rise in corn prices, which has been progressing for more than a month, is caused by the strong demand and the apparent light supply. The recent Government reports on crop conditions cause many persons to believe that the present price cannot be maintained after the new crop begins to move.

Are You One Of Them?

There are a great many people who would be very much benefited by taking Chamberlain's Tablets for a week or disordered stomach. Are you one of them? Mrs. M. R. Searl, Baldwinville, N. Y., relates her experience in the use of these tablets: "I had a bad spell with my stomach about six months ago, and was troubled for two or three weeks with gas and severe pains in the pit of my stomach. Our druggist advised me to take Chamberlain's Tablets. I took a bottle home and the first dose relieved me wonderfully, and I kept on taking them until I was cured." These tablets do not relieve pain, but after the pain has been relieved may prevent its recurrence.

Navigation School At Crisfield

A free school of navigation is now being conducted by the national government at Crisfield. It is in charge of Professor William R. Ransom, of Tufts College and Harvard University, Boston, Mass., who has lately been transferred from the navigation school at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to this district by the United States Shipping Board.

For all young men and men of middle age who have had some experience before the mast, this school offers a wonderful opportunity for promotion. There are plenty of berths for mates and masters aboard of ships now fitted out and being built; wages are high, and the national government guarantees employment. This service has no connection with the war or the navy, and the opportunity grasped now will yield a steady reward throughout a man's whole life.

Sessions are being held each evening in the Crisfield High School from 7.30 to 10.30 o'clock, and day sessions will be held as the school progresses. If you are interested in the study of navigation with a view of going on a ship in the early fall as mate or master, write at once, stating experience at sea, or better still, go to Crisfield and consult Professor Ransom, at the Colonial Hotel, or any of the local committee: Capt. L. S. Tawes, chairman; C. F. Richardson, mayor; Thomas E. Stevenson, deputy collector; C. H. Mallison, city clerk, or Prof. F. E. Gardner, principal of the high school.

A Marital Preparation

By SADIE OLCOTT

"Harry," said Bess, "I've been thinking what an awful thing it is for a girl to trust her whole future to a man, not knowing whether he's going to make a good husband or a horrid one. I've a good mind to break our engagement."

"Strange, isn't it? I was thinking the same thing about a man's tying himself up for life to a woman. My uncle says a man runs an awful risk when he marries."

"How should he know? He's never been married."

"I've no doubt that your aunt, who is an elderly maiden, put all this distrust into your head. I've often heard her say she wouldn't marry the best man in the world."

"Aunt Martha has a very clear idea of men's faults."

"So has my Uncle Jim of women's shortcomings. But, as I said a moment ago, I've been thinking myself that it's like taking a cold plunge to be married. If you think you don't care to risk it perhaps we'd better break it off."

She pouted at this and bent her eyes down on a locket she was fidgeting with.

"Uncle Jim says," he continued, "that marriage is all very well so long as the spooning lasts, but just as soon as a couple come down to the real thing the girl discovers that she hasn't got exactly what she wanted, or the fellow finds he's made a bull, or both do, and the fracas begins. Now, suppose we stop spooning and treat each other in that friendly way married people do. We'd find out the cause of future dissatisfaction and could make up our minds with deliberation whether we'd better risk it or not."

"That's a good idea. When shall we begin—how?"

"No; the next time we meet."

He didn't care to begin now, because it was only 11 o'clock at night and he was quite sure he would wish to spoon till 1. So they sat locked in each other's arms till 2, when they made preparations for parting, which required half an hour more, and finally succeeded in dragging themselves away from each other at 3. They were to begin their humdrum matrimonial treatment at their next meeting, and in order to be well prepared he was not to call again for three days. When the time was up he had nerved himself to act like a man who had been married ten years. He gave her a perfunctory kiss and, throwing himself into an easy chair, asked if anything new had turned up since he saw her last. She gave him a scornful glance, made no reply and, taking a seat in another part of the room, took up a book she had been reading.

He yawned and, taking a cigarette from a box, lit it, leaned back and smoked. There was a long silence. It was only a few minutes, but it seemed long.

"Been to your aunt's today?" he asked.

"No. Is your uncle well?"

"Very."

Another silence, during which he took up a magazine from a table, turned over the leaves and threw it down. Then he glanced in her direction and saw that the book she was reading, or, rather, pretending to read, was upside down, pictures and all.

"Been a big storm lately?"

"Not that I know of. Why do you ask?"

"Oh, I see a picture of a capsized ship in the book you're reading."

This called her attention to the inverted position of the volume, and she reversed it. There was no sound except the turning of its leaves, which occurred so rapidly that she must have been capable of reading a page every ten seconds. Finally he said, with a yawn:

"I shall have to go to bed early to-night. I've been up till late for several nights."

"I'm sorry you must go early."

He took out his watch. It was a quarter to 9. "I think I'll go now," he said. "I'll drop into the club for a few minutes before I go to my room."

"Good night."

Since he had not risen this was somewhat unexpected. He arose with a scowl on his brow and, without saying a word of adieu, strode to the closet in the hall and was hunting for his hat and cane when he heard a sob directly behind him. She was there holding her handkerchief to her eyes. He clasped her in his arms, and her head fell on his shoulder. There was an impressive silence for some moments, which he broke.

"I don't believe this test plan is at all necessary."

"I don't think so."

"I'm sure there are no disagreeable features about you that would cause me to wish myself unmarried."

"You won't treat me badly, will you, Harry, dear?"

"No."

The promise was sealed with a kiss.

"Must you go so early?"

"By no means. Now that we have proved that we love each other there's no possibility of our being dissatisfied with each other after marriage."

He was not so sleepy as he had supposed. At any rate, it was half past 3 in the morning when he took his departure.

He has now been married ten years, and he wonders what they said to each other between 8 p. m. and 3 a. m. during their sittings when they were engaged.

Care of Farm Tractors.

Spare parts of the gas tractor should be kept on hand at all times. To keep the engine running is the main thing in the harvest field. Going to town for repairs takes time which can be avoided by having spare parts at hand. Spare parts of pieces which wear the most should be carried with the tractor in order to save time in replacing parts. Cylinder oil for the gas engine must be of the best quality and highest grade to get the best result from the tractor. A cheap low grade of oil will cause frequent stops and delays and will seriously interfere with the efficiency of the engine. Overhaul the tractor at least once a week and every three days if run continuously day and night. To delay one day may result in a broken part which will take longer to repair than the time required for overhauling the engine.

Kneeling Horses.

In ancient times, before the invention of stirrups and luxurious saddles horses were taught to kneel to permit their riders to mount. A beautiful Greek vase in one of the museums in Petrograd shows a war horse of many centuries ago kneeling low before an amazon. The riders in those days mounted from the "off" side in contradistinction to the modern usage. Plutarch tells how in the first century of this era certain effeminate Roman riders found even the horse block of too little assistance and had their horses trained to kneel to them.

75% of women need Phosphates to give them

Strong, Healthy, rounded figure and to avoid Nervous breakdown.

Thousands of women grow strong in Nature's way.

"Consider The Lilies of The Field, How They Grow"

The life of the lily is but a few weeks or months. The life of man is "three score years and ten."

But to live one's life in its fullness, women like the lily, must be nourished by those same natural elements which nature provides for nourishing every living thing; and these include the valuable phosphates so often lacking in the usual food we eat today.

Argo-Phosphate is rich in these wonderful elements. It contains them in concentrated tablet form which is easy to take and quickly assimilated and absorbed into the system, and from youth to old age, builds and rebuilds body and brain in beautiful harmony with Nature's perfect plan.

"That's why," Argo-Phosphate makes good solid flesh and muscles.

SPECIAL NOTICE: Argo-Phosphate contains the Natural phosphate which thousands of physicians are prescribing daily to build up thin, pale, colorless women to give them rosy cheeks, red lips, and a beautiful complexion. Many cases have been reported where women have increased their weight from 15 to 25 pounds with a few weeks treatment, and any woman who desires a well-rounded and developed form, should secure from her druggist, this new drug which is inexpensive and is dispensed by any reliable druggist with or without a doctor's prescription. If your druggist will not supply you, send $1.00 to the Argo Laboratories, 10 Frost Street, Atlanta, Ga., and they will send you a two weeks treatment by return mail.

DAIRYMEN FIND SILOS NECESSARY

Economize Feed and Labor Under War Conditions.

INSURE MILK FLOW

They Can Be Cheaply and Satisfactorily Built By the Farmer Himself.

College Park, July 26.—In co-operation with the several County Demonstration Agents, the Maryland Agricultural Extension Service is urging the building of silos by the dairymen of the State. When grain is so high in price it becomes necessary for every dairyman to feed his cows some cheaper feed. No better feed for dairy cows has been found than silage. If you have as many as ten cows on your place, you should plan to have a silo. A cow will use about 3 tons of silage in a year and on an acre of good corn ground you can grow 8 to 10 tons of silage and possibly more. Neither will building a silo cost anywhere near as much as the expensive feeding of grain. Write to your County Demonstration Agent, asking him to furnish you plans for building a silo and an estimate of what it will cost. If you do not know who your Agent is, write to the Maryland Agricultural Extension Service, College Park, Md. Your County Agent will not only furnish plans for building a silo, but will come to your farm and see that the work is properly started.

In this connection, G. E. Wolcott, dairy specialist for the Extension Service, recommends a cheap and satisfactory type of silo that meets the needs of the practical dairyman. Mr. Wolcott says: "A cheap silo that will keep silage perfectly and last for several years can be made by nailing the best grade of flooring to wooden hoops. The hoops are made of green white oak strips, one-half inch thick and four inches wide. The length of the strips will be determined by the diameter of the silo."

"The material required for the construction of a silo 10 x 24 feet is as follows:

"Foundation:—2 1/2 yards crushed stone or gravel; 2 yards sand; 20 bags of cement.

"Lumber:—1,000 feet B. M. No. 1 flooring; 120 pieces white oak, 1/2 inch thick, 4 inches wide and 12 feet long.

"Hardware:—40 pounds of nails; 4 pieces strap iron, 4 feet long with one end turned up two inches to a right angle. One one-half inch hole should be bored 2 inches from the other end and another 24 inches from the straight end."

"Eggs contain considerable quantities of protein, and, if not too high in price, have a wide, etc., etc." This was quoted from a recent publication, and is the way the value of eggs as compared with other similar food products is usually handled by writers on the subject. "If not too high in price."

"A few years ago eggs sold at a very low price, and consumers do not seem able to forget this price. If they could only be made to appreciate the full value of eggs as food when compared with other similar food substances, consumers might look upon eggs with a little different attitude. They might consider them at their true worth as compared with other foodstuffs."

"There has never been a campaign made to teach the consumer the value of this product. The only large organization devoted to the interests of poultry has almost completely neglected this field, while spending its energies upon stimulating a greater production."

"Now that the poultry raisers are being induced to show their patriotism by raising large quantities of poultry products, it is only fair that some attention be given toward educating the public to appreciate the value of these products and an appreciation of what the poultry raisers are doing for the country. In general, it may be said that a dozen eggs are worth just a little more than a pound and one-half of meat; thus with beefsteak at 32 cents a pound, eggs would give an equal amount of nutritive material at the same price when selling at 43 cents a dozen. A pound and one-half of steak would cost 48 cents and would be equal in food value to one dozen eggs. There are, however, other things to be taken into consideration here. Eggs can be prepared for use much more cheaply, and they will go further in serving."

"It is certainly true that consumers learned the value of eggs so that they can give the poultry raisers their due."

Making the Farm Pay

POINTS ABOUT LEGUMES.

Inoculation of Soil Often Necessary to Get a Good Stand of Clover. [Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

One fundamental characteristic of a leguminous crop is the presence on the roots of nodules or tubercles which are infected by bacteria. These bacteria are essential both to the successful growth of the plant and to its value as a feed and as a green manure crop. They enter the plant from the soil, and it is obvious therefore that if the soil does not contain them in the first place the crop will prove a failure.

If a leguminous crop is grown for the first time in a field it is probable that nodule forming material of the right kind will not be present. They must be supplied therefore by artificial means. This process is called inoculating the soil.

One practical and effective method of inoculation is to transport soil from a field where it is known that the needed bacteria exists. Soil from fields of alfalfa, sweet clover and bur clover will inoculate a field for any of these three crops. Soil from red alsike, crimson and white clover is also interchangeable.

RED CLOVER PLANT.

able, and this is true, too, of the vetches and field peas. Cowpeas and soy beans, however, each require their own particular brand of bacteria.

Soil intended for the purpose of inoculation should be free from obnoxious weeds. It should be taken from the first five or six inches of the surface and spread at the rate of 200 to 400 pounds per acre on the field to be inoculated. As the bacteria are killed by strong sunlight, the transported soil should be spread in cloudy weather, early morning or late afternoon, and harrowed soon after. Where inoculating soil is scarce it is possible to save in its use by the adoption of what is known as the glue method. A thin mixture of chipped glue and water is sprinkled over the seed at the rate of about a quart of the liquid to a bushel. Then a sufficient quantity of dry, inoculated soil is mixed with the seed to make it dry enough to sow well. In this way the seed is coated with inoculated soil and carries this soil with it when it is placed in the field.

Still another method is inoculation by means of liquid cultures. A limited supply of these may be secured free upon application to the United States department of agriculture. Many of the state experiment stations also supply these cultures. Commercial firms also sell them. Directions for the use of these cultures accompany all shipments.

SHEEP INJURE TREES.

Animals Should Not Be Pastured In Small Orchards.

"Don't pasture the sheep in the orchard unless you have such large areas to feed over that no damage will be done to the trees," is the advice of Albert Dickens, professor of horticulture in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

Sheep are good feeders and will clean up a weedy orchard or any other patch of brush land in a short time, but the great danger comes in feeding sheep in a small orchard.

Too many men believe that they can pasture any number of sheep in a small orchard without injury. The animals, however, will eat off the leaves, limiting the fruit buds for the next year, and will tramp the ground, destroying tilth of the soil and slowing up growth and productivity of the trees.

Some men have had success with feeding sheep in their orchards, but their conditions are different, as they have large orchards of 500 acres or more. The danger of injury to the trees is thus considerably lessened by the large areas which the sheep have to feed over. The best plan is to keep the sheep out of the orchard and let them clean up other weedy places of the farm.

Save Poultry Manure.

It is particularly important to take care of the poultry droppings. They should be collected frequently and kept so that there will be no loss of ammonia. An excellent plan is to deposit the droppings in a barrel, and when the barrel is full cover the manure with a thin layer of acid phosphate. The phosphate may also be sprinkled over the droppings under the roosts.

HELP SAVE THE CROPS

Council Of Defense Asks For 15,000 Helpers In Tomato Pack

At the request of Gen. Carl R. Gray, chairman of the State Council of National Defense, a committee consisting of C. C. Homer, Jr., Walter B. Brooks and John B. Ramsay has issued an appeal to the public asking general co-operation in the work of harvesting and canning the tomato and other perishable crops of Maryland.

The Maryland Council of Defense and the members of this committee recognize and desire that the general public also recognize that this effort is in behalf of the country and the state. Conditions are as follows:

1. The farmer has loyally met the urgent appeal of the Government to increase his acreage and grow greater crops.

2. The excess crop this year, particularly of tomatoes, of which Maryland normally supplies about half of the country's demand, is very heavy. To handle it, the canners have increased their equipment and supplies of cans and cases necessary.

3. The connecting link between the farmers and canners is labor. If the labor is not found, the farmers will suffer great economic loss, owing to a glutted market; the canners will be able to pack only a relatively small proportion of the crops, and the rest will go to waste. A condition will result seriously affecting, not only the national food supply, but the prosperity of farmers, merchants and bankers of the state.

4. The canners' ordinary supply of labor will not begin to meet their expected requirements.

This committee, having fully satisfied itself of the conditions as cited above, strongly endorses the appeal being made by the canners for assistance from any and every organization that can help in this specific work. Some 15,000 men, women and children above the age of 16, are called for. Labor is now being recruited particularly through the following organizations: Boys Working Reserve, F. W. Holden in charge, 1604 Munsey Building; Women's Section, Maryland Council of Defense, and The National League for Women's Service, 522 Park avenue, Baltimore.

The response to the call for volunteers through these agencies, while apparently generous, is as yet negligible compared with the thousands of helpers needed.

This committee believes that such service is of intensely patriotic and practical value to the country, and it not only advises, but urges all citizens of this commonwealth, particularly the women and youths who are not already employed, to make the necessary sacrifice, and serve country and state by volunteering as helpers in this canning factory work.

More Population But Not More Power

The extension of the limits of Baltimore city as proposed by the Non-Partisan Greater Baltimore Extension League will give Baltimore city about 75,000 more population and thus prevent the chief city of our State from falling to tenth or twelfth place in the Census of 1920. But more population does not mean more power. More power could come only from increased representation in the Legislature. Representation in the Legislature is fixed by the Constitution and cannot be increased except by amendment of the Constitution.

By Section 2 of Article III of the Constitution, Baltimore city is divided into four legislative districts and each district is given one Senator. By Section 4 of Article III each legislative district is given the same number of delegates as the largest counties, and by the same section the largest counties, that is counties having a population of 55,000 or more, are given six. Baltimore city will have four Senators, as it now has, and no more, and twenty-four members of the House of Delegates, which it now has, and no more, and the counties will have 23 Senators and 77 delegates, just as they now have.

Does anybody really fear that the city will dominate the Senate with 4 Senators out of 27, or that Baltimore will dominate the House with 24 members out of 102? Baltimore's representation cannot be increased, either in the Legislature or in the Judiciary, except by an amendment of the Constitution. The Constitution cannot be amended except by an Act which passes the Legislature by a three-fifths vote in both Houses, and is then ratified by the people or by a Constitutional Convention; and in a Constitutional Convention Baltimore would have the same representation which it has in the Legislature. Neither can the city's representation in a State Convention of either party be increased without an Act of the Legislature. Nor will the extension of Baltimore's limits have any effect on State elections. The voters in the territory to be added to the city will be the same men after they are brought within the city as before and will vote the same way in State elections in the city as they would if left out of the city.

Doing Good

Few medicines have met with more favor or accomplished more good than Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. John F. Jantzen, Delmeny, Sask., says of it, "I have used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy myself and in my family, and can recommend it as being an exceptionally fine preparation."

SOCIETY WOMEN AT THE CAPITAL

Their Transformation From Social Affairs To Social Work

BY MRS. J. CHARLES LINTHICUM

I mention the transformation of Washington society because I am more familiar with its present working than I am with those of other places except that of my own city of Baltimore, which is likewise following the footsteps of the National Capital.

Before the war began there were vast numbers of receptions, dinners and other social activities. Each while giving much pleasure and gratification to the participants, left no permanent or lasting benefits for the community and the country at large. At the outbreak of the war, however, many persons closely interested in those abroad began taking up lines of endeavor for the relief of the suffering and for the greater comfort of those in the hospitals and on the battlefields, notably Belgian relief work. These activities were confined at first to those more or less interested in persons abroad and those accustomed to such work. It has now spread throughout the entire social fabric of Washington to such an extent that aside from social activities rendered necessary by the visiting missions from foreign nations, and dinners and other affairs to show them the great welcome which the American people have to bestow upon them, the social activity of Washington is almost solely confined to those affairs wherein the participants not alone enjoy themselves socially, but have combined charity and relief work with it.

I mention for instance the vast number of women who meet often for the purpose of sewing for the soldiers abroad, the making of comfort bags, bandages and all those things which are necessary on the field of battle and in the hospitals abroad. Then there are the Red Cross workers who work day after day in the interest of that splendid organization. There are those engaged in food conservation and in the spreading of information which will tend to help our people in preparing for the months to come in the nature of food products. In fact the great body of women who formerly knew little other than society work have become efficient and useful social workers.

The situation has been of great benefit to womenkind in general. It has shown them that each and every one can do her part to ameliorate the hardships of this cruel conflagration. At home, in the club, in the social center or whatever place it may be, they are doing their bit, just as much as the soldiers on the fields of battle.

It has shown American women, who heretofore have engaged only in the social affairs of life, that they can enjoy themselves just as well in doing something for humanity as they could in pleasure seeking. It has enabled each one to find herself, as it were, and to demonstrate that they can accomplish things along this line just as well as those who have been practicing all their lives. One may be a good seamstress and do splendid work along that line; another may be adapted to nursing and find that she can accomplish great results in her particular line; another may find that she can teach others to conserve the food resources of the country; and there are those who can teach health regulations and first-aid work.

That America is ready to give physical as well as moral and financial support to safeguard her own people and help her oppressed allies was demonstrated when 10,000,000 Americans of legal fighting age placed their names on the nation's roll of honor and published to the world that the truths enunciated in the Declaration of Independence over a century ago were no mere scraps of paper but a living, breathing message that has gathered force and breadth as the years have passed.

Back of this 10,000,000 men, from which will be selected the first, actual fighting force, stand a population of 93,000,000 ready to help sustain them in the field, and, if need be, furnish more fighting men to keep the aggressor from strutting the seas with the bodies of American women and children and laying waste the broad acres of the greatest agricultural and industrial country of the globe. This body of 10,000,000 fighting men, many of them descended from the patriots of 1776, is only a beginning of this twentieth century war of independence. Every man, woman and child in the United States are ready to put their shoulders to the wheel.

Woman has found that there is a great work for her to do; that each and every one can and should do something to assist Uncle Sam and his allies in the prosecution of this war. Woman has her particular sphere of usefulness and is loyally meeting her task. The things she can accomplish are varied indeed, and useful. They extend from the kitchen or sewing room at home to the bloody battlefields abroad. Never in the world's history has woman found so much to do and never has she more quickly risen to the emergency and become efficient. When this cruel and inhuman war is over there will be a chapter, written which will give due credit to the splendid womanhood of the world and which will say in part that it was woman's work which preserved the home, gave comfort on the field of battle, relieved suffering in the hospitals and camps and carried the final word home to mothers, sweethearts and relatives. God bless the work of women.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-fund in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it.

Thrift Pays the Bills

The world is full of bills. The grocer sends them, the butcher, the baker, the coal man, the ice man and the tailor.

To some people bills mean worry and unhappiness. To others who practice Thrift, who spend less than they earn and regularly save a stated sum, bills have no terror.

Is it not better to have dollar bills in bank than dunning bills in the mail-box?
